

BRITISH OPEN STRONG COUNTER-ATTACK IN LIBYA

44 MORE CZECHS SLAUGHTERED IN NAZI VENGEANCE

Total Number Of Executions Brought To 62, Including Ten Women

THINK PARACHUTISTS HAD HAND IN HEYDRICH ATTACK

Benes Is Blamed By Puppet
President For Assassination Attempt

By Drew Middleton
LONDON, May 30.—(AP)—The Germans were reported today working on the theory that parachutists dropped from foreign planes had a hand in the attempted assassination of Reinhard Heydrich, the "protector of Bohemia and Moravia," as the Gestapo speedily set its vengeance on Czechs to a total of 62, putting to death 44 during the day.

Czech circles in London, who maintain close underground connections with their dethroned homeland, said the question had been raised in Paris to the effect that parachutists might have been the actual attackers and that Czech citizens participated only by sheltering the conspirators.

The German-controlled radio in Prague stated flatly that foreign saboteurs had landed by parachute in Bohemia and Moravia.

It said some of these executed "had been convicted of having sheltered agents who had landed in the protectorate from airplanes by parachute in order to perpetrate acts of sabotage."

Ten women were among the 44 executed today by the Germans in ruthless reprisal for the attack upon Hey-drich, the Gestapo's second in command, who was critically wounded.

The Prague radio announced the latest victims died before firing squad immediately after they were arrested by a quick-action Nazi unit. Up to today 18 Czechs had been shot following the attack Wednesday upon Heydrich, Hitler's favorite.

Reds Say Kharkov Battle Is Successful

Next 90 Days Likely To Be Crucial Time For Nations At War

Interpretation By Kirke L. Simpson
(Wide World War Analyst)

There are indications that the approaching last quarter of the third year of super world war may bring developments which will make it the crucial period of the struggle.

That is not to say that the war can be lost or won by either side in the next 90 days. No imaginable happening short of a successful revolt against Hitlerism in Germany could do that.
Even optimists see no hope of a revolt in the Reich unless and until cumulative military defeats and the advancing shadow of impending starvation weight down on the German people.

Within the next 90 days, however, there may be written in blood and carnage portions from which can be advised sound judgment as to whether this is to be a long or a short war.
From them could be predicted the nature, scope and direction of the Allied war effort.

As this potentially all-important three months starts, war fronts are flaming with action from the Occident to the Orient. Battle is joined in Russia, in North Africa, in China, in the western Atlantic in the Mediterranean and in the air over England and the European continent. Yet it still is far from certain whether there are more

Kauffman To Head Anti-U-Boat Drive

Ace Fighter To Take Command Of Gulf-Caribbean Sea Frontier

MIAMI, Fla., May 30.—(AP)—The navy called today upon one of its ace anti-submarine fighters to take command of the critical Gulf-Caribbean sea frontier where the Axis torpedo toll now exceeds a ship a day.

At Washington, the navy department announced appointment of Rear Admiral James Lawrence Kauffman as head of the seventh and eighth naval districts and all sea areas from Jacksonville to the Gulf of Mexico.

Kauffman will come here from Iceland, where as commander of the naval operating base he has played a major role in beating the submarine menace in the North Atlantic.

He received the navy cross for World War service as commanding officer of the U. S. S. Jenkins which was "engaged in the hazardous duty of patrolling the waters infested with enemy submarines and mines and executing the protecting convoys of troops and supplies."

The navy announcement said Kauffman was transferred "to provide more effective prosecution of the anti-submarine campaign in the Gulf of Mexico area." His command area also will include the northern part of the Caribbean sea where Nazi raiders have been active lately.

JOHN BARRYMORE

JOHN BARRYMORE DIES WITH SMILE

Great Stage And Screen Actor Anxious At End For New Adventure

HOLLYWOOD, May 30.—(AP)—John Barrymore made his exit from life as he had made thousands of exits from the world's stages—smiling, and anxious for a new adventure.

As he lay dying, he turned to his brother Lionel Barrymore and gasped:
"This is wonderful. What a wonderful place."

Barrymore lived life. "Every split second was an exciting experience." . . . But he had no fear of dying.

"When my time comes, I want to go like my uncle, John Drew. He died like a gent. His death truly was artistic."

John's death was tragic and lonely.
But he received good notices from many who had known and loved him.
He would have enjoyed especially the final tribute of his physician, Dr.
Hugo M. Keirsten, Dr. Keirsten said.

"I was compelled to wonder at the cooperative families of the man and moved at a spirit and will that became his 60 years."

Few friends visited him in his last 11-day critical illness. He had given and loaned thousands of dollars to make friends and casual acquaintances alike. None came around the hospital. Possibly they feared he was too ill to be visited.

The Great Profile died broke, a broken financially and in health. Only his great heart kept him alive from last November, when liver and kidney ailments nearly ended his life, until last night.

Barrymore was in debt. Five years ago his debts were listed as in excess of $100,000 in bankruptcy court.
He returned from virtual retirement to new heights on stage and screen and added radio to his repertoire. He

DROP SHOWN IN HOLIDAY DEATHS

Number Still Far Under That Predicted By Safety Council

With gasoline rationing and equipment shortages keeping many automobiles off the roads, the nation's Memorial day week-end death toll of 48 yesterday was dwarfed by the figure of last year's peacetime holiday.

In contrast to the fast-mounting fatality recording of 1941, reports of tragedies on the highways and in the water and other violent deaths track-led in. More than half of the states were not heard from at 6 p. m. eastern war time.

An early total of 38 traffic deaths, 21 drownings and nine other fatalities appeared to indicate that perhaps last year's holiday week-end toll of 431 lives nor an estimated total for the week-end would be reached.

The National Safety council estimated that 400 deaths were normal for the week-end. Other week-ends averaged 141.

The fatalities by state:
Indiana, five traffic; Illinois, one traffic, two violent; one miscellaneous; Iowa, one traffic; Kansas, one traffic, one drowning; Kentucky, one traffic.

WAR AUTHORIZED BY MEXICO'S CONGRESS

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—(AP)—The Mexican senate cleared the deck for war on the Axis today when it unimously authorized President Avila Camacho to declare a state of war against Germany, Italy and Japan and then approved a bill to suspend constitutional guarantees and grant him extraordinary powers to mobilize the entire nation.

The senate action, following the unanimous war vote of the chamber of deputies last night, left Avila Camacho free to formally proclaim hostilities whenever he chooses. The vote on both measures was 13 to 0.

The senate immediately adjourned at 5:24 p. m., after a session of nearly six hours during which the principal figures of the upper chamber denounced the submarine torpedoing of two Mexican tankers 16 days ago as a "cowardly crime" and praised President Roosevelt as the "champion of the ideals of liberty and democracy in the world."

The senate clerk reported both approved measures would be returned to the chamber of deputies, the house of origin, to be transmitted as quickly as possible to the president.

STOCKS OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FROZEN

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—The war production board today ordered production of virtually all musical instruments stopped after June 30 and effective immediately, froze stocks of 27 types of band instruments now in the hands of manufacturers and wholesalers.

All the frozen stocks will be made available to army, navy and marine bands.

Beginning Monday, WPB ordered, no critical materials such as metals, cork, plastic, and rubber, may be processed for musical instruments other than pianos and organs. Until June 30, however, the instruments may be made from fabricated parts now in stock. After that date production must be halted entirely.

Piano and organ manufacturers—who soon will be making gliders and pilot training devices for the armed services—may continue using fabricated parts until July 31, after which they, too, must close down for the duration.

FIGHTING DRAWS TO CLOSE AFTER 19-DAY STRUGGLE

German Claim Of Victory Is Branded By Russians As Fantasio

SAY FASCIST ARMY TO BE
'BLED COMPLETELY WHITE'

Soviets Admit 75,000 Casualties, Declare German Losses 90,000

MOSCOW, May 31 (Sunday).—(AP)— Marshal Timoshenko's Soviet armies in the Ukraine have scored a brilliant success in thwarting a Nazi-planned drive upon Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, the Russians announced in a special communique today declaring that the battle of Kharkov is drawing to a close after 19 days of violent fighting in which the Germans have lost more than 90,000 killed or captured.

Indicating the enormity of the clash of men and machines, the official announcement listed Russia's own casualties at Kharkov at 75,000, including 5,000 killed and 70,000 missing.
German losses in fighting equipment were listed at 510 tanks, not less than 1,311 guns and upwards of 200 planes, against Soviet losses of 300 tanks, 832 guns and 124 planes.

"Branding German victory claims as fantastic," the Russians declared sarcastically that "a few more of these German 'victories' and the German Fascist army will be completely bled white."

(The Germans, claiming a great victory for themselves on the Kharkov front, announced Saturday that Russian dead there were "enormous" and claimed capture of 240,000 prisoners, capture or destruction of 1,249 tanks, 2,928 guns, 538 planes and vast quantities of other Soviet arms and equipment.)

The Russians emphasized that Timoshenko's forces were "bleeding the Germans."

Plants Are Busy On Memorial Day

People Reaffirm Determination To Win War, Preserve Freedom

(By Associated Press)

America observed Memorial day yesterday with its war industries running at virtually full tilt and its people reaffirming their determination to win one more war in order that the institutions for which its heroes of the past fought and died may be preserved intact.

In most war production centers the story was the same—steel mills, aircraft factories and other plants busy producing tools and equipment for the nation's fighting men.

For the workers in one factory, the Hamilton Standard Propeller division of United Aircraft Corporation at East Hartford, Conn., there was this heartening telegram:

"Now it can be told. You made the propellers that were used on the planes in which we bombed Tokyo and a half dozen other Japanese cities."

It was signed by Brigadier-General James H. Doolittle, the leader of that famous air raid.

Washington was treated to its first big war-time parade, a mammoth procession made up of many of the military and naval units quartered in the northern gate.

The Chinese high command declared the main body of its troops had been withdrawn from Kinkwa, provisional capital of Chekiang province in eastern China, Thursday morning at 7 a. m., but some soldiers remained in Kinkwa in an effort by the Chinese to launch an attack from both sides as the Japanese entered.

The city was turned into ruins after repeated Japanese aerial bombardments, the Chinese said, and an enormous unit of more than 1,000 broke into the northern gate.

It was this force, which the Chinese high command, claimed was "centrally wiped out. . . with hand grenades in a close quarter engagement."

"The streets were filled with enemy corpses."

Thursday afternoon, the high command said.

1,500 Texas Volunteers Out To Avenge Sinking Of Houston

HOUSTON, Tex., May 30.—(AP)—
More than 1,500 Texas volunteers, determined to avenge the loss of the United States cruiser Houston, were promised by President Roosevelt at swearing in ceremonies tonight "the debt will be paid in full."

The president's message was read to the "Houston Volunteers" by Rear Admiral William A. Glassford, Jr., who as commander of the southwest Pacific United States fleet sent the Houston on her last voyage.

"On this Memorial Day," the message said, "all America joins with you who are gathered in proud tribute to a great ship and a gallant company of American officers and men. That fighting ship and those fighting Americans shall live forever in our hearts."

"I knew that ship and loved her.
Her officers and men were my friends.
When ship and men went down, still fighting, they did not go down to defeat. They had helped remove at least two heavy cruisers and probably other vessels from the active list of the enemy's ranks. The officers and men of the U. S. S. Houston were privileged to prove, once again, that free Americans consider no price too high to pay in defense of their freedom. The officers and men of the U. S. S. Houston drove a hard bar-

TRUCK DRIVER SAVES 15 PERSONS' LIVES

CAMDEN, Ark., May 30.—(P-R. D.)
"Doug" Walton, 33, Texarkana, Ark. freight truck driver, was credited today with saving the lives of a bus driver and 15 passengers trapped inside a blazing Greyhound transportation bus after a head-on collision on a hillside curve six miles south of Camden today.

Walton escaped injury when his heavily-loaded Southwestern Transportation company machine and the north-bound Calhoun-to-New York passenger bus collided about 4:30 a. m.
The bus driver, G. A. Smith, 33, Pine Bluff, was injured seriously, the doors of his vehicle were jammed and the machine had caught fire.

Leaping from the cab of the freight transport, Walton pried open a bus door, seized a fire extinguisher, and while successfully battling the flames helped the injured driver and his passengers to safety. The truck driver's hands were burned badly in the rescue work.

Two of the passengers were reported injured seriously at a Camden hospital. They were Mrs. O. W. Turner, Antioch, Tenn., and Mrs. Foster Summers, Charlotte, N. C.

Other passengers who received hospital treatment were Mrs. Summers', 6-year-old son, Barry; James O. Simmons, Dallas, Tex.; Mrs. Frances Smith, Oxnard, Calif.; Mrs. Cecil Powell, New Madrid, Mo.; Private Carl
MacIntosh, Boaz, Ky.; Mrs. Carrie Harper, Fort Worth, Tex., and Miss Lou Eoline Anderson, Seattle, Wash.
Most of these were discharged
during the day.

BRAZIL ANNOUNCES 400TH AXIS SPY IS IN CUSTODY

Russian Armies Go About Grim Business Of Killing Germans

By Richard McMurray
(Associated Press War Editor)

The British counter-attacked strongly in a wild melee of tanks in the Libyan desert yesterday, the Chinese lost Kinkwa in a grave defeat, and the Russians went about their grim business of killing Germans despite Adolf Hitler's claim that the Red armies of the Ukraine had annihilated before him.

British air force fiercely attacked slave factories near Paris producing war material for Germany, as well as shipping, rail communications and ports.

Gestapo firing squads killed 44 more Czechs for a total of 62 in angry reprisal for the critical wounding of Hitler's No. 2 henchman, Reinhard Hey-drich. The dreaded "protector" of Czechoslovakia hovered between death and a life of invalidism.

American and Australian pilots smashed at the Japanese in island bases near the Down Under continent and in Burma.

In the Caribbean an Axis submarine was certainly sunk by United States planes while Mexico put the final touches on her declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan, and Brazil announced the 400th Axis spy had been corralled.

That was the picture of the world at war on the United States' Memorial day—a day given over to honor of the dead, to other conflicts and the rededication of America's resolve to stamp out forever Hitler and his complices.

With the battle of Kharkov in tactical recess, the severest and most terrific fighting raged on the burning sands of North Africa some 20 miles eastward of Tobruk in a vast triangle bounded roughly by that port, Ain El Garah and the dirty water hole of Rij Bahum. Germans and Britons fought and suffered and died in a mighty struggle of attrition.

The prize for the Germans might be Suez and the oil riches of Iraq and Iran beyond. For the British, it must be Tripoli and the complete control of North Africa—a springboard for an invasion of war-torn Italy.

The great battle was five days old and no clear picture of ascendancy was yet in sight. All the main British positions held firm and the fighting was behind the fluid imperial lines where the Germans, attempting to outflank their foe, might have surged into a steel trap.

"More hard fighting must be expected," the British said. "Bitter resistance," said the Italians. "In North Africa the battle is continued," the Germans said curtly.

The vital fact emerged, however, that the R. A. F. held a 5 to 3 command of the air, and with the land forces, was inflicting dreadful punishment on the Axis army. The hot sands were littered with wrecked and burning tanks and vehicles.

Reminiscent of the immortal message of the men of Wake island to "Send us more Japs," the Free French said today.

LEIGH WILL HEAD L. S. U. COMMITTEE

BATON ROUGE, La., May 30.—(AP)— Thomas Leigh of Monroe was named chairman of the finance, buildings and grounds committee of the Louisiana State university board of supervisors today at a board meeting.

His selection fills the vacancy left when E. M. Mouton, Lanier of Plaquemine recently accepted a commission in the army air corps. Leigh's appointment is for the duration of Lanier's absence.

The board formally accepted a general education board grant of $35,000 for research to study the nutritive value of the sweet potato, a subject on which much research has already been done at the university through its college of agriculture.

Formal acceptance also was voted the $10,000 Kellogg fund, which is to be used for loans or scholarships to students of the school of medicine.

The board decided that enlisted men in the armed services would henceforth be allowed to register for courses at the university with payment of only half the usual fees.

James E. Southerman, chairman of the board, entertained the board at lunch in the honor of Vice-Chairman Tom W. Dutton, who is to leave shortly for service in the army air corps.
Administrative officers of the university were special guests for the occasion.

The board meeting today was the annual commencement session at which formal approval is given those seeking degrees for the session. Board members will be honor guests at a number of commencement functions.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The nine senators organizing to fight expansion of gasoline rationing areas, voted today to ask President M. Nelson, war production chairman, to conduct a public hearing before any move is made to order nationwide curtailment of motor fuel sales.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, who acted as leader of the group, said he and Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, would lay the request for a hearing before Nelson, Petroleum Administrator Ickes and Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Thomas said the governors of oil producing states, most of whom produce gasoline, have been curtailed because storage tanks are full, would be invited to appear at any hearing that might be held. Oil company representatives and citizens also would be asked to testify, he said.

Besides Connally and Thomas, those who joined in the protest move included Senator Johnson, Republican, California; O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas; Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana; Hatch, Democrat, New Mexico; Spencer, Democrat, New Mexico; and Dorey, Democrat, Arkansas, and Dorey, Democrat, Mississippi.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—If Congressional action to back nationwide gasoline rationing was projected today as Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, urged colleagues from oil producing states together to organize for a fight against the proposal.

While Connally declined to predict what course the group would take, Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, said he and others might seek to amend or pending legislation, a rider specifically prohibiting orders beyond the 12 eastern states now affected. Extension of the rationing area to include all of the United States has been considered as a measure to conserve rubber, indicated in a letter to Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, Interior Ickes indicated in a letter that a definite decision already had been made on the question.

Louisiana has been for many years in the very center of the oil producing area and transportation of oil in this state is not a problem.

Right now . . . thousands of barrels of gasoline and other petroleum products fill storage tanks in Louisiana and other nearby oil producing states of the south and southwest. Oil production has been curtailed because of the lack of the storage space. Gas rationing would surely be illogical in this area and would present an added problem.

As far as the tire situation is concerned . . . the majority of the motorists have tires to last from 6 months to a year and as they cannot purchase new rubber under any condition . . . gas rationing is not essential in the conservation.

As the accompanying Associated Press story points out . . . the able representation of oil producing states in the United States Senate urges that there is no necessity of rationing gasoline in this area. These men know conditions in the Southwest and their stand prompts the undersigned firms to seek your aid in expressing the wishes of our citizens.

While the firms who bring you the message would be directly affected . . . it is to the interest of every citizen in Louisiana that gas rationing NOT BE PUT INTO EFFECT HERE. In addition, many of these firms would be compelled to go out of business, seriously disrupting the economy of the state, causing unemployment and eliminating essential taxes to run our state government.

War Readjustments

As United States involvement in the war approaches the half-year mark, the impact of hostilities upon the home front—upon the lives of the people not in the armed forces—is becoming more evident daily and removes all doubt that in an all-out global war civilians do not continue to live as they did in time of peace.

While Congress continues to struggle with the new tax bill, a bill that may call for double the present taxes, already the highest in the nation's history, ominous news comes from Washington regarding tires. No rubber will be available for tires before 1943, and nationwide application of gasoline rationing to save rubber seems to await only removal of formidable obstacles to administration of a move so far-reaching in its implications.

A government order freezing all canned fish of the 1942 pack for the armed services and for lease-lend does not necessarily mean that none will be available for the public. A statement explains that the move was made simply to assure a plentiful supply for the armed services and for lease-lend. If, as apparently anticipated, there is a surplus, it will be made available to the public. But obviously the stock available to the public will be small or this freezing step would not have been necessary.

Air transportation service has been ordered cut by 50 per cent and may be further curtailed. Service to some points has been discontinued entirely and in the case of some of the larger cities one or more competing lines have been ordered to abandon service.

All this, of course, is a long step from cuffed pants and sugar rationing, but greater civilian sacrifices must be made to speed the war effort as preparations are made for the army, navy and air corps to take the offensive on several fronts. Even so innocent and innocuous an amusement as the present-day movie is called to do its bit. The WPB has ruled that henceforth the maximum outlay permitted for new props and materials in the making of a movie will be $5,000—not a drop in the bucket compared to the hundreds of thousands of dollars once expended on "sets" for the filming of spectacular film epics.

Blank ammunition that would ordinarily be expended in the filming of Civil War battles or Custer's Last Fight will henceforth be fitted with bullets and directed at the Axis.

MEXICO'S ENTRY

Mexico's entry into the war is chiefly significant at this time in that it promises an added vigilance in the effort to oust Axis submarines from the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean sea.

Mexico has neither a strong navy nor a strong air force, but what it has can be added to the equipment America is throwing into the waters in the struggle to reduce and finally to eliminate cargo ship losses.

In its aroused anger Mexico can be counted on, too, to keep a more careful eye upon subversive Axis activities. These may have been furnishing valuable information to Axis crews who are preying upon the commerce of the Allies. Mexico has an army adequate for patrol purposes in keeping the Axis nationals of that country in hand and in breaking up their underground plots.

There is no doubt that the forays of Axis undersea craft in the Gulf and the Caribbean sea are serious. Losses continue to mount as a result of the desperate Axis effort to divide the Americas and to persuade the Latin nations that the United States cannot protect those waters.

This effort is having an effect precisely the opposite of that intended.

MEANWHILE, BUY BONDS

Publishing of the appeal for financial support of the war effort with the aid of sparkling Hollywood stars and important figures in the world of sports does no harm and may be helpful. It must be conceded that there is far less in the form of spectacular exploitation of the war's financial aspects than was the case a quarter of a century ago.

War bonds can and should be sold for what they are—insurance of the outcome of the war and for the buyer. Divested of all aspects of patriotism and loyalty they may hold, these bonds may be regarded as one-payment endowment policies, payable in full 10 years from date by the most reliable financial institution on earth.

This, of course, is the strictly material view of these bonds. Undeniably they are a stake against the next economic dislocation. They will pay well on the original investment at a time when the money may be sorely needed. But even though this were not the case and they held no certainty of profit, these bonds should be in the hands of every American who can afford to buy them.

They furnish the sinews of war—a war upon whose successful outcome the future freedom and general well-being of every American of today and of generations yet to come depends. Even though a luminous Hollywood figure never appeared upon the scene and a three-minute speaker did not lend his eloquence to the cause, the campaign for the sale of war bonds should go forward with the united support of all Americans who are aware of just what winning of the war means to them and to their children.

JIMMIE FIDLER BELIEVE IT OR NOT

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, May 30.—Veronica Lake is jiriding for a salary war with Paramount, under threat of following her husband to army camp if her pay isn't doubled. . . . All is not hunky-dory with Annabella and Tyne Power, even though she has enlisted in the navy. The army has ordered Malibu Beach residents to be ready to evacuate in a jiffy.

Ernest Hemingway has a "mad on" at Paramount because he wants Ingrid Bergman for "For Whom The Bell Tolls," and the studio wants Zorina. . . . Lucille Ball will have X-rays made of the toe she injured on a set. . . . Does Jane Russell's football player-boyfriend know she is dating John Payne after he (the grid-ironer) goes home?

Those cross words between the Mickey Roonies (Ava Gardner) seem to have led to a better understanding. . . . George Montgomery goes into uniform after two more pictures. . . . The naughty dancing Carole Landis and Woolworth Donahue were doing at The Mocambo the other night had onlookers' eyebrows merging with their hairlines.

James Dunn, who quit Hollywood for the N.Y. stage two years ago, is coming back; he still carries a torch for Frances Gifford, his divorced wife. . . . The Arline Judge-Hyatt Van Dine (he has mints) datings have reached the "meet my family" stage. . . . Noel Coward is set to become an attache of the British embassy in Washington.

The John Waynes, who were living apart, are back together. . . . Those strip teasers must have something; Judith Gibson, formerly "Marcia" of the local Folies, sold more defense stamps at the Magnin Victory window than any other celeb, including Shirley Temple. . . . Morton Downey has agreed to surrender custody of their five children to ex-wife Barbara Bennett; lawyers are drawing up the papers.

Laugh of the Week: Grant (Loretta Young's ex) Withers, an air raid warden, tells about a zone warden who addressed his men: "I know many of you fellows are anxious to get your helmets. Unfortunately, those which will eventually be supplied free by the government are not available yet. But you can buy helmets, if you wish, and they're regular army equipment, issued during the first world war." "Incredible!" shouted a voice from the rear. "I thought we sold all those to the Japs!"

Preview Nights: Pic of an unexciting week: MGM's "Once Upon a Thursday" (Marsha Hunt-Richard Carlson). Upper crust society gets some clever ribs that'll tickle yours.

Just fair: MGM's "I Married An Angel" (Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy). The stars try hard but win no halos. . . . United Artists' "Ships With Wings" (All-British cast). War melodrama as unbelievable as a Goebbels propaganda speech. . . . MGM's "Pacific Rendezvous" (Lee Bowman-Jean Rogers). Spies run wild in a thriller that has lots of spice but no meat. . . . Less Than Fair: Universal's "You're Telling Me" (Hugh Herbert-Annie Gwynne). Those who go to laugh will stay to yawn. . . . Columbia's "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" (Jackie Gleason-Jack Durant). An imitation of Abbott & Costello that's ba-a-a-d, very bad.

Confidential Communicates to: Vic Mature: Go easy with your threats to walk out on your new RKO picture. Studio heads say if you do, the request for your draft deferment for the picture will be withdrawn pronto. . . . Red Skelton: You haven't asked it, but you deserve praise for confining your camp appearances to small bases (his gagst audience to date was 600 soldiers) which get little or no entertainment. . . . Brenda Marshall: If you and William Holden are so happy quit giving out interviews about your "many quarrels that don't really matter." . . . Ida Lupino: Reputation of neurotic roles was getting you in a rut. I'm glad you play a well dressed, pretty girl in your current production.

Odd-Formation: Jane Withers is second only to Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney as a trap drummer. . . . Night fire scenes have been banned by West Coast military authorities; they can't be put out quickly enough in event of a blackout. . . . Penn Singleton markets an average of 300 eggs a week from her valley farm. . . . Robert Cummings, then known as Blade Conway, used to stooge for Milton Berle. . . . Bob Hope cherishes an art treasure from a fan: It's one of Bing Crosby's grammar school geographies, with Bing's interpretation of his teacher scrawled inside the cover. . . . Movie kissing below the chin (except on the hand) is taboo in Maryland. . . . Donald Crisp's father, Dr. James Crisp, is believed to be the first surgeon to successfully stitch the human heart.

Credit one of Hollywood's femme wits for the prize crack on this season's most-discussed romantic topic, the possible marriage of Hedy Lamarr and George Montgomery. Informed of the engagement, the lady reflected somberly for a moment. Then, her voice dripping awe, she said, "Imagine! All that beauty under one roof!"

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

This is a word to mothers of girls, of 14 to 18, and to the girls themselves. School terms are about over and soon our girls will have more time to go about. Everywhere they will meet soldiers in uniform, the majority being strangers from distant places. There is always a greater interest in strangers for both girls and boys, girls and soldiers. Add to that interest the appeal of a uniform of our country's service, and the result is an exciting interest. That is natural but under the circumstances, a bit dangerous for the girls, especially the younger ones.

The situation is loaded against them because of their stage of growth and their inexperience. They have been taught, of course, but only in words, and words against the powerful drive of youth and sex are weak indeed. Still we must try to teach these happy, carefree children to maintain courteous reserves toward the young men in uniform. These are not boys, but men away from home, away from the friends, and the sweethearts that made up so great a part of their lives.

They are lonely and their minds are beset with frightening possibilities mingled with hopes and doubts and dreams. They are eager for forgetfulness, for friendliness, a touch of home, and there is much in the friendship of young girls fired by idealism, to satisfy these needs.

That is all very well, but unless the limits of such friendships are rigidly set there are likely to be results that prove disastrous for the girls. They must know that there are few soldiers who have not left girls behind.

Many of them have left wives, families that are dependent in many ways upon them.

Only a child, such as a girl in her early teens, could accept the idea that a man in his twenties and on up could have lived so long without meeting a girl he adored, but had spent those years in waiting for her to appear.

Of course the child will say, "This is different." Too inexperienced to know or to understand when told, that there is nothing "different" in life. It goes forward on immutable laws and those who invoke those laws must abide by their decrees. Mothers and housewives and teachers and club leaders must take responsibility for these young girls in this matter. Chaperone them carefully.

There are in every great group of men some who are weak, some who are selfish, some who have scant regard for anything or anybody standing in the way of their comfort. The services have their full quota of these and it behooves the girls, and their leaders, to remember that.

Responsible, decent men are responsible and decent in the service as they were at home. Girls must remember that scraping acquaintance with a man on the road, the social, conventional meeting of a man at a party, the writing of letters to strange men, their attitudes toward strange men, do not change in the least because the men wear their country's uniform.

Respecting that uniform, respecting themselves, is just routine in wartime. To think that the conditions permit unconventional behavior is to make a sad mistake, a very sad one where the girls are concerned.

Sunday School Lesson

The Sunday School Lesson For June 1
Text: Mark 15:33, 34; Luke 23:46
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

The tragic story of the death of Jesus on the Cross is the theme of our lesson, with particular emphasis upon the words of Christ from the Cross.

The scene on Calvary followed quickly the agony of Jesus in the garden of Gethsemane. We are wont to say that there is an agony of soul that is greater than any physical pain, but this is not true, for physical pain means agony of soul as well. A martyr may bear his sufferings, upheld by his faith and determination to let nothing induce him to renounce his fidelity to right and truth. But while man lives and is conscious, the body cannot be separated from the spirit, and bodily pain, no matter how cruelly agonizing it is endured, often means agony of spirit.

It is in the light of this that we must interpret the cry of Jesus, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Here, as in the agony in the garden of Gethsemane, is emphasized the deep and real humanity of the Christ who suffered on the Cross. It was the human cry that Job in another way had uttered when, under the burden of his afflictions, he had been tempted to curse God and die.

It was a momentary cry of intense anguish, but the spirit of Jesus under suffering was manifested more truly in His attitude toward the penitent thief. He knew in the moment following His outcry that God had not forsaken Him, for He said to the thief, "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise," and as the sun's light faded and darkness came over the land, and the veil of the temple was rent in twain, in the same spirit in which He had prayed in Gethsemane, "Not my will, but thine be done," He cried, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." This was the final word from the Cross.

But a significant part of the scene is contained in the passage in John 19:25-30, which it is suggested should be compared with the verses in our lesson from Mark and Luke. Here is a scene that mothers will understand, for we are told that there stood by the Cross the mother of Jesus. The woman who had cherished her babe in Bethlehem; and who had kept and pondered in her heart all the things that suggested the great part that her son was to fulfill, followed Him all the way to the Cross, there sharing His suffering, and giving Him the help of her presence. Could mother-love have been greater? Jesus still had a thought for His mother, and even in His agony commended her to the beloved disciple John. There are mothers today in many homes in our land who cannot be present to share the agony of sons in far-off battle scenes, mortally wounded or in deep pain. May they be upheld by the Christ who died and by the spirit of the mother of Jesus who was faithful to the end!

TOPEKA, Kas.—(AP)—They tried to retire Fred, the milk wagon horse, and several customers on his route threatened to quit taking milk. Fred is one of the veterans in service since replaced trucks with horses 10 years ago. During the years he learned to drink from a filling station hose and that's where his driver waters him. Another horse in the company's 13-horse stable eats peaches. Spits out the pits, too.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
News-Star-World Washington Correspondent

The heat is on from the sugar beet growers of the southwest to import anywhere from 20,000 to 100,000 Mexican laborers to take off this year's crop, and thereby hangs a tale of woe. The shortage of farm labor is given as the excuse for the need of this wholesale mass migration, but the question follows naturally whether the United States would not be making the same mistake it made in the last war if it permits a new migration of cheap Mexican labor.

You'll recall what happened then. Mexican labor was imported by the tens of thousands. Then the war boom collapsed and the Mexicans were stranded. From 10 to 50 per cent were repatriated—no one knows for sure just what the figure is—and the rest went on relief, giving the entire southwest a rural slum population that has been nothing short of an international scandal. The aliens couldn't be hired by WPA, so the full relief burden fell on local and state governments.

The Mexican government was angry and has stayed that way. Mexico today is therefore reluctant to permit its citizens to cross the border to take war jobs in the United States, a position strengthened by Mexico's declaration of war on Germany. The Mexicans may decide they need all their manpower at home and refuse to permit any labor migration, which would be a good thing for all concerned.

The importation of Mexican labor simply does not make sense. A recent WPA sampling survey indicated a reserve labor supply of 13 million people willing to do farm labor. There are still four million unemployed in the country. The WPA rolls have 900,000 and the law is that if anyone on WPA is offered a job, he must take it or be dropped.

Still Screaming
Early this year, WPA employment men went through every agricultural county in the country, explaining to farmers that all they had to do was make known their requirements for farm labor. That stopped the usual summer complaints that farmers couldn't get help because everyone preferred to work for WPA, but the big employers of migrant farm labor are still screaming.

As far as the sugar beet states are concerned, WPA rolls as of May 19 were as follows: Illinois 2,900, Colorado 6,200, New Mexico 5,400, Idaho 2,900 and southern California 13,000. Michigan alone seems to have solved its sugar beet problem by bringing in surplus labor from Texas, which has 46,000 on WPA.

It therefore appears that the big farm companies employing most of the migrant labor don't just want an adequate labor supply. What they want is a labor surplus so that wages can be knocked down to the old depression levels. And there is a hope that Mexican pea labor, which will work for 20 cents an hour, can be imported to keep these wages down.

The United States Employment Service was recently handed a hoe when it was federalized by presidential order and told to do something about this threatened farm labor shortage, but it got on the job a little late. On May 15 the United States Employment Service therefore certified to the immigration service that unless some of the Japanese farm labor force could be released, it would be necessary to bring into the country to handle the sugar beet crop 3,000 workers for California, 1,500 for Montana and 1,500 for Idaho. The buck was then passed to the new war manpower commission, which asked the state department if it would not approach the Mexican government on the subject of furnishing these 6,000 workers.

A Big Test
The Tolson committee of the House of Representatives, investigating national defense labor migration, has held one closed hearing on this subject of Mexican labor, the Rt. Rev. Magr. John O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, making the principal statement. Monsignor O'Grady has been in-monsioned in the welfare of the three million Mexicans and Spanish-Americans of the southwest for a number of years. It is his studied opinion that there is ample farm labor in the southwest to take off all the crops of the western states and that further immigration of Mexican labor is totally unnecessary.

The Tolson committee, in a preliminary report, has put this whole farm labor problem right up to the manpower commission and the employment service, recommending a complete overhauling of the federal farm placement machinery. Solving this farm labor problem immediately is the manpower commission's first big test.

NEW YORK—Diary: Touring New York as dimout takes on sterner and more stringent aspects is an interesting occupation. . . . Night after night electric signs become fewer. The photographs of Times Square dimout you see in the papers have to be interpreted to be understood. The photographs are time exposure. PARTICIPANT IN ATTACK IS HOME

Lieutenant Karl M. Smith Is Given Leave To Visit Monroe
Parents

Lieutenant Karl M. Smith, United States marine corps, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karl L. Smith, at 3410 Harrison street. Lieutenant Smith was commissioned a second lieutenant in the regular marine corps in February, 1941, and was assigned to the second engineer battalion in Pearl Harbor. He was on duty there when Pearl Harbor was attacked and came through without a scratch. He has only been back to the United States about two weeks.

During the air attack, Lieutenant Smith stated: "The marines went about their duties calmly and with only thought of one thing in their minds—to shoot down as many enemy bombers as possible. I personally recommended the United States marine corps to any young man who wants to fight for his country and really see action."

Lieutenant Smith must report back to his post for duty the fourth of June.

FOUR HITS FROM AIR
SINK ENEMY U-BOAT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, May 30.—(AP)—Four bomb hits, two of them "dream shots" from an altitude of only 50 to 100 feet, sent an enemy submarine to the bottom in four minutes of action off the Vichy French island of Martinique early Wednesday, the Tenth United States naval district announced today.

The announcement apparently was an official confirmation of what was witnessed by hundreds of watchers from the shore of the British West Indies island of St. Lucia where the United States has a base.

Delayed dispatches from St. Lucia yesterday said at least one submarine must have been sunk Wednesday when United States planes fought a brisk engagement with a pack of undersea boats while the damaged United States destroyer Blakeley was running the gauntlet from Martinique, where it had taken refuge after being hit in a previous attack.

The navy announcement today, did not mention the Blakeley in connection with the sinking.

It named Ensign E. G. Binning of New York City as the commander of the new plane which dropped the four bombs.

He said the last two were "dream shots" which struck five feet aft of

COMMENCEMENT
HELD AT L. T. I.

Exercises Conducted Friday;
Dr. C. E. Autrey Gives Message

The 1942 commencement of the Louisiana Training Institute was held before a good-sized audience, Friday at 8 p.m. The auditorium stage was adorned with a large American flag, a huge bank of ferns and seasonal flowers.

Van D. Odum, principal presided. Invocation was by Rev. Jasper Mauss, O. P. M., after which the pledge of allegiance to the flag was given by the audience.

The institute's band, directed by Lowry Jefferson, rendered "The Star Spangled Banner" and Walter Crider, valedictorian, gave in forceful manner an address on "Foresight." He urged all-round development with due regard to culture and indicated that each and every one is the architect of his career, which should be well-balanced and well-directed.

Gilbert Autrey followed with a marimba solo which elicited so much applause that an encore was required.

Dr. C. E. Autrey, pastor of the First Baptist church in West Monroe, the principal speaker of the occasion, took for his general theme the scripture: "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he."

He told of having been at San Antonio recently when 100 men were given their wings. He told of hearing an officer who had 2,000 hours of time in the air deliver the address. He pointed out that the graduates are going out to meet a challenge. So Dr. Autrey said, the graduates at the L. T. I. are also to be challenged. He discussed cases where men had started in humble walks of life and had fought their way up to power and influence that exceeded often that of their former employers. This was possible, he said, because they had met the challenge.

Paul of the Scriptures was confronted with a challenge. He answered it and became one of the greatest powers that the Christian world has ever known. He said that the church is the power that must bring the world out of war and strife and butchery and that no other power can do it.

He closed his talk with giving an example of the career of William Lloyd Garrison who set forth to abolish slavery from the earth. He was laughed at as a most impractical dreamer as slavery had been entrenched into civilization for generations. But his meeting the challenge was so forceful that he began to make an impression. The mountain of opposition began to crack. It gave way, and in 38 years after the birth of this great man, slavery was abolished in the United States. And he was one who met the challenge and conquered. In like manner, the speaker urged the boys to recognize and meet the challenge that life presents to them.

Larence Ridgway presented a saxophone solo after which W. C. Houscutt, of the Northeast Junior College faculty, gave the seventh grade certificates.

The bank played "Marines March" and at its close Superintendent Elmer C. Slagle awarded diplomas to the two graduates of the high school, Walter Crider and Larence Ridgway, who are planning to enter college this fall. The superintendent complimented the graduates on the display of work of the handcraft department of the institute.

COMMISSIONED

CHINESE ABANDON

mand reported, enemy units launched a concerted attack on Kinhwa under cover of planes. The weary remnants left in the city retired to the west and joined the main force in the suburbs after exacting more casualties from the invaders.

The Japanese already have reported that Kinhwa was captured at 7 a.m. Thursday—the hour of the withdrawal of the main Chinese force.

Street fighting is proceeding in the city of Lanchow, 10 miles northwest of Kinhwa, the Chinese reported.

A Japanese force which penetrated to Lungyu, 25 miles west of Kinhwa, has been divided into several units, the Chinese said, but the invaders have been intercepted southwest of Lungyu.

Continuing their drive in Hupeh province (possibly an indirect attempt to relieve the Chinese in Chekaing province although it is hundreds of miles to the east), the Chinese reported capturing more Japanese-held points around Ichang, a Japanese stronghold on the Yangtze river. Between 600 and 700 casualties were reported inflicted on the enemy.

A Japanese force rushing up the Burma road from Wanting to reinforce Lungling has been intercepted, the Chinese declared today in a brief reference to the Yunnan front.

The high command said Chinese soldiers were exerting strong pressure against Lungling.

According to latest complete reports received by the federal government from airplane companies, American aircraft manufacturing industry built nearly 70 per cent more military planes in March than it did in November, the month preceding Pearl Harbor.

D. Masur & Sons Hosts

HANDSOME NEW HOME FINISHED

Formal Opening Event Announced For Monday From 8 To 10 P. M.

D. Masur and Sons, 101 DeSiard street, will throw open, for formal inspection, their elaborate down-to-the-minute men's furnishing store Monday from 8 to 10 p.m. At that time, the public of north Louisiana will be invited to inspect this luxuriously-appointed establishment.

With expenditure of many thousand dollars, just how many Edgar Masur, owner and manager, does not care to state, the establishment has been completely revamped from an old style men's store into one that will bear favorable comparison with stores of this nature in larger cities of the country. The work started February 27 last and has been continued steadily but without the loss of a single day's business which proceeded uninterrupted.

The visitor is greeted with a brilliantly-lighted show window with tile floor, new model bases and complete new background. Plate glass windows are large and afford ample opportunity for the showing of latest designs in men's and boys' apparel. Beautiful marble baseboards form a pleasing setting for window displays. In large letters in the entryway flooring is the well known firm name of "D. Masur and Sons."

Inside the store the evenly displayed latest model fluorescent lighting sets off to best advantage the tan and rose color scheme. Walls, floor and ceiling are of a pleasing tan color. The woodwork is of zebra wood which is imported from South America. Ceiling is of asbestos and flooring of tile.

Both heating and air-conditioning are furnished by the Natural Gas company, one operating unit serving for both purposes.

The general contract for the work was awarded to Bill Hibbard; the lighting was furnished by the Albritton Electric company, and painting by R. A. Gossett.

The leading lines of clothing and shoes are handled by this store and a man and boy can find here everything that he needs in wearing apparel without being compelled to seek elsewhere, stated Mr. Masur.

In clothing the famous Hart Schaffner and Marx popular and dependable lines are featured. So are Campus Tops, Cloth Craft for men, boys' Sawyer liner, Manhattan shirts and pajamas, Interwoven sox, Stetson and Dunlap hats, Wimberly Nor-East ties, Walk-Over, Edwin Clapp and Jarman shoes, while boys' popular Sky Rider shoes are also sold by this store.

This old established company was formed back in 1889 as Goldman and Masur, making it rank as one of the oldest concerns in this section that have been in continuous operation. After a period of time, the firm became D. Masur and Sons. Several years ago Edgar Masur purchased the interest of his brother, Herman Masur, and has since owned and operated it exclusively but there has been no change in the name which had become a household word for many decades.

Among the number of employees may be mentioned: J. C. Dollar, Louis Goldman, Carl Skinner Mrs. Charles Saltzman and Mrs. L. Myers.

The public is invited to inspect the store on Monday night and all who come will sign a guest book. Later some fortunate one will receive a handsome grand prize as tribute to having attended the opening event.

"Funzappin'" is a three-act musical comedy, consisting entirely of home talent. It is being coached by Miss Esther Thompson.

The committee in charge, with the aid of Miss Thompson feel that they have succeeded in securing the best talent available in Bastrop for this production. The cast and choruses are rehearsing daily to make this one of the best home talent plays ever to be presented in this city.

44 MORE CZECHS ARE SLAUGHTERED

"protector" for Bohemia and Moravia, the German-ruled remnants of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

All of those executed were accused of either failing to register with the police or harboring or aiding unregistered persons accused of anti-German activities.

The Prague announcement followed a broadcast by Dr. Emil Hacha, puppet president of the protectorate, who blamed former president Eduard Benes, who now is in exile in London, for the shooting of Heydrich, hated "Henke" hangman of the Gestapo.

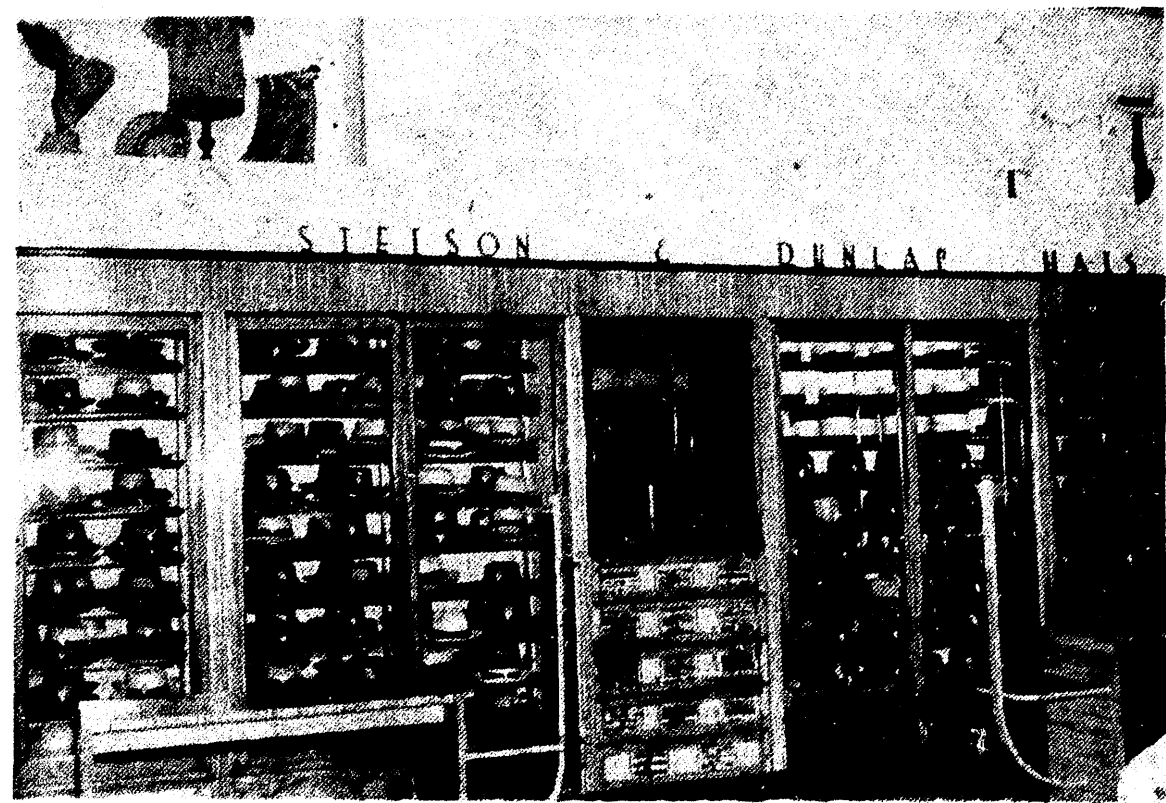

The executions today were carried out of Prague and Brunn, said the announcement from the former Czech capital. The youngest victim was 18 years old, the others included two former officers of the Czech army and a public prosecutor. The state confiscated the victims' property.

"Der Henke" whose cold orders have resulted in the deaths of several hundred resistance and innocent hostages in occupied France—was reported in serious condition and injured so severely that should he live he probably would be forever a crippled invalid.

"Most reports agree that he is unlikely ever to make a complete recovery," the BBC declared.

Mass arrests were reported continuing in Prague capital of Czechoslovakia when "The Protector" was attacked on Wednesday. The state of emergency in which all Czech males relief, schools and hospitals. One plan outlining proposed expenditures for the next two years would require the sales tax and besides permitting present state services to continue, would permit additional expenditures for hospitals and old age pensions.

His other proposed appropriations plan is more modest, containing 30 per cent appropriation cuts, but the chief executive has pointed out these would mean elimination of services to 4,000 hospital patients daily, 2,400 college students, 700 trades school students, and 19,000 present welfare cases, besides other sharp curtailments.

Stalemate progress in bringing the administration's proposed new reorganization plans up for a vote in the house is the difference of opinion over conflicting bills which would reorganize the present institutions department.

The administration bill concerning the institutions department is said to remove present powers from the institutions department's citizen board, which has taken a lively interest in the conduct of affairs at state hospitals, asylums and detentive institutions.

The other proposed institutions department bill, introduced by Mrs. Beatrice Hawthorne Moore, representative from Caddo parish, would largely vest control over the department in the citizen board which would name the department's director, now appointed by the governor, who would have the same appointive power under the administration bill's provisions.

Mrs. Moore contends state institutions would be better administered with ultimate authority vested in the citizen board than with full power lodged with one man, the director named by the governor. She says her bill, already approved by the house committee on charitable institutions of which she is chairman, will come up soon for a final vote by the house.

Administration House Leader Fred J. Heintz of Covington had been waiting on a final showdown on Mrs. Moore's bill before bringing the other reorganization bills out from a judiciary committee for house voting.

With reports current that political lines are being tightly drawn in the house, after the administration apparently emerged with a permanently motionless majority in the senate in initial skirmishes there, the results of house voting either on the proposed sales tax or reorganization proposals is held by observers to be highly doubtful.

As respects the tax, however, leaders felt solons would rather face the music by increasing taxes than the much louder reverberations expected to arise should present state services be allowed to go without proper financing.

Part of the state's present financial troubles arise from the fact the 1940 legislature appropriated more money than was in sight but Governor Jones clearly has indicated there would be no repetition of this, as he intends to veto any appropriations for which there are no revenues forthcoming.

With Sunday night the deadline for introduction of bills, several hundred additional proposals are expected to be dumped into the legislature's lap. Bills thereafter may only be introduced by special legislative permission in cases of extraordinary situation, or by substitute for bills already before the assembly.

After Sunday night will come the long grind of committee hearings and consideration of measures on the floor of the house and senate.

defenders of Bir Hacheim sent this word to headquarters:

"We have beaten three battalions of Italians. Send us more."

Hitler's boast that the Kharkov battle had ended "in proud victory of annihilation" was the third German victory claim for that area in a week.

But the extravagant tone of the special communique from the high command had all the hallmarks of propaganda to allay the anxiety of the home front, hungry for promised victory and saddened by the heavy and ever increasing casualties.

The Germans said the Russian sixth, ninth and 57th armies were annihilated; 240,000 prisoners taken, 1,240 tanks destroyed or captured and 538 planes and vast other materiel destroyed or seized.

The Russians spoke of "defensive battles" still being fought in the Lyum-Barvenkova region, 80 miles south of Kharkov, and of 2,000 Germans and 113 planes destroyed. Of another German claim that "the annihilation of encircled enemy forces" on the central front before Moscow was continuing.

The Russians said nothing.

Kinawa, the provincial capital of the eastern province of Chekiang, was lost by the Chinese Thursday but the Japanese had paid heavily in lives in repeated assaults necessary to reduce the city, the Chinese said officially.

Europe's western war front flamed violently again as the P. A. F. attacked heavily after a pause of two weeks.

The main targets were in the Paris suburbs and included the Gnome-Rhone engine plant, the former Goodrich rubber works and other factories. Eight ships in a German convoy off the Dutch coast were hit by bombs, and at least four were reported set afire. The ships were bound for Norway and Finland.

Railways in northern France and the Cherbourg and Dieppe docks were blasted in the light of a bomber's moon. The British lost 13 planes, but shot down seven of 50 German raiders which attacked Grimsby and Great Yarmouth.

The German-dominated Vichy government said 80 were killed and 200 wounded in the Paris industrial suburbs.

Hitler addressed 10,000 German cadres and officers in Berlin while his gasapo tried unsuccessfully to track down the assassins of Heydrich, one of his favorites. The Fuehrer issued special orders for Czechoslovakia, probably bloody ones.

A story gaining currency in occupied Europe, London said, was that Heydrich might have been the victim of a Nazi purge. It was whispered that "Der Henke" was in league with the German army and industrialists and hatching a plot to overthrow Hitler and the Nazi party in favor of a form of Communism.

Heydrich may die, or he may spend the rest of his days in a wheelchair with plenty of time to reflect on the orders by which he has sent hundreds to their death before gestapo firing squads.

MUCH METAL SHIPPED NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—(AP)—R. Saunders, secretary of the Louisiana Salvage for Victory campaign, said today that enough scrap metal had been shipped out of the state in the past four months to build seven battleships or more than 3,000 tanks. During that period, he announced, 128,000,000 pounds of metal scrap was collected and shipped to steel mills, of which 40,000,000 pounds moved in April.

From many parts of the nation, particularly in the east where gasoline rationing is in effect, come reports that motor traffic had subsided substantially, while railroads and bus lines reported their depots were jammed.

Only in Pennsylvania was motor travel back to pre rationing normal. In Philadelphia, Police Inspector Herbert K. Hennen, chief of the foot and mounted traffic forces, said traffic in the city had gone down 15 per cent a week ago but said he had quoted to what might be called back to normal. Manager Joseph Costello of the Delaware river bridge said bridge traffic had increased. An accelerated rushup on reported rationing violations was under way.

Traffic was light in Kentucky. A race, one in that state, followed the Memorial day holiday for the duration. Part of the reduction in highway motoring was blamed on the cancellation of the 500-mile speedway races. Railroad reported that 30 per cent more cars had been hauled than in the past week.

It seems fantastic to say that a battle in Russia in which at least a million men are engaged might be merely a "local action," a tactical rather than a strategic engagement. Official Russian and German reports from the Kharkov region are so utterly at variance, however, that there is no possibility of reconciling them to get a true perspective on this monster battle.

It certainly does not yet mean that either the Russians or the Germans have committed themselves to an all-out offensive. It is still uncertain whether the preliminary German thrust in the Kerch isthmus was designed as a distraction to cover Nazi preparations to move in the eastern Mediterranean, or as a first step in a major effort to overrun the Caucasus and seize its oil treasures.

There are strong indications that Marshal Timoshenko was convinced it was against the Caucasus that Hitler was preparing to strike. His Kharkov offensive appeared intended to disrupt that Nazi design before it could be executed.

Timoshenko's success or failure cannot be measured alone in terms of territory lost or won. The extent to which he has exhausted the winter-gathered German resources for a major offensive on any front must remain an unknown and dominant factor in the war picture.

Among other possibilities underlying Russian strategy of the moment is always that of luring the foe into a major effort on the eastern front as the essential preliminary to the opening of an Anglo-American second front in the west.

There is no reasonable probability of a second front attack until it is certain that Hitler is committed beyond recall to major offensive operations in Russia or elsewhere in the east. Russia's western allies are making ready, but biding their time. They have made no definite commitment yet beyond the British air offensive, soon to be supplemented by American planes.

Bonnet's new Italian offensive has not developed sufficiently yet to afford a definite clue to its objectives or scope, although behind it may be the expectation of luring British forces in North Africa into major operations and away from the eastern Mediterranean and protection of the road to Suez through or around Turkey.

About all that can yet be said is that within the next three months many of the its, ands and buts of today over Nazi intentions and Allied preparations must disappear.

"protector" for Bohemia and Moravia, the German-ruled remnants of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

All of those executed were accused of either failing to register with the police or harboring or aiding unregistered persons accused of anti-German activities.

The Prague announcement followed a broadcast by Dr. Emil Hacha, puppet president of the protectorate, who blamed former president Eduard Benes, who now is in exile in London, for the shooting of Heydrich, hated "Henker"—hangman—of the Gestapo.

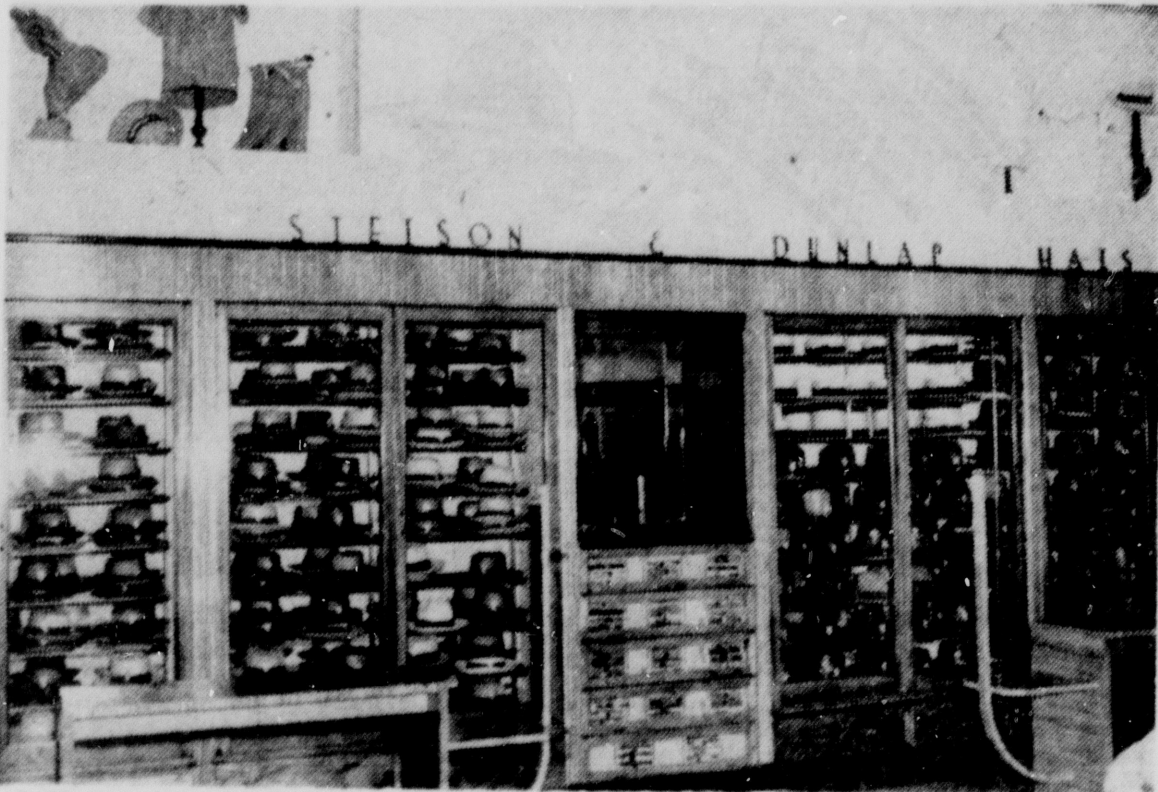

The executions today were carried out of Prague and Brunn, said the announcement from the former Czech capital. The youngest victim was 18 years old; the others included two former officers of the Czech army and a public prosecutor. The state confiscated the victims' property.

"Der Henker"—whose cold orders have resulted in the deaths of several hundred resisters and innocent hostages in occupied France—was reported in serious condition and injured so severely that should he live he probably would be forever a crippled invalid.

"Most reports agree that he is unlikely ever to make a complete recovery," the BBC declared.

Mass arrests were reported continuing in Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia when "The Protector" was attacked on Wednesday. The state of emergency in which all Czech males relief, schools and hospitals. One plan outlining proposed expenditures for the next two years would require the sales tax and besides permitting present state services to continue, would permit additional expenditures for hospitals and old age pensions.

His other proposed appropriations plan is more modest, containing 30 per cent appropriation cuts, but the chief executive has pointed out these would mean elimination of services to 4,000 hospital patients daily, 2,400 college students, 700 trades school students, and 19,000 present welfare cases, besides other sharp curtailments.

Stalemate progress in bringing the administration's proposed new reorganization plans up for a vote in the house is the difference of opinion over conflicting bills which would reorganize the present institutions department.

The administration bill concerning the institutions department is said to remove present powers from the institutions department's citizen board, which has taken a lively interest in the conduct of affairs at state hospitals, asylums and detention institutions.

In Nebraska, a farmer was killed when a tractor overturned while he was planting corn. In Michigan, one person was electrocuted, another lost his life when a building collapsed during a storm. One person was fatally shot in Missouri, and one in Illinois. In South Carolina, there was a fatal stabbing.

From many parts of the nation, particularly in the east where gasoline rationing is in effect, came reports that motor traffic had subsided substantially, while railroads and bus lines reported their depots were jammed.

Only in Pennsylvania was motor travel back to pre-rationing normal. In Philadelphia, Police Inspector Herbert Kitchenman, chief of the foot and mounted traffic forces, said traffic in the city had gone down 15 per cent a week ago but suddenly had spurred to "what might be called back to normal." Manager Joseph Costello of the Delaware river bridge said bridge traffic had increased. An accelerated checkup on reported rationing violations was under way.

Traffic was light in Kentucky. A new law in that state banned the Memorial day holiday for the duration. Part of the reduction in Indiana motoring was blamed on the cancellation of the 500-mile speedway races. Railroads reported five to 50 per cent rises over last year's rail travel, which was heavy.

defenders of Bir Hacheim sent this word to headquarters:

"We have beaten three battalions of Italians. Send us more."

Hitler's boast that the Kharkov battle had ended "in proud victory of annihilation" was the third German victory claim for that area in a week.

But the extravagant tone of the special communique from the high command had all the hallmarks of propaganda to allay the anxiety of the home front, hungry for promised victory and saddened by the heavy and ever increasing casualties.

The Germans said the Russian sixth, ninth and 37th armies were annihilated, 240,000 prisoners taken, 1,249 tanks destroyed or captured and 538 planes and vast other material destroyed or seized.

The Russians spoke of "defensive battles" still being fought in the Izyum-Barvenkova region, 80 miles south of Kharkov, and of 2,000 Germans and 113 planes destroyed. Of another German claim that "the annihilation of encircled enemy forces" on the central front before Moscow was continuing, the Russians said nothing.

Kinshwa, the provincial capital of the eastern province of Chekiang, was lost by the Chinese Thursday but the Japanese had paid heavily in lives in repeated assaults necessary to reduce the city, the Chinese said officially.

Europe's western air front flamed violently again as the R. A. F. attacked heavily after a pause of two weeks.

The main targets were in the Paris suburbs and included the Gnome-Rhone engine plant, the former Goodrich rubber works and other factories. Eight ships in a German convoy off the Dutch coast were hit by bombs, and at least four were reported set afire. The ships were bound for Norway and Finland.

Railways in northern France and the Cherbourg and Dieppe docks were blasted in the light of a bomber's moon. The British lost 13 planes, but shot down seven of 50 German raiders which attacked Grimsby and Great Yarmouth. The German-dominated Vichy government said 80 were killed and 200 wounded in the Paris industrial suburbs.

Hitler addressed 10,000 German cadets and officers in Berlin while his gestapo tried unsuccessfully to track down the assassins of Heydrich, one of his favorites. The Fuehrer issued special orders for Czechoslovakia, probably bloody ones.

A story gaining currency in occupied Europe, London said, was that Heydrich might have been the victim of a Nazi purge. It was whispered that "Der Henker" was in league with the German army and industrialists and hatching a plot to overthrow Hitler and the Nazi party in favor of a form of Communism.

Heydrich may die, or he may spend the rest of his days in a wheelchair with plenty of time to reflect on the orders by which he has sent hundreds to their death before gestapo firing squads.

MUCH METAL SHIPPED

NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—(AP)—R. Saunders, secretary of the Louisiana Salvage for Victory campaign, said today that enough scrap metal had been shipped out of the state in the past four months to build seven battleships or more than 3,000 tanks. During that period, he announced, 128,000,000 pounds of metal scrap was collected and shipped to steel mills, of which 40,000,000 pounds moved in April.

It seems fantastic to say that a battle in Russia in which at least a million men are engaged might be merely a "local action" — a tactical rather than a strategic engagement. Official Russian and German reports from the Kharkov region are so utterly at variance, however, that there is no possibility of reconciling them to get a true perspective on this monster battle.

It certainly does not yet mean that either the Russians or the Germans have committed themselves to an all-out offensive. It is still uncertain whether the preliminary German thrust in the Kerch isthmus was designed as a distraction to cover Nazi preparations to move in the eastern Mediterranean, or as a first step in a major effort to overrun the Caucasus and seize its oil treasures.

There are strong indications that Marshal Timoshenko was convinced it was against the Caucasus that Hitler was preparing to strike. His Kharkov offensive appeared intended to disrupt that Nazi design before it could be executed.

Timoshenko's success or failure cannot be measured alone in terms of territory lost or won. The extent to which he has exhausted the winter-gathered German resources for a major offensive on any front must remain an unknown and dominant factor in the war picture.

Among other possibilities underlying Russian strategy of the moment is always that of luring the foe into a major effort to overrun the Caucasus as the essential preliminary to the opening of an Anglo-American second front in the west.

There is no reasonable probability of a second front attack until it is certain that Hitler is committed beyond recall to major offensive operations in Russia or elsewhere in the east. Russia's western allies are making ready, but biding their time. They have made no definite commitment yet beyond the British air offensive, soon to be supplemented by American planes.

Rommel's new Libyan offensive has not developed sufficiently yet to afford a definite clue to its objectives or scope, although behind it may lie the expectation of luring British forces in North Africa into major operations and away from the eastern Mediterranean and protection of the road to Suez through or around Turkey.

About all that can yet be said is that within the next three months many of the ifs, ands and buts of today over Nazi intentions and Allied preparations must disappear.

BRITISH NURSES LIKE SOLDIERS

American Fighters Break Reserve Of Hospital Staff

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.—(Special)—American soldiers hospitalized in Northern Ireland have won the hearts of the usually reserved British nurses with their easy friendliness and good humor.

The British nurses, perplexed at first by such salutations as "Hello, Sis," "Hiya, Duchess!" "Hello, Queen Bee!" have taken up American slang themselves and become fast friends of their American allies.

In the first report from hospitals in Northern Ireland received at Red Cross headquarters here, Miss Lusa Soul, American Red Cross representative in Great Britain, told of her visits to hospitals where Red Cross workers are stationed to help care for the American soldiers.

"At first the starchy British nurses, usually held in awe by their British patients, were puzzled and a little put out by the easy friendliness of the Americans," she said. "But now of them running to a bedside and even the matron twinkles with delight when she hears her nickname, 'Queen Bee,' called."

"Fortunately," Miss Soul said, "there have been very few bad cases of sickness among American troops. Distributing comforts to newly-arrived patients, sending cables and making small purchases have been the main tasks of the American Red Cross girls stationed at the hospitals."

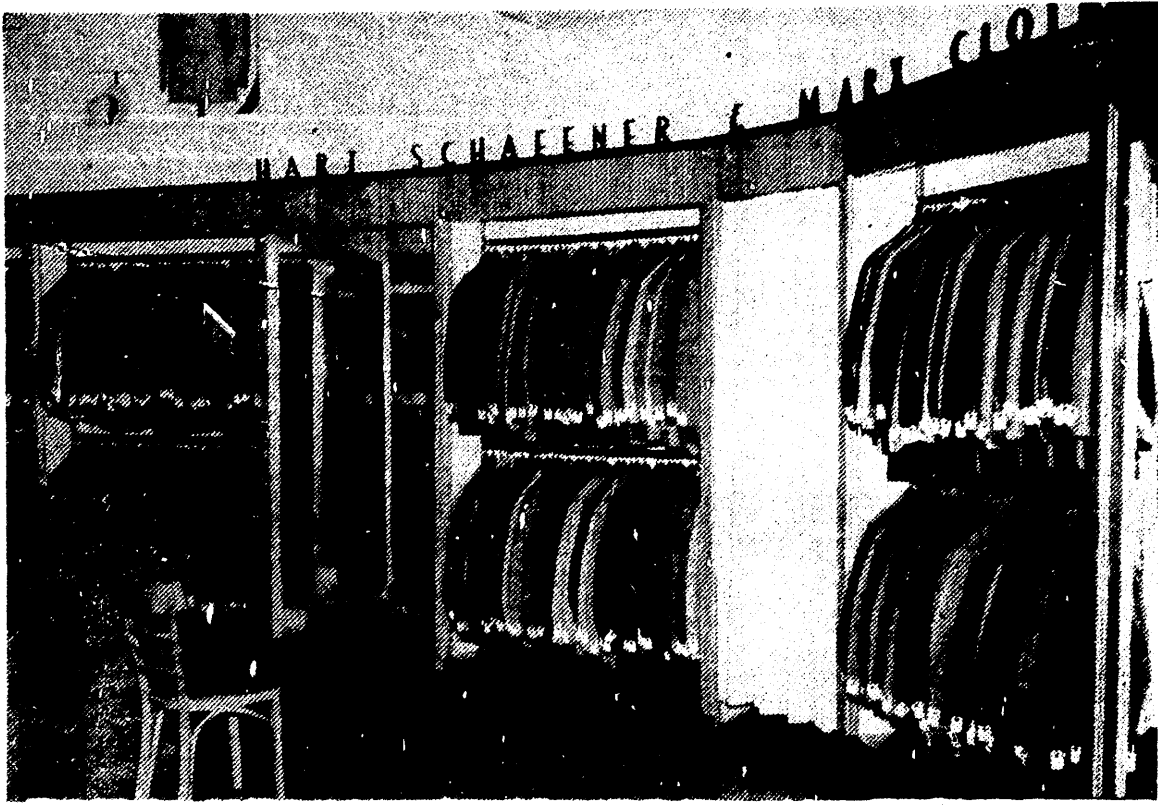

"Miss Nancy Mott Jones, of Nevada City, Calif., is the Red Cross recreation worker stationed at one Northern Ireland hospital. Her job is to maintain a recreation room at the hospital and to help keep the convalescent patients from getting bored. Nancy visits each ward every day, helps the soldiers with their problems and sings to the accompaniment of her ukelele."

In recalling a tour of duty which she spent with Miss Jones, Miss Soul said: "I went with Nancy to the surgical ward. Here British and American patients were mixed. Engaged in a lively argument were Private Fred Hugo, of New Jersey, and a short, dark curly-headed boy of 19, known to the ward as 'Tich.' Fred Hugo has a plaster cast on his right foot, the result, he told me, of a tussle with a case of bayonets in which the bayonets won."

"He also told me that he had a telephone call the night before from his sister, Elsie, who is a nurse at the American Red Cross-Harvard hospital at Salisbury, England."

"Tich" is known to the R. A. F.

as Sergeant Maurice Mines, and in spite of his youthfulness he is a veteran of this war. He was recovering from bad burns received when his plane crashed in taking off for a raid on Germany. He was almost cured, and so effective was the triple-dye treatment he received that his face was scarcely marked.

"Sitting on a chair between two doughboys from New Jersey, Private Joe Mancino, who had just had his appendix removed, and Private Pete Curie, was a red-headed Scotsman known to the ward, of course, as 'Jock.' His real name is Sergeant Houston, of the British army, and he had recently had his leg amputated as the result of an accident, but his voice was as good as ever and before long he was entertaining us with Scotch songs. Then out came Nancy's ukelele and a general sing-song got under way."

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO BE HOSPITABLE

The request is made that invitations to homes for dinner be extended to soldiers who attend church today.

The boys are, however, they are most of them far from home, the public is asked to show their kindly spirit by extending courtesies at a time like this.

Symphony No. 5, in E Minor ("From The New World") (Dvorak, Op. 95) (M-DM-490)—This symphony, inspired by and dedicated to the New World, is strongly reminiscent of the Old World. The influence of Dvorak's native Bohemia is felt in the rhythms and melodies, typical of the folk tunes of central Europe, which make their appearance impulsively throughout the symphony. Nevertheless, its strange and beautiful themes can be traced directly to the music of the American Indian and the plantation songs of the negro. The "Largo" or second movement of the "New World" symphony is familiarly known as "Goin' Home"—in negro spiritual form.

One of the most popular works in the entire symphony literature is the "New World" symphony has become a "must" in the repertoire of the Rochester Philharmonic orchestra wherever it appears under Mr. Durbin's direction.

The Barber of Seville (Rossini). A Victor Recordrama (M-DM-496)—Here is perhaps the most beloved of operatic works, in the most complete operatic recording ever done in this country. One can almost see the handsome, dashing and mischievous Figaro, the charmingly rebellious Rosina, the lovelorn Count Almaviva tripping gaily out of the door as they resolve to the whirling pace of this famous opera buffa. "The Barber of Seville" was the first opera to be sung in Italian in New York; the performance took place at the Park theater, November 23, 1827, by the then famous Garcia company. The title role was sung by none other than its creator, the great Manuel del Pópulo, Vicente Garcia.

The cast also included his daughter, Malibran (afterwards the great Malibran) as Rosina, and Manuel, Jr., as Almaviva. Lorenzo de Ponte was an interested spectator at this performance, in which he had a two-fold interest—as librettist and as an investor. The principals in this newly recorded performance are worthy successors to the great singers of a century ago, who created the fascinating characters of the opera. They are all young in years, yet are seasoned performers, having sung major roles in the great opera houses of North and South America. With the Charles L. Wagner company they toured the country successfully for two full seasons and will continue their tour to meet the great demand for their performances. Each and every member of the cast worked devotedly for two full days (some of them singing Met performances in the evening) to make this album. The orchestra is composed of leading members of the Metropolitan Opera company's orchestra.

Maestro Balthussek, who needs no introduction here, and a member of RCA Victor's recording and repertoire staff, arranged the score, retaining the high-lights and those portions of the opera they considered essential to its continuity. The album is decorated with a stunningly effective art cover. In accordance with the Recordrama idea, inside the album covers are spread the story of the opera, the text, reproductions of famous paintings showing scenes from the "Barber," and photographs taken during the recording session.

Rondo in B Minor for piano and violin (Schubert, Op. 70). Hepzibah and Yehudi Menuhin.—The young Menuhins, whose collaboration has made musical history the world over, record here Schubert's Rondo in B Minor. To our knowledge, this is a first recording anywhere of this delightful and melodious work, one of the few in this form by the great master of song.

THE HIGH COST OF COMPLACENCY

There is no progress for the smug and self-satisfied.

Any business firm . . . (or individual, for that matter) . . . who becomes complacent . . . GOES BACKWARDS.

We've been doing business with D. Masur & Sons for many years, and one of the greatest tributes we can pay this 54-year-old organization is to say that there isn't an ounce of complacency, of smugness, or of self-satisfaction in a carload!

As a matter of fact, Masur's are one of the most progressive and hard-working firms we have on our books. And we're proud to be associated with them—always have been!

But we're particularly proud to be associated with them right now, as they open their modern, streamlined store—one of the finest in Louisiana. One of the finest in the whole South, as far as that goes.

All we can say is that here is a firm whose whole background for more than half a century has spelled PROGRESS . . . in capital letters. Hart Schaffner & Marx have made a little progress themselves in their 56 years in business, and as one successful firm to another, we propose this toast—

Maestro Bamboschek, who needs no introduction here, and a member of RCA Victor's recording and repertoire staff, arranged the score, retaining the high-lights and those portions of the opera they considered essential to its continuity.

The album is decorated with a stunningly effective art cover. In accordance with the Recordrama idea, inside the album covers are spread the story of the opera, the text, reproductions of famous paintings showing scenes from the "Barber," and photographs taken during the recording session.

USO GOAL NOT YET REALIZED

Sum Of $1,000 Is Needed To Raise Quota Established

While Monroe welcomed soldiers Saturday with open arms, the USO drive for the soldiers drew to a virtual close. Total donations for the entire parish reported up to Saturday were $11,447.96 which is approximately $1,000 short of the quota set. Headquarters at Hotel Frances have been closed. All future reports and donations should be made to Robert Cowden, parish USO treasurer, at the Ouachita National bank.

W. W. Kellogg, chairman of the drive, stated that several workers have as yet not reported, so that some additional funds are expected. While expressing disappointment that the goal is not achieved, Mr. Kellogg stated that he wishes to thank the many persons who have given of their time for this work, as well as citizens who have given their money for the cause. He urged that those who have not given do so through Mr. Cowden at the Ouachita bank.

THE HIGH COST OF COMPLACENCY

There is no progress for the smug and self-satisfied.

Any business firm . . . (or individual, for that matter) . . . who becomes complacent . . . GOES BACKWARDS.

We've been doing business with D. Masur & Sons for many years, and one of the greatest tributes we can pay this 54-year-old organization is to say that there isn't an ounce of complacency, of smugness, or of self-satisfaction in a carload!

As a matter of fact, Masur's are one of the most progressive and hard-working firms we have on our books. And we're proud to be associated with them—always have been!

But we're particularly proud to be associated with them right now, as they open their modern, streamlined store—one of the finest in Louisiana. One of the finest in the whole South, as far as that goes.

All we can say is that here is a firm whose whole background for more than half a century has spelled PROGRESS . . . in capital letters. Hart Schaffner & Marx have made a little progress themselves in their 56 years in business, and as one successful firm to another, we propose this toast—capital area. President Roosevelt abandoned his policy of no public appearances, to review the spectacle.

Across the river, nearby the tomb of the unknown soldier, the usual Memorial day services were held. Sumner Welles, under-secretary of state, asserted that the abolition of race, color and religious discrimination, and dealing justice to those responsible for the war were among America's peace aims.

The men who are fighting the war will insist on that, he said, together with immediate disarmament of any nations which may threaten aggression.

"I believe," he said, "that they will demand that the United Nations become the nucleus of a world organization of the future to determine the final terms of a just, and honest, and a durable peace to be entered into after the passing of the period of social and economic chaos which will come inevitably upon the termination of the present war, and after the completion of the initial and gigantic task of relief, of reconstruction and of rehabilitation which will confront the United Nations at the time of the armistice."

Meanwhile, Undersecretary of War Robert D. Patterson, addressing the graduating class of Bowdoin College at Brunswick, Me., said the army was expanding toward an immediate goal of 4,600,000 men.

"We face the future determined to gain an early victory over our enemies," he said. "With our great resources and manpower and with the courageous spirit of free people, we cannot fail."

In London, Ambassador John G. Winant led resident Americans in Memorial day observances. The American Legion placed a wreath at the base of the cenotaph, British World War memorial, and flowers were laid before the statue of Abraham Lincoln in Westminster.

American troops in northern Ireland held services at the graves of four of their comrades who have died since the units reached Ulster.

DAY OBSERVED BY AMERICAN SOLDIERS

LONDON, May 30.—American soldiers paused today in their preparations for battle on the European continent to honor their comrades who already have lost their lives.

Over four new graves marked by white wooden crosses at the foot of one of the green hills of northern Ireland, a company of American fired a salute, a band played a dirge, and a chaplain read a service for the dead.

The graves were those of Corporal Earl Perkins of Akron, Minn., and Private John Strang of St. Paul, Minn., killed in action at the battle of Bannockburn, and Corporal Joseph Mikewicz of Springfield, Mass.

Services also were conducted in each American camp in Ulster, while a service attended a special cathedral service in Belfast.

On Great Britain's Rock of Gibraltar, similar ceremonies which collect rain for the principal sources of water.

solid his $150,000 yacht Infanta for $77,500. He had paid off most of his creditors. He would have paid every cent had his health permitted him to make two more pictures, said his attorney. John had contracts for those two, but was unable to undergo the strain.

He had earned millions, but he spent freely, gave freely, looked forward to his death. He knew could not repay him.

At John's bedside when he died was only one relative, Lionel, himself not well and using crutches, because of a fractured hip. Also present were his wife, Mrs. Gene Fowler, and his daughter, Miss Gene Fowler.

Daughter Diana, busy making her second movie, was in an ambulance. It was her second visit, since her father was stricken. She is the daughter of his second wife, actress Michael Strange, now Mrs. Harrison Tweed.

His children by Dolores Costello, his third wife, had not seen their father in months. They are Dolores Elaine May Barrymore, 12, and John, 10. The Barrymores, in Miss Costello kept in close touch by telephone, but did not visit the hospital.

His fourth wife, Elaine Barrie Barrymore, telephoned periodically until she died, presumably for New York.

The first Mrs. Barrymore, Katherine Costello Barrymore, died some years ago.

John, 48, at John's request, remained in Boston to close a play to night. Press representatives said she was "terribly cut up." She had kept in touch with her brother by telephone.

Funeral rites probably will be conducted Monday. Lionel said there would be a simple, private service in the chapel of Calvary cemetery.

John returned to the Catholic faith shortly before he died, "renewing an old acquaintance" after many years' absence from the church.

The sold their liberty and their lives most dearly.

"The spirit of those officers and men is still alive. That is being proved today in Houston, in all Texas, in all America. Not one of us doubts that the thousand naval recruits sworn in today will carry on with the same determined spirit shown by the gallant men who have gone before them. Not one of us doubts that every true Texan and every true American will back up these new fighting men, and all our fighting men, with all our hearts and all our efforts."

Our enemies have given us the chance to prove that there will be another U. S. S. Houston, and yet another U. S. S. Houston, if that becomes necessary, and still another U. S. S. Houston as long as American ideals are in jeopardy. Our enemies have given us the chance to prove that an attack on peace-loving but proud Americans is the very gravest of all mistakes.

"The officers and men of the U. S. S. Houston have placed us all in their debt by winning a part of the victory which is our common goal. Revere it, and with all humility, we acknowledge this debt. To those officers and men, wherever they may be, we give our solemn pledge that the debt will be paid in full."

river to its channel as it meets the Gulf.

The greatest disaster was the death of 36 men aboard one ship, while 27 died on the ship lost at the river's mouth. No lives were lost aboard the first two ships sunk on May 6, but deaths occurred on all the others attacked. All the ships were American except one Norwegian and one Honduran.

The eighth naval district's area extends from the western part of Florida to Brownsville, Texas.

In addition to the first two ships sunk May 6, other attacks occurred on May 8, 10, 12, two on May 13, 15, two on May 16, 18, two on May 19, and May 23.

Almost without exception, armed ships were sunk without warning and without the submarine ever being sighted, while in some cases, unarmed ships were badly approached and attacked by deck guns. Many of the sinkings occurred in broad daylight. Counter offensive efforts by the navy are not reported.

Best estimates are that there were from three to six submarines at work in the Gulf waters, this fact being indicated by the nature of the attacks and distance of the activity.

In the latest sinking reported today, 22 men were blown to pieces when a torpedo exploded alongside a medium sized cargo vessel just as their lifboat had shoved off. By the narrowest of chances two men in the lifboat, although blown high into the air, managed to save themselves, and are in the Marine hospital here.

They were second officer Frank A. Santina of Montclair, N. J., and Kurt Wilhelm Gonska of Severn, Md. Gonska's arm was crushed badly and later amputated. Santina managed to help him stay afloat until the men were picked up by another lifboat that got clear before the torpedo struck.

shenko's attack in the Kharkov sector on May 12 was not to capture the great industrial city itself but to forestall an imminent German offensive against Rostov, which the Nazis captured last fall but couldn't hold.

"Sometime ago the Soviet high command learned about German plans for operations of German Fascist troops in the sector of the Rostov front," the special announcement said.

"On this sector of the front the German command recently concentrated not less than 30 infantry divisions, six tank divisions (more than a half million men) and a large quantity of artillery and planes.

"In order to forestall the blow of the German Fascists, troops of the Soviet command started offensive operations in the Kharkov direction without including Kharkov in their plans.

"In the course of two weeks on this sector of the front fierce fighting has been going on. Now that the battles are nearing their end, it can be said the main task put forward by the Soviet command—to forestall the blow of the German Fascist troops—has been completed. . . ."

The regular midnight communique reported Soviet forces were continuing to repulse German tank and infantry attacks in the Barvenkova sector, southeast of Kharkov.

A Soviet ship in the Barents sea was credited with sinking a German submarine.

With the Kharkov front quieting down, the struggle in the Ukraine today was concentrated primarily on a 2½-square-mile bridgehead held by the Red army on the German side of a river in the Izum-Barvenkova sector.

A Russian announcement said the Red army was waging a defensive fight against enemy tanks and infantry in this sector, with nothing of moment to report elsewhere on the front.

In the Kharkov sector about 80 miles to the north, Soviet dispatches said the Russian forces were continuing to consolidate the positions they won in more than two weeks of a massive offensive. Light attacks by German scouting parties were reported repulsed.

The Germans were declared to be generally on the defensive in the Izum-Barvenkova sector, despite their persistent efforts to eject the Russians from the right bank of the river.

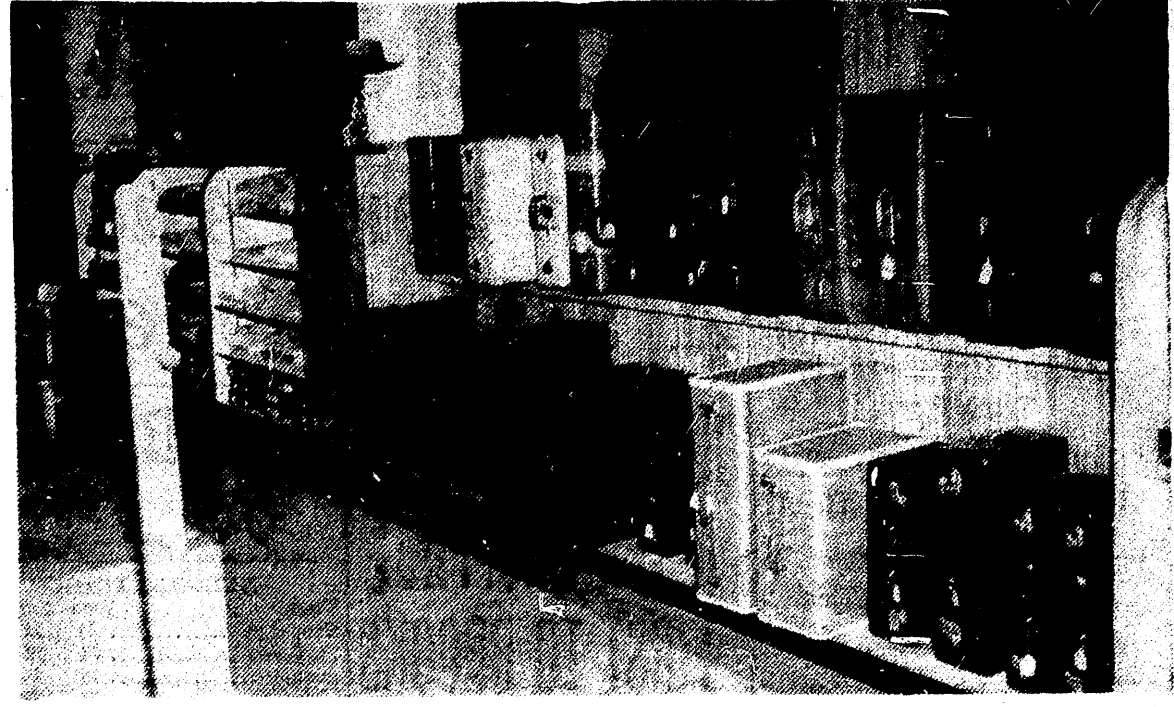

The Russians, firmly situated on the left bank, were reported maintaining their right-bank foothold in a dense forest that has been strongly fortified.

Two German battalions which attacked were reported repulsed with loss of 1,400 men.

The next move in the giant test of strength and endurance was not clear, but Red Star reported that the Soviet air force was carrying the fight to the Nazis in raids deep to the rear and had destroyed 22 German planes in a single attack on an airbase.

(The Germans climaxed their recently more optimistic reports on the

(The Germans also reported that attacking Russian troops said to have been encircled on the central front west of Moscow were being wiped out. Russian report mentioned no important action in that sector.)

A Russian communique said 54 Nazi tanks had been destroyed and some 2,000 Germans killed in new engagements still apparently dominated by the action in the Izum-Barvenkova sector.

ENGINEERS TAKE GAME AT CASINO PARK ON FORFEIT

Tank Busters Fail To Return

SERVICE NINES TO PLAY
TWIN BILL HERE TODAY

First Contest Is Scheduled To Begin At 2 O'Clock This Afternoon

Two United States army baseball teams, the 23rd Engineers of Camp Polk and the 625th Tank Destroyers of Camp Livingston, battled ten innings to a 7-and-7 deadlock at Casino park here yesterday afternoon, and then, in the tenth, the Engineers

TWO GAMES TODAY

The 23rd Engineers of Camp Polk and the 625th Tank Destroyers of Camp Livingston will clash again this afternoon in a double header at Casino park. The first contest is scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock.

A fairly good crowd turned out for yesterday's skirmish, and an even bigger attendance is expected today. All proceeds of the contests will go to the Recreation Defense council for the entertainment of soldiers visiting in Monroe and West Monroe.

were declared winners by forfeit, 9 to 0, when the Tank Busters failed to return to play after disputing an umpire's decision.

Despite the umpire's decision that nullified a Tank Buster run in the tenth, the Camp Livingston soldiers left the park declaring they had won, 8 to 7.

The game was tied 7-and-7 when the Tank Destroyers, playing as the "home team," came to bat in the last half of the inning. Hank Tank Koczan led off with a single and Pitcher Bill Kienzie drew a base on balls.

Then, with runners on first and second, Eddie French, of Brooklyn who has had trouble with the Dodgers, bunted to Pitcher Brinkerhoff. Brinkerhoff faked to third and second to keep the runners from leaving those bases and then threw wild to first in an effort to get French, and the bad throw allowed Koczan to come home.

But, Umpire James O'Neill, who served six years as an umpire in the Mid-Atlantic league before the army got him, nullified everything that happened from the moment French bunted. He maintained the Tank Buster had illegally batted the ball by first stepping out of the batter's box before hitting. Umpire O'Neill said the ball was automatically dead when French hit it and the runners could not legally advance.

The ump ordered the teams to continue play and a heated argument followed. Several of the Tank Destroyers left the field while the argument was in progress, and when the Livingston aggression did not return to finish its turn at bat, Umpire O'Neill declared the forfeit.

It was the first time in 16 straight games that the Tank Destroyers had had a verdict against them. They had been undefeated this season. The Tank Destroyers took the lead with five unearned runs the first inning on a pair of errors, a base on balls to Jack Booth, the Bavarian Tiger, singles by Dick Cartmell and Tony Sember and a double against the left field wall by Koczan. Cartmell is a former Mandias college star of Staten Island, N. Y., and was an outstanding football fullback a few seasons ago. He reminded local fans of Merv Connors, the big first baseman who played with Texarkana in the Cotton States last year.

The Engineers tallied twice in the second inning on hits by "Stinkie" Wade, "Red" Frey and Outfielder Grier, and a fielder's choice on a grounder by Lester Wirkkala. Wade, playing the outfield yesterday, won 12 games and lost 10 as a hurler for Albany, N. Y., of the Eastern league last season. Frey played in the Eastern shore league last year, and Wirkkala performed last year with Toledo of the American association.

Singles by Tiny Modrosky, Tepondina and Fikkie Ficorotto, and the help of an error, gave the Engineers two more runs in the third. But Koczan singled in the fourth, went to third on Joe Baressi's single

Red Outfielders Suffer Injuries

CINCINNATI, May 30.—(AP)—Two Cincinnati Reds outfielders—Mike McCormick and Harry Craft—were carried from the field on stretchers in the second game of today's double header here with St. Louis.

McCormick may have suffered a fractured leg above the left ankle when he turned his foot against the bag trying to beat a force play at second base in the sixth inning after singling in two runs. He was taken to Christ hospital.

In the eighth inning Craft collided with Gee Walker as they tried to field Harry Walker's short fly. Walker had his hands on the ball, but dropped it in the collision. Craft's injuries were not immediately determined.

PENN STATE TEAM WINS TRACK MEET

Ewell Paces Nittany Lions To Triumph In I. C. 4-A Outdoor Events

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—Paced by their negro running and jumping star, Barney Ewell, Penn State's Nittany Lions rewrote the intercollegiate A. A. A. track and field book today as they added the outdoor crown to their indoor championship at Tri-borough stadium.

With Ewell reeling off his third straight triple in a climax to a brilliant career, the Pennsylvanians piled up 25½ points to outdistance the best athletes of the East and a small representation from the Mid-West and South. Here's what they did to the record book before a shirt-sleeved crowd of 5,000.

(1)—Ewell, winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes and broad jump, became first I. C. 4-A man to win three events in each of three years. His 12 association titles—indoors and out—also is tops. Barney also topped the record of eight outdoor titles won by Al Kraeelin of Penn year ago.

(2)—Went to the head of the class as the first school to win both the indoor and outdoor titles the same year.

(3)—Carried the first outdoor team trophy back to state college.

Ewell shattered two meet records in the dashes but because of a strong following and they will not be recognized. He stepped the century in 9.5, one-tenth of a second better than the mark he holds jointly with Frank Wykoff of Southern California, and high balled down the 220-yard straightaway in 20.5, two tenths of a second speedier than his own standard.

In between the dashes he took the broad jump title without competing as his qualifying leap of 24 ft. 6½ in., made yesterday, stood up.

Pittsburgh, with Bill Carter and Harold Stickle doing the bulk of the work, took second place with 19½ points, just a half point in front of New Hampshire's two-man team—Ed Styrna, the hammer and javelin king, and Barefoot Richmond, Morcom, who won the high jump and tied for the pole vault despite a leg injury.

Yale collected 18 points while New York University's defending champions got only 17. Colgate and Georgetown were next with 15 each as Al Blozis finished his college career undefeated in the shot and discus and Hugh Short nosed out Colgate's favored Al Diebolt in the quarter to give Georgetown all of its points.

Blozis established the only record as his qualifying mark of 55 ft. 4¾ inches, in the shot stood up as a new meet standard. He won the discus with a toss of 160 ft. 3¾ inches.

Leslie MacMittell's failure to finish in the money in defense of his half-mile crown gave New York University's title hopes a jolt. He could do no better than sixth after coming

Jinx Sticks On Whirlaway

By Sid Feder
NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—The "Cinderella horse" of the race tracks, Lou Lufano's Market Wise, made his jinx on Whirlaway stick today.

Before the greatest crowd ever to see a race in New York, Whirlaway had enough of his usual run in the stretch to pass every horse—except Market Wise. As a result, Warren Wright's chestnut filer finished second by a startling three lengths in the 56th running of the ancient Suburban handicap at Belmont park.

There was a gasp, then a roar, from 51,903 throats as the tall colt, who was picked up by Lou Lufano for $10,000 some 17 months ago—and has won well over $100,000 for the Long Island contractor up to now—picked a hole on the inside and didn't lose an inch to Whirlaway's famous kick all the way down the long straight run home.

In doing this—he zipped the last quarter mile in 24 3-5 seconds and the mile and a quarter in 2:01 4-5—the son of Broker's Tip hung it on Whirlaway for the second time in a row and halted, at least temporarily, little Mr. Big Tail's drive on Seabiscuit's moneywinning record.

SEES DARK FUTURE FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

War Has Written End To Them, Austrian Declares

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(P)—Dr. Theodore Schmidt, last president of the Austrian Olympic committee, says the war has written "finis" to the Olympic games as the world knows them.

Recalling that the 1944 games have been allotted to London, the 42-year-old Olympic chef du protocol said in an interview that "there is of course very little hope the games could be held even in the event of peace."

"I do not think there will be the necessary peace spirit in all nations, if there are some nations left," he said, and added that "even the continuation of the Olympic games as we know them is extremely doubtful because the world will be so changed."

For one thing, he said, the nationalist spirit—friendly but necessary upon which the games were built, might be non-existent in the post-war world.

He suggested that there was a possibility, however, that the peace treaty makers, recognizing the importance of sports in fostering peace, might include in the treaties provisions for a series of international contests patterned roughly after the Olympic model.

Yanks Take Two Games From Senators; Chicago And Cleveland Split

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—(P)—The Philadelphia Athletics ended a seven-game losing streak today by whipping the Boston Red Sox 5 to 4 in the second game of a doubleheader after dropping the first encounter, 10-6.

Crash Davis' first major league home run, hit off Yank Terry with one on base in the sixth inning, gave the A's their nightclub victory.

The Sox clinched the first game by driving Tex Shirley to cover and scoring six runs in the sixth inning.

WINNING TEAM PAYS OFF
COLUMBIA, Mo., May 30.—(P)—Missouri's football team will play in a debt-free stadium next fall, all because the 1941 Tigers won a Sugar Bowl berth.

Profits from the Sugar Bowl game will enable the athletic department to call in the last $15,000 in bonds and meet the interest payment of $5,250 on July 1. The $325,000 stadium was erected in 1927.

BIRMINGHAM DIRT AIDS PITCHERS

Umpire Harry S. (Steamboat) Johnson, colorful dean of Southern arbiters, goes into his pre-game practice of rubbing some dampened Birmingham, Ala., dirt on new baseballs to remove gloss and allow the pitchers a better grip. For some reason, says Steamboat, Birmingham dirt is the best that's been found for this purpose and has been sent to numerous circuits, including New York, St. Louis, the Texas League and other Southern Association points. "Maybe it's the iron ore deposits," he opines.

HAAS, LESLIE TO MEET
NEW ORLEANS, May 30.—(P)—Freddie Haas, Jr., defending champion, and Dr. Paul Leslie, both former Louisiana State university golfers, will meet here tomorrow for city title.

Leslie conquered Dr. Lolly Burt, 4 and 3, in the semi-finals today while Haas easily disposed of Walter Knoener, Louisiana State university golfers, 1 and 6.

NO PATCH POCKETS? NO VESTS? NO CUFFS?

We're prepared to do without anything—to help win this war, aren't we? Anyway, for years many well dressed men have had their suits custom-made without these very details. So here's looking at your next new suit!

This is no urge to make you run out and buy a suit... unless you need one!

There's nothing obsolete about the suits you now own—that's how imperceptible the curtailment changes are. The big thing to keep in mind is that those changes are being made to make possible the saving of yardage needed for war purposes.

The only things you should run out and buy--and keep Buying... are U. S. War Savings Stamps and Bonds!

CHACOMA TO PUT TITLE AT STAKE IN BOUT TUESDAY

Wrestling Champ To Defend Crown In Match With Jack Curtis

Mike Chacoma, world's light-heavyweight wrestling champion, will come back to Monroe Tuesday night with hopes of squaring things with Jack Curtis of Vicksburg, Miss., and going back home to Watonga, Okla., with the title belt which Promoter Gus Kallio seized after last week's brawl.

Chacoma defeated Curtis last week in a battle for the belt, but Promoter Kallio, lending an ear to Curtis' complaints, took charge of the belt because of the "questionable methods" used by Chacoma to win the last fall of their wild battle.

It was evident last night, however, that Curtis is due for a shock when he learns Chacoma has made additional demands regarding terms of the return match, and it is possible that Promoter Kallio may sanction a heavy strain on his end of the "gate" in order to guarantee the battle.

Curtis left Monroe last Tuesday night with the understanding that he and Chacoma would tangle in the return battle under the same terms which governed their initial battle, Promoter Kallio said.

Thursday night Chacoma informed Kallio by telephone that he could not possibly appear under the same terms, but that he, as champion, wanted both courses Tuesday, leaving nothing for Curtis but the belt if he can manage a win that. Curtis has never been divided of the change in Chacoma's attitude.

Promoter Kallio said he had not been able to contact Curtis but expected to get in touch with him today. "I know Curtis won't like the term," Kallio said, "and I don't expect him to agree to them. However, after that, I will agree to give Chacoma 10 purses and then go into my own pocket for a side purse for Curtis to make up for the one he surrenders in order to get another title chance."

The Chacoma-Curtis battle last week was one of the roughest and nastiest wrestling matches seen at the Monroe wrestling arena. The semi-final match will bring a newcomer to the Monroe ring, Gene Apple, French-Canadian maitre, from Montreal, Canada.

Apple will meet Joe Kopecky, who has been in Monroe for some time, in a two-fall match, two falls to win. Kopecky, who wrestled Carl Zupke to a win in one hour.

The Chacoma-Curtis main event will have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win. Two referees will again be employed Tuesday. They will be Alvin "Butch" Arvin and Jack Jackson. Both worked last week's matches.

With summer weather setting in, Promoter Kallio has arranged the contest at the arena so that his customers will be comfortable. Airplane has been located about the building and exhaust fans have been used in the skydome.

ANTI-GAMBLING BILL IS OFFERED

Suppression Would Be Made
Mandatory With Five Complainants

By Norman Walker
BATON ROUGE, La., May 30.—(AP)—Gradually the state legislature is reducing the number of complaining citizens needed to file an affidavit seeking to close down a gambling place as a public nuisance.

Back in 1938 the legislature under the administration of former Governor Richard W. Leche made it rather tough by providing that 25 real estate taxpayers with five-year residence had to sign such a complaint.

Then in 1940 the legislature made the law more liberal by reducing the number of required complainants to 10 ordinary taxpayers "whether citizens or non-residents" and by giving the courts the right to close down gambling places pending litigation of the taxpayer complainant.

That's the law now. But a bill pending in the current session of the legislature would go even further—reducing the number of needed complaining citizens to five. Furthermore, they would neither be required to be property owners or any other type of taxpayer. They would only need to be "reputable citizens."

The pending proposal, introduced by Representatives William H. Carter and William R. Catter, both of Tangipahoa parish, would make it the duty of the sheriff and district attorney receiving a complaint against a gambling establishment signed by the aforesaid five reputable citizens to prefer charges against the proprietor at once.

Confiscation of gambling equipment or paraphernalia is required of the sheriff. Failure on the part either of the sheriff or district attorney to act immediately upon an affidavit presented by five reputable citizens would be construed under terms of the proposed bill as grounds for removal from office.

This is a strong measure but it carries out the words of the state constitution which declares that gambling is a vice and the legislature should take steps to prevent it. These steps have mostly been halting and, in some cases, there have been legislative acts legalizing some forms of gambling.

Currently the legislature is running behind the all-time record for introduction of bills established by the assembly in 1940 but is well up to the average, particularly considering the pleas for a minimum of proposals because of the need for mature deliberations in wartime.

There were a total of 508 bills introduced in the house in the 1940 legislature, compared with 461 bills introduced in the 1939 legislature.

American Soldiers Find Real Courage In Ireland

Workman On Time Morning After Parents, Wife And Son Killed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The British sometimes say Americans are boastful, smug, and rude. Technical Sergeant G. K. Hadenfield of Iowa City and Glenwood, Iowa, who is with the United States army in Northern Ireland, seems to have been some truth in the allegation. But, after a few months of living with the British, he decided he was a bit wiser again. In this letter, first published in the Stars and Stripes, weekly newspaper of the United States forces in Britain, he tells why.

By Sergeant G. K. Hadenfield
SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN IRELAND.—(Correspondence of Wide World)—Dear Mom: Let's forget about the night I'm seeing and the other things I'm doing this time, Mom. I want to tell you about some of the things I've been thinking since I first landed in Northern Ireland.

I guess maybe it's because I've been a little ashamed of myself, and telling you about it will make me feel better.

You see, Mom, Americans, and especially American soldiers, are a queer breed. We like to think we're tough and tough, and we like to "take over."

But too often, Mom, we get the idea that we've got a monopoly on the world's supply of courage.

I suppose we have our share. You can tell a Yankee soldier anywhere. If he came into a store dressed in only a sheet, you could spot him for a Yankee by the air of confidence he wears like a coat, by the look in his eye. You seldom see a Yankee not perfectly at ease, no matter what the surroundings.

But here's what I mean. At first we got a big kick out of going into a restaurant and asking for a big T-bone steak, with fresh green beans, celery, mashed potatoes, apple pie and all the trimmings.

We knew darn well the chances were pretty good we wouldn't get it, but we wanted everyone to know that's what we were used to before.

Well, Mom, we don't do things like that now. And we don't go into dime stores and ask for three bars of soap. And we don't ask anyone where we can get "some good American cigarettes." Nobody told us to stop doing those nasty little things. We just came around to it gradually.

And it's because whatever and how-ever many our faults, we do have a great respect that amounts almost to an awe for courage. And we've seen it over here. Mom, we've seen it every day of the week and couldn't recognize it.

She's a lot like you, Mom. Small and gray-haired and she can't sit still for a minute. Always has to be looking for that hidden bit of dust, picking up that stray thread off the carpet. I used to stop in there every afternoon.

Called her my "little Irish sweetheart." She always was able to find me a package of cigarettes if her ration was low. She found a lady to do my laundry for me.

One day she wasn't there, and her daughter told me she had fainted the day before and hurt her back in a fall. I came back the next day and she was up and around again, cheerful as ever.

Then I was gone for about a week and yesterday I came back and stopped in to see her. She was sitting in an easy chair, knitting as fast as her tiny fingers could fly. She had been ordered to take it easy by the doctor.

So I asked her why she didn't quit working so hard, why she didn't take a little time off, why she didn't just sit around and loaf for awhile. Her store isn't very big and her daughter can handle it easily herself.

"See that picture on the piano?" she said. I looked, and there was a handsome young lad, about 19 years old, smiling at us.

"I lost him three weeks ago, somewhere in the Middle East. The only boy I have, and the only grandson in our family. Missing in action, they told me. I won't know how he died or where."

"If I didn't keep working all the time, I'd be thinking about him. I can't control my thoughts when I'm not busy. So I just keep busy. Makes it easier, you see."

That's courage, Mom.

Then there's the fellow I met at a dance one night. I suppose he was about 28. I talked to him awhile, comparing notes on Ireland and the United States. Later a friend of his told me a little story.

This fellow had come to work the morning after the first big blitz attack. Showed up right on the dot, although he had spent all night on fire-fighting duties.

A fellow worker asked him, "How's everything at your house? Everyone all right?"

"Yes," he answered slowly. "Everything's all right. I guess. They just recovered the last body."

His father and mother, his wife and his four-year-old son had all been killed. And he had spent the night fighting fires, then came to work on time the next morning. Carrying on.

That's courage, too, Mom.

These are examples that can be duplicated all over northern Ireland. You hear of those stories occasionally, but you never hear of the other kind of courage.

The kind the housewives show when their food ration is cut again, when it gets harder and harder to get clothing for members of the family, when fresh fruits are scarce as gold nuggets.

No, Mom, that isn't the chest-thumping, bellowing kind of courage typified by the Yankee sergeant in the last war who told his men as they got ready to go over the top: "Come on, you sn-and-so's, d'ya want to live forever?"

It's a kind of courage that they draw from a deep source, that whispers to them when the going gets tough.

"We are on the right track. Our cause is right. Whatever they do to us now, they cannot shake our faith in humanity, in the right of every man, woman and child to lead a peaceful and happy life. They can't shake that faith, nor can they destroy our belief in a righteous and just God."

"It's bad now. Perhaps it will get worse. But ours will be the final victory. We'll carry on."

I suppose, Mom, it takes a great deal of courage to face death without flinching. But I think, too, that it must take as much courage, or more, to face the relentless dangers of daily living—and go on living.

And that's why we've changed since we arrived here.

Mandatory With Five
Complainants

By Norman Walker
BATON ROUGE, La., May 30.—(P)—Gradually the state legislature is reducing the number of complaining citizens needed to file an affidavit seeking to close down a gambling place as a public nuisance.

Back in 1938 the legislature under the administration of former Governor Richard W. Leche made it rather tough by providing that 25 real estate taxpayers with five-year residence had to sign such a complaint.

Then in 1940 the legislature made the law more liberal by reducing the number of required complainants to 10 ordinary taxpayers "whether citizens or non-residents" and by giving the courts the right to close down gambling places pending litigation of the taxpayer complaint.

That's the law now. But a bill pending in the current session of the legislature would go even further—reducing the number of needed complaining citizens to five. Furthermore, they would neither be required to be property owners or any other type of taxpayer. They would only need to be "reputable citizens."

The pending proposal, introduced by Representatives William H. Carter and William R. Cutler, both of Tangipahoa parish, would make it the duty of the sheriff and district attorney receiving a complaint against a gambling establishment signed by the affidavit five reputable citizens to prefer charges against the proprietor at once.

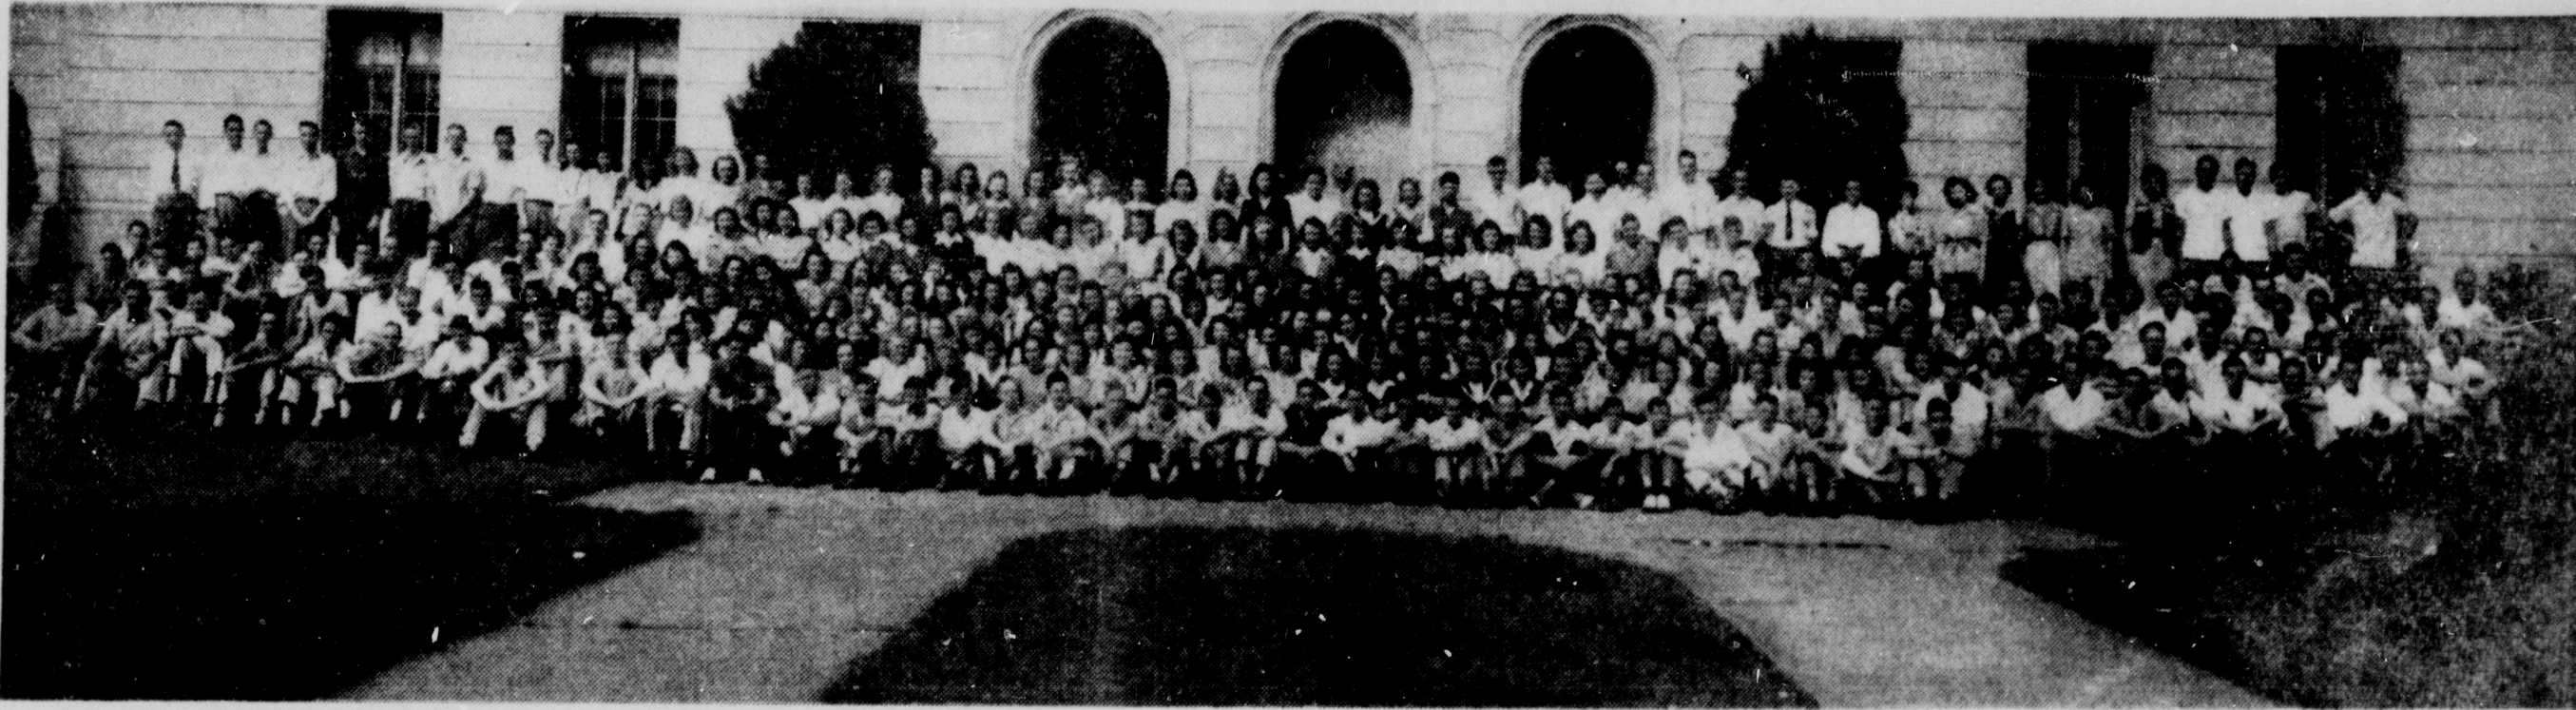

Confiscation of gambling equipment or paraphernalia is required of the sheriff. Failure on the part either of the sheriff or district attorney to act immediately upon an affidavit presented by five reputable citizens would be construed under terms of the proposed bill as grounds for removal from office.

This is a strong measure but it carries out the words of the state constitution which declares that gambling is a vice and the legislature should take steps to prevent it. These steps have mostly been halting and, in some cases, there have been legislative acts legalizing some forms of gambling.

Currently the legislature is running behind the all-time record for introduction of bills established by the assembly in 1940 but is well up to the average, particularly considering the pleas for a minimum of proposals because of the need for mature deliberations in wartime.

There were a total of 508 bills introduced in the house in the 1940 legislature, compared with 461 bills intro-

Workman On Time Morning After Parents, Wife And Son Killed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The British sometimes say Americans are headstrong, smug, and rude. Technical Sergeant G. K. Hadenfield of Iowa City and Glenwood, Iowa, who is with the United States army in Northern Ireland, admits there has been some truth in the allegation. But, after a few months of living with the Bulldog British, he decided not to be a wise guy again. In this letter, first published in the Stars and Stripes weekly newspaper of the United States forces in Britain, he tells why.

By Sergeant G. K. Hadenfield
SOMEWHERE IN NORTHERN IRELAND—(Correspondence of Wide World)—Dear Mom: Let's forget about the aights I'm seeing and the other things I'm doing this time, Mom. I want to tell you about some of the things I've been thinking since I first landed in Northern Ireland.

I guess maybe it's because I've been a little ashamed of myself, and telling you about it will make me feel better.

You see, Mom, Americans, and especially American soldiers, are a queer breed. We like to think we're rough and tough, and we like to "take over." But too often, Mom, we get the idea that we've got a monopoly on the world's supply of courage.

I suppose we have our share. You can tell a Yankee soldier anywhere. If he came into a store dressed in only a sheet, you could spot him for a Yankee by the air of confidence he wears like a coat, by the look in his eye. You seldom see a Yankee not perfectly at ease, no matter what the surroundings.

But here's what I mean. At first we got a big kick out of going into a restaurant and asking for a big T-bone steak, with fresh green beans, celery, mashed potatoes, apple pie and all the trimmings.

We knew darn well the chances were pretty good we wouldn't get it, but we wanted everyone to know that's what we were used to before.

Well, Mom, we don't do things like that now. And we don't go into dime stores and ask for three bars of soap. And we don't ask anyone where we can get "some good American cigarettes." Nobody told us to stop doing those nasty little things. We just came around to it gradually.

And it's because whatever and however many our faults, we do have a great respect that amounts almost to an awe for courage. And we've seen it over here, Mom. We've seen it every day of the week and couldn't recognize it.

I want to tell you about two people I know. Then you'll see what I mean. In a small town near here there's a little shop owned by a lady about 50 years old.

She's a lot like you, Mom. Small and gray-haired and she can't sit still for a minute. Always has to be looking for that hidden bit of dust, picking up that stray thread off the carpet. I used to stop in there every afternoon.

Called her my "little Irish sweetheart." She always was able to find me a package of cigarettes if her ration was low. She found a lady to do my laundry for me.

One day she wasn't there, and her daughter told me she had fainted the day before and hurt her back in a fall. I came back the next day and she was up and around again, cheerful as ever.

Then I was gone for about a week and yesterday I came back and stopped in to see her. She was sitting in an easy chair, knitting as fast as her tiny fingers could fly. She had been ordered to take it easy by the doctor.

So I asked her why she didn't quit working so hard, why she didn't take a little time off, why she didn't just sit around and loaf for awhile. Her store isn't very big and her daughter can handle it easily herself.

"See that picture on the piano?" she said. I looked, and there was a handsome young lad, about 19 years old, smiling at us.

"I lost him three weeks ago, somewhere in the Middle East. The only boy I have, and the only grandson in our family. Missing in action, they told me. I won't know how he died or where.

"If I didn't keep working all the time, I'd be thinking about him. I can't control my thoughts when I'm not busy. So I just keep busy. Makes it easier, you see."

That's courage, Mom.

Then there's the fellow I met at a dance one night. I suppose he was about 25. I talked to him awhile, comparing notes on Ireland and the United States. Later a friend of his told me a little story.

This fellow had come to work the morning after the first big blitz attack. Showed up right on the dot, although he had spent all night on fire-fighting duties.

A fellow worker asked him, "How's everything at your house? Everyone all right?"

"Yes," he answered slowly. "Every-

It's a kind of courage that they draw from a deep source, that whispers to them when the going gets tough:

"We are on the right track. Our cause is right. Whatever they do to us now, they cannot shake our faith in humanity, in the right of every man, woman and child to lead a peaceful life, nor can they destroy our belief in a righteous and just God."

MONROE GROUP ATTENDS FETE

C. Of C. Board, City Officials, Are Guests Of Bastrop Business Men

Members of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and Monroe city officials were guests of a group of Bastrop business men at a dinner at Morehouse Country club Friday night.

The dinner was given in appreciation of the efforts of the Monroe group to obtain a large defense plant for the Bastrop area.

Short talks were made by Mayor

A. B. Andrews of Bastrop, Mayor Harvey H. Benoit of Monroe, A. K. Kilpatrick, president of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, Colonel J. L. Keenan, F. B. Robinson of Bastrop and H. S. Hawthorne of Bastrop.

Monroe guests included C. R. Tidwell, commissioner of streets and parks, and many members of the board of directors.

In the talks by Mr. Holland and Mr. Wilson the group was told that several weeks ago the Monroe Chamber of Commerce was advised by John D. Ewing of Shreveport that the government was planning to build a poison gas plant in this area and that a survey by the local chamber found that a site near Bastrop, just below the Arkansas line, met all requirements of government engineers.

Mr. Holland and Mr. Wilson then prepared briefs for presentation to government officials in Washington. Both expressed their appreciation of the cordial reception accorded them in Washington and said they were hopeful that a plant would be eventually located in this area.

It was announced that a government official would come here within the next week to inspect the site.

CARAVAN TO SERVE CHURCH IN BASTROP

BASTROP, La., May 30.—(Special)—Mrs. Allen Pomeroy, superintendent of the youth division of the Methodist church, has been notified by the general board that the church here will be served by a youth caravan during the week of June 20 to 26.

The caravan consists of two young men and two young women and a counselor, who will hold classes of instruction covering all phases of the work of the youth in the church. In addition to the regular classes to be taught by the selected young people who are being sent here, recreational features will be planned and participated in by those who attend. All the young people of Bastrop and surrounding communities are invited to take part in the activities.

With his training in young people's works he will assist the church in revitalizing the present program and furnish opportunities in instruction and recreation to meet the needs of the young people through these rest-less days.

OUACHITA LION IS NOW ISSUED

Booklet Devoted To Class Of 1942 Gives Complete
History

"The Ouachita Lion," edition of May, 1942, has just been issued by the Monroe Printing Company and is eliciting much praise for its exceptionally good material of diversified nature, and also for its high degree of mechanical perfection. Clarice Stigle was editor; David Martin, business manager. Senior class officers' pictures appear on the initial page along with the editors. They are Roy Cole, president; Joe Dixon, vice-president; Jean McCormick, secretary, and Elaine Burford, treasurer.

appear beneath the pictures of Superintendent T. O. Brown and Mrs. Christie Williams, parish supervisor. Principal Jack Hayes states: "Ouachita Enlists Again." "Three times since her organization in October, 1894, Ouachita has sent her sons to the front; in 1898, 1917 and 1941. Each time the range of the battle has been lengthened, the scope of the war has widened, and the blood and tears of the conflict have been magnified tenfold. But the spirit of Ouachita is boundless in its conception of work and sacrifice; and under the wise guidance of her trusted leader for three decades, she enlists for the duration and girds herself for an all-out effort."

A good picture of Mrs. Era Person graces the page below that of Principal Hayes and then comes picture of the entire senior class.

Profuse pictures and sketches complete the book which is ready for distribution this week and will be treasured by all members of the class and by many of their friends.

Glen Wilson of Bastrop and George D. Holland, secretary of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, gave reports of their recent trip to Washington in an effort to locate the plant on a site comprising 28,000 acres north of Bastrop.

Short talks were made by Mayor

A. B. Andrews of Bastrop, Mayor Harvey H. Benoit of Monroe, A. K. Kilpatrick, president of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, Colonel J. L. Keenan, F. B. Robinson of Bastrop and H. S. Hawthorne of Bastrop.

Monroe guests included C. R. Tidwell, commissioner of streets and parks, and many members of the board of directors.

In the talks by Mr. Holland and Mr. Wilson the group was told that several weeks ago the Monroe Chamber of Commerce was advised by John D. Ewing of Shreveport that the government was planning to build a poison gas plant in this area and that a survey by the local chamber found that a site near Bastrop, just below the Arkansas line, met all requirements of government engineers.

Mr. Holland and Mr. Wilson then prepared briefs for presentation to government officials in Washington. Both expressed their appreciation of the cordial reception accorded them in Washington and said they were hopeful that a plant would be eventually located in this area.

It was announced that a government official would come here within the next week to inspect the site.

OUACHITA LION IS NOW ISSUED

Booklet Devoted To Class Of 1942 Gives Complete
History

"The Ouachita Lion," edition of May, 1942, has just been issued by the Monroe Printing Company and is eliciting much praise for its exceptionally good material of diversified nature, and also for its high degree of mechanical perfection. Clarice Slagle was editor; David Martin, business manager. Senior class officers' pictures appear on the initial page along with the editors. They are Roy Cole, president; Joe Dixon, vice-president; Jean McCord, secretary, and Elaine Burford, treasurer.

Pictures of school board members

appear beneath the pictures of Superintendent T. O. Brown and Mrs. Chrissie Williams, parish supervisor.

Principal Jack Hayes states: "Ouachita Enlists Again." "Three times since her organization in October, 1894, Ouachita has sent her sons to the front; in 1898, 1917 and 1941. Each time the range of the battle has been lengthened, the scope of the war has widened, and the blood and tears of the conflict have been magnified tenfold. But the spirit of Ouachita is boundless in its conception of work and sacrifice; and under the wise guidance of her trusted leader for three decades, she enlists for the duration and girds herself for an all-out effort."

A good picture of Mrs. Era Pearson graces the page below that of Principal Hayes and then comes picture of the entire senior class. Profuse pictures and sketches complete the book which is ready for distribution this week and will be treasured by all members of the class and by many of their friends.

Many Beautiful Affairs Of Social Nature Planned For This Year's Graduates

Garden Party Is Held For O. P. H. S. Seniors

Miss Cornelia McHenry, Member Of Class, Shares Honors At Affair Arranged By Her Parents

At this time when starry-eyed, sweet girl graduates and handsome young men are waiting with eager expectancy the night of graduation from high school we realize that bombs will never drown out the music of their happy voices. There will always be a spring and there will always be young boys and girls to give us hope and promise. Even though the banners of blood and iron are trying to fly over the world, a power stronger than armies is bringing to fulfillment the dreams and ambitions of America's youth.

It's graduation time in Monroe and life in many households revolves around sons and daughters who will step forth on flower-banked stages this week to receive their diplomas.

Many beautiful affairs of a social nature have been planned for this year's seniors but none quite so pretentious and so glamorous as the garden party arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Carl McHenry in honor of the senior class of the Ouachita Parish high school. Their daughter, Miss Cornelia McHenry, a member of this class, was privileged to share the honors.

The gods conspired to make this event one of pure enchantment. The air was redolent with the perfume of magnolias and cape jasmine, associated with southern summer-time gardens since time immemorial. Myriad Chinese lanterns swayed in the soft night breeze from long hanging branches of the giant oaks and were strung, row upon row, across the tennis court where dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. A twelve-piece orchestra supplied entrancing music for the girls in their bouffant evening gowns of mousseline and organza and the young men in white linens. A glamorous moon shining beneficently down on a never-to-be-forgotten scene added the master stroke of perfection.

Mrs. McHenry welcomed her guests in a semi-evening model of azure blue robe with handsome jeweled clips at the neckline. Her daughter, Miss McHenry, wore a diaphanous evening model of red and white dotted swiss with tight fitting basque cut with square neckline outlined with fresh gardenias. She wore on her dark wavy hair a chaplet of gardenias.

The presence of a man beloved by generations of high school graduates, Mr. T. O. Brown, superintendent of education of Ouachita Parish, added the last note of perfection to an evening of unalloyed pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayes, also beloved by Ouachita Parish school students, stood with Mr. and Mrs. McHenry, Miss McHenry and Edgar Land to receive the guests in the spacious drawing room banked with beautiful flowers. Others assisting were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Armand Broad, Miss Grace Carter, Miss Josephine McManis.

Assisting in the garden were: Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. Reese Major Jr., Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. Neil McHenry, Mrs. A. G. McHenry, Miss Lucy Moore.

A caterer was in charge of the refreshments, chicken sandwiches, a wide variety of confections and red and white mints inscribed with O. P. H. S. class of 1942. Frosted fruit frappe was served at lace covered tables placed at vantage points in the gardens and presided over by a coterie of lovely girls in bouffant evening gowns. They were: Miss Gloria Frances Major, Miss Nan Drew, Miss Nora Virginia Abernathy, Miss Mabel Cole and Miss Marguerite McHenry.

A. president, Mrs. Stanley Hodges, and the incoming president, Mrs. W. A. Massett; Mrs. John Young, outgoing secretary, and Mrs. E. L. Ritter, incoming secretary. Also Miss Rose Danna, alumni president; Miss Catherine Baetche, representative of the faculty; Mrs. William Zinsmeister, P.-T. A. first vice-president; Father Francis P. Donohoe, Father John C. Marsh and Rt. Rev. Monsignor N. F. Vandegard.

During the serving of a delicious four-course dinner, the following program was given, with Father Donohoe as toastmaster.

Invocation, Monsignor Vandegard. Address of welcome from St. Matthew's P.-T. A., Mrs. Massett. Greetings from faculty, Miss Catherine Baetche. Welcome into alumni, Miss Rose Danna. Musical selections, Misses Gertrude and Helen Zurga. Response to P.-T. A. welcome, Miss Charlotte Miller.

The dance followed the banquet. Father Marsh stated that in this war-torn world we must cultivate charity. Charity, he said, is kindness, a small word but one filled with meaning. Disregard for others is both unkind and impolite. Kindness, he said, means self-denial. The speaker urged boys and girls to cultivate a kindly, unselfish spirit, the essence of charity and closely allied to religion.

Miss Sunshine Shehee Is Wed At Annapolis

Daughter Of Dr. And Mrs. H. D. Shehee Of Arcadia Becomes Bride Of Ensign Charles N. Payne

In the historical, ivy-covered chapel on the campus at the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, Md., a wedding of interest to friends in this city took place last week when Miss Sunshine Shehee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Shehee of Arcadia, La., and Ensign Charles N. Payne, son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll of this city, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Captain William N. Thomas, U. S. N.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a distinctive model of ashes of roses crepe with hip length jacket trimmed with carriage pleating. She wore a flattering hat of ashes of roses straw and long white kid gloves. Her corsage was of white children.

Miss Nancy Shehee, who attended her sister as maid of honor, wore a frock of powder blue cotton, fashioned with a full skirt, puffed sleeves and a square neckline banded with blue grosgrain ribbon. A leghorn hat and short white gloves and a corsage of pink Columbia roses completed the ensemble.

Ensign C. D. O'Sullivan, a classmate of the bridegroom, acted as best man. The ushers, all members of the class of '42, included Ensigns V. E. Binion, W. H. Mendenhall, R. W. Arey and J. J. Green.

Prof. Joseph W. Crowley, chapel organist, played "Liebestraum" and Schubert's "Serenade" as a prelude, the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches, and during the ceremony, strains of "Navy Blue and Gold."

The young couple, leaving the cha-

side, she is the granddaughter of Mrs. William L. Williams and the late Mr. Williams. Her paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Alys B. Shehee of Ringgold, La.

Ensign Payne, the son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll of Monroe, La., attended Louisiana Tech before he came to the Naval Academy. He is the grandson of the late Mrs. Birdie Vaughan Lambright of Little Rock, Ark., for many years the supervisor of literature appreciation in the public schools of Little Rock.

Ensign Payne is a member of the Naval academy's graduating class of 1942.

Miss Bonnie Cobb

Is Wed To Corporal

Beauty of detail characterized the wedding of Miss Bonnie Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Q. Cobb, of this city, and Corporal Gene Walter, Jr. of Winsboro, Saturday, May 16.

It was a twilight wedding and took place in the gardens of the Cobb home with Rev. Selby Aswell officiating. The flowers and shrubs and the trees with wide-spreading branches in the background formed a natural setting for the ceremony.

The bride's attendants were Miss Doris Rave Dean and Miss Anna Lou Cobb. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Calvin Hall and Mr. Max Wroten.

The bride wore a lovely navy blue lace model with white accessories and corsage of sweetheart roses and gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Wright and son Frank Ray are visiting Guilford Wright, Jr. in camp in Mississippi.

Garden Party Is Held For O. P. H. S. Seniors

Miss Cornelia McHenry, Member Of Class, Shares Honors At Affair Arranged By Her Parents

At this time when starry-eyed, sweet girl graduates and handsome young men are waiting with eager expectancy the night of graduation from high school we realize that bombs will never drown out the music of their happy voices. There will always be a spring and there will always be young boys and girls to give us hope and promise. Even though the banners of blood and iron are trying to fly over the world, a power stronger than armies is bringing to fulfillment the dreams and ambitions of America's youth.

It's graduation time in Monroe and life in many households revolves around sons and daughters who will step forth on flower banked stages this week to receive their diplomas.

Many beautiful affairs of a social nature have been planned for this year's seniors but none quite so pretentious and so glamorous as the garden party arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Carl McHenry in honor of the senior class of the Ouachita Parish high school. Their daughter, Miss Cornelia McHenry, a member of this class, was privileged to share the honors.

The gods conspired to make this event one of pure enchantment. The air was redolent with the perfume of magnolias and cape jasmine, associated with southern summer-time gardens since time immemorial. Myriad Chinese lanterns swayed in the soft night breeze from low hanging branches of the giant oaks and were strung, row upon row, across the tennis court where dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. A twelve-piece orchestra supplied entrancing music for the girls in their bouffant evening gowns of mouseline and organza and the young men in white linens. A glamorous moon shining beneficently down on a never-to-be-forgotten scene added the master stroke of perfection.

Every section of the garden was strung with colored electric lights and lights streamed cheerfully from the house where members of the Ouachita Parish school faculty and several parents of the graduates were entertained.

Mrs. McHenry welcomed her guests in a semi-evening mode of blue blue crepe with handsome jeweled clips at the neckline. Her daughter, Miss McHenry, wore a diaphanous evening model of red and white dotted swiss with tight fitting basque cut with square neckline outlined with fresh gardenias. She wore on her dark wavy hair a chaplet of gardenias.

The presence of a man beloved by generations of high school graduates, Mr. T. O. Brown, superintendent of education of Ouachita Parish, added the last note of perfection to an evening of unalloyed pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayes, also beloved by Ouachita Parish school students, stood with Mr. and Mrs. McHenry, Miss McHenry and Edgar Land to receive the guests in the spacious drawing room banked with beautiful flowers. Others assisting were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Armand Beard, Miss Grace Carter, Miss Josephine McHenry.

Assisting in the garden were: Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Mrs. Keese Major Jr., Mrs. C. C. Boardman, Mrs. Neil McHenry, Mrs. A. G. McHenry, Miss Lucy Moore.

Seniors Are Honor Guests Of School's P.-T. A. And Alumni At Annual Affairs Thursday Night

St. Matthew's graduates thronged Hotel Virginia roof, Thursday night for the annual banquet and dance, compliments of the school's P.-T. A. and alumni.

Marsh and Rt. Rev. Monsignor N. F. Vandegraer.

Invocation, Monsignor Vandegraer. Address of welcome from St. Matthew's P.-T. A., Mrs. Massett.

Greetings from faculty, Miss Catherine Baetcher.

Address by Father J. C. Marsh of Hodge, La.

Closing prayer.

The dance followed the banquet.

Father Marsh stated that in this war-torn world we must cultivate charity. Charity, he said, is kindness, a small word but one filled with meaning. Disregard for others is both unkind and impolite. Kindness, he said, means self-denial. The speaker urged boys and girls to cultivate a kindly, unselfish spirit, the essence of charity and closely allied to religion.

Miss Sunshine Shehee Is Wed At Annapolis

Daughter Of Dr. And Mrs. H. D. Shehee Of Arcadia Becomes Bride Of Ensign Charles N. Payne

In the historical, ivy-covered chapel on the campus at the United States Naval academy, Annapolis, Md., a wedding of interest to friends in this city took place last week when Miss Sunshine Shehee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Shehee of Arcadia, La., and Ensign Charles N. Payne, son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll of this city, were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Captain William N. Thomas, U. S. N.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a distinctive model of ashes of roses crepe with hip length jacket trimmed with cartridge pleating. She wore a flattering hat of ashes of roses straw and long white kid gloves. Her corsage was of orchids.

Miss Nancy Shehee, who attended her sister as maid of honor, wore a frock of powder blue chiffon, fashioned with a full skirt, puffed sleeves and a square neckline banded with blue grosgrain ribbon. A leghorn hat and short white gloves and a corsage of pink Columbia roses completed the ensemble.

Ensign C. D. O'Sullivan, a classmate of the bridegroom, acted as best man. The ushers, all members of the class of '42, included Ensigns V. E. Binion, W. H. Mendenhall, R. W. Arey and J. J. Green.

Prof. Joseph W. Crosley, chapel organist, played "Liebestraum" and Schubert's "Serenade" as a prelude, the Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches, and during the ceremony, strains of "Navy Blue and Gold."

The young couple, leaving the cha-

side, she is the granddaughter of Mr. William L. Williams and the late Mr. Williams. Her paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Alys B. Shehee of Ringgold, La.

Ensign Payne, the son of Mrs. C. C. Carroll of Monroe, La., attended Louisiana Tech before he came to the Naval Academy. He is the grandson of the late Mrs. Birdi Vaughan Lambright of Little Rock, Ark., for many years the supervisor of literature appreciation in the public schools of Little Rock.

Miss Bonnie Cobb

Beauty of detail characterized the wedding of Miss Bonnie Cobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Q. Cobb, of this city, and Corporal Gene Walter Jr., of Winnsboro, Saturday, May 16. It was a twilight wedding and took place in the gardens of the Cobb home with Rev. Selby Aswell officiating. The flowers and shrubs and the tree with wide-spreading branches in the background formed a natural setting for the ceremony.

The bride's attendants were Miss Doris Raye Dean and Miss Anna L. Cobb. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Calvin Hall and Mr. Max Wright.

The bride wore a lovely navy blue lace model with white accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses and gardenias.

Banquet Of Neville High Graduating Class Held On Frances Hotel Terrace

Annual Fete Is Climax Of Year's Festivities

Spontaneous Applause Is Given Professor E. L. Neville Following His Talk To The Group

It takes a power stronger than war to destroy the sentimentality that clings to high school commencement activities and especially the senior banquet that is always the highlight of festivities.

This year's banquet for members of the senior class of the Neville High school on the terrace of the Frances hotel, last Thursday night, seemed the festive than ever before.

The festive members of the class in the beautiful banquet gowns will cherish their billowing skirts and festoons or ruffles as no other class in many, many years. For, if anticipated wartime restrictions materialize, these floor-length gowns may be prohibited by June, 1943. These diaphanous gowns worn by the girl graduates add much to the pageantry of the commencement festivities and are as much a part of graduation as the diplomas they receive. High school girls, however, are more than willing to give them up if it will conduce to better clothing for the American soldiers.

The long tables on the terrace, silver serviced and attractively appointed, reflected the class colors, pink and green. The speaker's table on a platform, was backed with pink hydrangeas and brightly illuminated by myriads of tapers. Mr. Charles Titcher in customary genial manner presided as toast master. He introduced the members of the senior class, class officers and those who appeared on the evening's program. Two vocal numbers, "H. H. H." and "Zigzagging", were beautifully rendered by Margie Ann Kall and Louise Smiler.

Mr. Paul Neal talked eloquently and fervently of the Neville high school graduates who are now in the armed forces.

Enthusiasm reached a high peak when Mr. Titcher introduced Professor E. L. Neville who has been associated with the City school system for forty years. The spontaneous applause following his brief talk was a testimonial of the high regard in which he is held by members of this year's graduating class, members of the faculty and members of the alumni association.

Miss Elizabeth Boston, president of the Neville high school alumni association, presided with characteristic grace. She wore a lovely evening model of green dotted silk with orange of pink sweet peas.

A delicious four course dinner was luxuriously served to the two hundred students, alumni association members and members of the faculty. The singing of "God Bless America" with Mrs. P. A. Post, piano accompanist, ended the evening's festivities.

outstanding work in this capacity, her club has gone "headlines" month after month in the local papers. As Mae McIntosh, she served as state historian during 1934-35, and in her own club, as an officer and member of the board of directors, she has accomplished work of a noteworthy character. Aside from her interest in the civic, religious, educational and club circles of her home city, she has the distinctive honor of being the first woman in Louisiana to have served on a jury, being one of the first women in Ouachita parish to register for jury duty. A regular attendant at all state conventions and meetings in her own district, her enthusiasm, optimism and genial personality endears her to federation members.

Friends of Mrs. J. L. Humble, patient in St. Francis sanitarium, will be pleased to know that her condition is improving.

Women's Group Elects Mrs. Eunice Stuckey

Monroe Selected For 1943 Convention Of State Federation Of Business And Professional Clubs

Mrs. Eunice T. Stuckey, prominent business woman of Ruston, La., and well known in Monroe, was unanimously re-elected president of the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, at the 23rd annual convention held in New Orleans, last week.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. T. L. Witter, Alexandria, first vice-president; Miss Anna May Connelly, second vice-president; Miss Velma Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Laura Slater, treasurer; and Miss Mamie Nolan, auditor; Mrs. Lurline Hogg, editor of the Pelican.

More than one fifth of the state membership attended the convention and adopted for the 1942-43 program: "Four Fronts for Freedom," pledging "full and all out support to the war effort."

The Louisiana Federation endorsed the "equal rights" amendment and the federal education bill, providing for more equal distribution of funds for educational purposes, and opposed the mandatory joint income tax bill.

A committee to formulate plans for the organization of a legislative council in Louisiana, to provide the machinery for reaching other organizations, where the influence of all women, or other interested groups, would be beneficial, was appointed, with Kathryn Bower as chairman.

Idle funds of the Agness Morris Loan fund will be used to purchase defense bonds.

The following resolutions were adopted:

It is resolved that the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs go on record for full and all out support of the war effort. To this end, that we will cheerfully accept all necessary rationing, disciplines and restrictions and that we will gladly buy all bonds we can, both individually, as clubs and as a state organization. That we will accept cheerfully and will pay with pride increased taxes for the war effort. We go on record as opposing, as un-American any acts of any citizens or groups which would hinder all out production of war materials or excess profits during this emergency.

Resolved, that the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs endorse the revision of the State child labor law in conformity with the principles supported by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, in order to bring Louisiana's standards of protection up to those of other states, particularly North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida.

Be it resolved, that the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs support and endorse the uniform traffic and license bill to be presented in the present session of the Louisiana state legislature.

Whereas, in ever increasing numbers, our finest male citizens are being called in military service, and whereas, under existing law, the use of women for jury service is seriously retarded by the necessity of their registering before they can be eligible for call,

Now, therefore, be it resolved, that a law be enacted to place women on a basis of equality for jury service.

Literary Club Hears Talk By Ola Cooper

Mrs. John McEwee And Miss Bessie Noble Are Hostesses To Mangham Group Wednesday

Mrs. John McEwee and Miss Bessie Noble were hostesses to the Mangham Junior Literary club in the home of Mrs. J. D. Butler last Wednesday evening.

During the business session presided over by the president, Miss Janet Hixon, the members agreed to purchase defense stamps regularly once a month next year. The following chairmen were appointed by the president: National Defense and Youth Cooperation, Miss Ada Preston; Education, Miss Ola Boughton; International Relations, Mrs. Dow Case; American Home, Mrs. F. A. Childress; Public Welfare, Miss Ola Cooper; Press and Publicity, Miss Bessie Noble; Junior, Mrs. L. N. Blair; Fine Arts, Miss Mary Minoe Noble; Legislation, Mrs. Raymond Geiger; Citizenship, Miss Elaine McDonald.

Climaxing the year's study on "Interesting People and Places in the United States," Miss Ola Cooper read a paper on Dorothy Thompson. "Dorothy Thompson has as much power and prestige as any woman in America today. Since 1936 her columns have convinced not only women, but men, that they were intended, by men readers of her vigor, brilliant enthusiasm, unerring knowledge and eloquence of the world situation and encouraging sincerity. Besides her column Miss Thompson writes for theadies Home Journal and occasion for other periodicals. In 1938 and 39 she had a radio program, but her sponsors worried about her violent attacks upon Hitler and Stalin and her cutting and sarcastic remarks. Up to the last few years, she has done much lecturing, and is an excellent speaker and lecturer. She has received 7,000 invitations to speak with offers of high fees. Her combined earnings are considerable.

"In person, Miss Thompson is imposing, with a handsome face and gray hair, dresses expensively. She loves clothes though she has little time for shopping. She prefers suits and dinner dresses. Her only hobby is gardening; she spends from June to September on her farm. Besides Hitler, she has only one aversion: New York intellectuals. She likes hard work and she likes life, socially and in a larger sense—she says she would like best as her epitaph: "Died of extreme old age."

Mrs. Paul Fraiser, chairman on Education, introduced Miss Mary Frances Wiseman, Richard Parish Librarian, who made an interesting talk on "Adult Education and the Library." Miss Wiseman outlined the normal functions of a library as follows: to provide materials for adults in their activities; to provide opportunities to follow up the intellectual needs of adults; and to serve as a vacation guide.

"In war times," Miss Wiseman stated, "libraries are much more vital to the community. It's purpose is twofold: to instruct people as to what we are fighting for; and to teach them how we can do our part to win this war. The Richard Parish Library has been designated as a war-information center during this present war."

During the social hour that followed the program, Mrs. McEwee and Miss Noble served refreshments to the following members and guests: Miss Ola Cooper, Miss Ola Boughton, Mrs. Herman Grant, Mrs. Robert Bell, Jr., Miss Elaine McDonald, Mrs. L. N. Blair, Mrs. T. D. Case, Mrs. Paul Fraiser, Miss Ada Preston, Miss Mary Frances Wiseman, and Miss Blanche Miller, Rayville.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Zelmar Sumlin of Baton Rouge, formerly of Rayville, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their youngest daughter, Louise, to the Rev. Shirley Briggs of Shreveport, the son of Mrs. Pauline Briggs of Alexandria.

The ceremony will take place on June 24 at 8 o'clock in the morning at the First Baptist church. No invitations are being issued and only members of the immediate families will be present.

The bride-elect was graduated from the Louisiana State university last year, receiving her degree in home economics. Formerly she attended Louisiana Polytechnical institute in Ruston. She now has the position of Climaxing the year's study on "Interesting People and Places in the United States," Miss Ola Cooper read a paper on Dorothy Thompson. Miss Cooper said, in part: "Dynamic Dorothy Thompson has as much power and prestige as any woman in America today. Since 1936 her three-week On the Record columns have convinced not only women, for whom they were intended, but men readers of her vigor, brilliance, enthusiasm, uncanny knowledge and judgment of the world situation and uncompromising sincerity. Besides her column Miss Thompson writes for the Ladies Home Journal and occasionally for other periodicals. In 1938 and 39 she had a radio program, but her sponsors worried about her violent attacks upon Hitler and Stalin and her contract was not renewed. Up to the last few years, she has done much lecturing, she is an excellent speaker and receives yearly some 7,000 invitations to speak with offers of high fees. Her combined earnings are considerable.

"In person, Miss Thompson is imposing, femininely handsome with soft gray hair, dresses expensively. She loves clothes though she has little time for shopping. She prefers suits and dinner dresses. Her only hobby is gardening; she spends from June to September on her farm. Besides Hitler, she has only one aversion: New York intellectuals—she likes hard work and she likes life, socially and in a larger sense—she says she would like best as her epitaph: "Died of extreme old age."

Mrs. Paul Fraiser, chairman on Education, introduced Miss Mary Frances Wiseman, Richland Parish Librarian, who made an interesting talk on "Adult Education and the Library." Miss Wiseman outlined the normal functions of a library as follows: to provide materials for adults in their activities; to furnish materials on hobbies; to provide opportunities to follow up the intellectual needs of adults; and to serve as vocation guides. "In war times," Miss Wiseman stated, "libraries are much more vital to the community. It's purpose is twofold: to instruct people as to what we are fighting for; and to teach them how we can do our part to win this war. The Richland Parish Library has been designated as a war-information center during this present war."

During the social hour that followed the program, Mrs. McElwee and Miss Noble served refreshments to the following members and guests: Miss Ola Cooper, Miss Ola Boughton, Mrs. Herman Grant, Mrs. Robert Bell, Jr., Miss Elaine McDonald, Mrs. L. N. Blair, Mrs. T. D. Case, Mrs. Paul Fraiser, Mrs. Theo Davis, Miss Janet Hixon, Miss Ada Preston, Miss Mary Frances Wiseman, and Miss Blanche Miller, Rayville.

Group Is Charmingly Entertained In The Home Of Mrs. Clyde Blanchard Thursday Afternoon

Members of the Reader's Clique were charmingly entertained in the home of Mrs. Clyde Blanchard Thursday afternoon with the serving of delicious refreshments following the program hour, included among the courtesies.

Mrs. Mike John, Jr., gave a constructive review of an article appearing in Collier's magazine, "Flying Hell."

Mrs. "Skeeter" Morgan gave an interesting article on the history of hooked rugs. She said in part:

In order to appreciate the value and beauty of hooked rugs, it is necessary to know something about them; how and where they originated. Now this craft has been handed down, where the designs and materials came from; what they were originally used for; their intrinsic value from a decorative as well as a utility standpoint; and how they can be adapted to use in any decorative scheme today. Up to a comparatively few years ago, very little was known by the average person about hooked rugs. Except for some remote rural districts where they are still being made by some of the industrious housewives, they were no longer used, and those that had been handed down as heirlooms were either relegated to the attic, or had been entirely destroyed.

Then antique collectors with an insatiable desire to collect everything early American, began to realize the importance of hooked rugs as an expression of our colonial ancestors' struggle against poverty and restriction, and snapped up all they could find. They started collecting for themselves and for those who were furnishing their homes with antiques, and a market was created for this craft which was gradually dying out.

The romance of hooked rugs, reads the story of Ciderella. Both rose from a place by the hearth to unexpected glory and acclaim.

Many people believed the hooked rug to be the folk-art of the American South, as a result of a revival by great great grandmothers against the strict Puritanism which dictated no floors, even though they were cold and uninviting, that, longing to add beauty to their simple surroundings, they created a hand-craft utilizing whatever materials they had at hand. Materials were scarce in the colonies, and it was considered a sin to throw anything away. Worn clothing and bits of material were saved and huge copper and brass kettles were considered standard equipment for all homes, to be used as dye pots. Into this kettle were tossed all fabrics to be used in making hooked rugs. Much of the beauty depended on the skill of the maker who used vegetable dyes gathered from the farm supplemented with simple materials found in the kitchen, such as cream of tartar, sal ammoniac, copperas, and wood ash. The craft spread from farm to town, to village and provided not only a means of self-expression but rugs for bare floors, and occupation for long winter evenings. It is true the first rugs were made along the New England coast, leading to the belief that sailors brought some of them from Europe.

Although the hooked rug did not originate in America to America must go the chief praise for its development. Well over one hundred years ago what is known as Hearth Rugs were widely used in England. Many dwellings where no other rugs were used, had a hearth rug. Hence in England it always held an important place. American hooked rugs can be divided into about four classifications as to age, namely, antique, from around 1775 to 1820; early, from 1820 to 1880; late, from 1880 to modern times; and the present time. Some people do not believe that moderns can make hooked rugs equal in quality to those made by early workers, that there is an irrefutable something lacking in all modern work, that the knowledge of design, drawing and

Camps Help Health Of American Youth

Children, Parents In Monroe And Area Are Fortunate Because Of Nearness Of Camp Windywood

Hundreds of school children will soon be shouting "School's out!" Already their thoughts are turning to the happy summer days that are to follow and to many of them, "happy days" means a summer camp.

High spots in the life of boys and girls are happy days spent "roughing" it in camp. The love of the outdoors is an American characteristic that probably originated in the pioneer and pilgrim days.

To camp, or not to camp, this summer—that is the question that is being asked by parents and children alike. Should the children's summer camp expedition be eliminated for the sake of economy, or is it more important than ever that it be kept a part of the budget?

Summer camps have done much to improve the health standards of American youth. They have provided opportunities for children from city and suburban areas to learn about nature at first-hand, to learn how to swim, to handle boats, to ride horseback, and to develop wholesome interest in sports which will set excellent habits for later life.

Highly regarded camp leaders point out that there are tremendously important functions when a camp can serve in these troublous times, teaching values which have a direct bearing on the mental and moral development of the child, values which the home may not be able to provide.

Children and parents of Monroe and community are particularly fortunate because close at hand there is a camp where happy days can be enjoyed at little expense. Camp Windywood, near Pollock, La., will open for the summer June 28. The same high standard of excellence will be maintained this summer as in times past according to Mrs. Elizabeth Manheim, director. A large group of girls have already signed up for the three weeks, June 28 to July 18. They are Betty Richardson, Betty Benson, Carol Clark, Patsy Zeigen, Camille Parker, Frances Black, Gwen Walker, Jackie Walker, Bettina Moore, Clayton Knowles, Sara Terzia, Cherry Bernstein, Johnny Lou McCarthy, Jane Inley, Dorothy Younse, Patsy Harbuck, Marie Phillips, Ruth Horton, Ann Shaffo, Charlotte Cooper, Betty Roddy and Vettey Bernhardt.

A large number of boys have signed up for the two week period in July. Ages range between nine and fifteen. Programs designed to provide a balanced schedule that will be both pleasurable and beneficial have been carefully planned by the trained counselors at Camp Windywood this year. Activities will be directed into channels that stimulate mind and muscle alike. Habits of resourcefulness, compatibility, skill in handicrafts, tolerance and appreciation of higher values are fostered in addition to clean, healthful exercise.

Counselors selected with splendid discrimination, under the direction of Mrs. Manheim, are: Miss Mary Coker, assistant director; Miss Alice Graves, Miss Sara Elizabeth Moffatt, Mrs. J. C. Blackman, Miss Vivian Jones will serve as devotional leader, Miss Betty Woods of Washington, D. C., will direct the crafts and Mary Estelle Lewis of Winnsboro will direct the dancing. Mrs. Audie Moffatt will be director of music. Other members of the staff are Jane Schindler of Lake Charles, Arline Villain of Lafayette, Merrell Loubet and Mary Parlour of New Orleans.

Miss Annie Rose Wyly

THE guys WHO DON'T SAY MUCH.

You can see them in any American crowd, in any American town, in any American discussion.

The guys who don't say much.

But they're the salt of the earth.

They think and they feel and they know. They have an inner sense of what's right and what's wrong that no mountains can shake and no babbling can hide.

Reading their papers, listening to their radios, these past few years they've felt trouble, bad trouble, closing in on them. They sensed there was plenty wrong. Now they KNOW there is!

They want to change things here as they've changed things in other decent countries. They don't like the confident air you can breathe in America . . . that you can see in the friendly wave of a hand to a neighbor . . . in the good-natured jostling crowd at a ball game . . . in the unsuspecting greeting you give to a stranger . . . in the clanging, sweaty, laughing, contemptuous way we build, tear down, and build again!

Change that, eh? That's America!

And the people who don't say much are beginning to think hard now. They're stirring—they're rising. And when they do converge into a torrent, they can overwhelm anything, on this earth, or in its waters, or in the air above it. But they'd better do it quickly for there's just no time to lose!

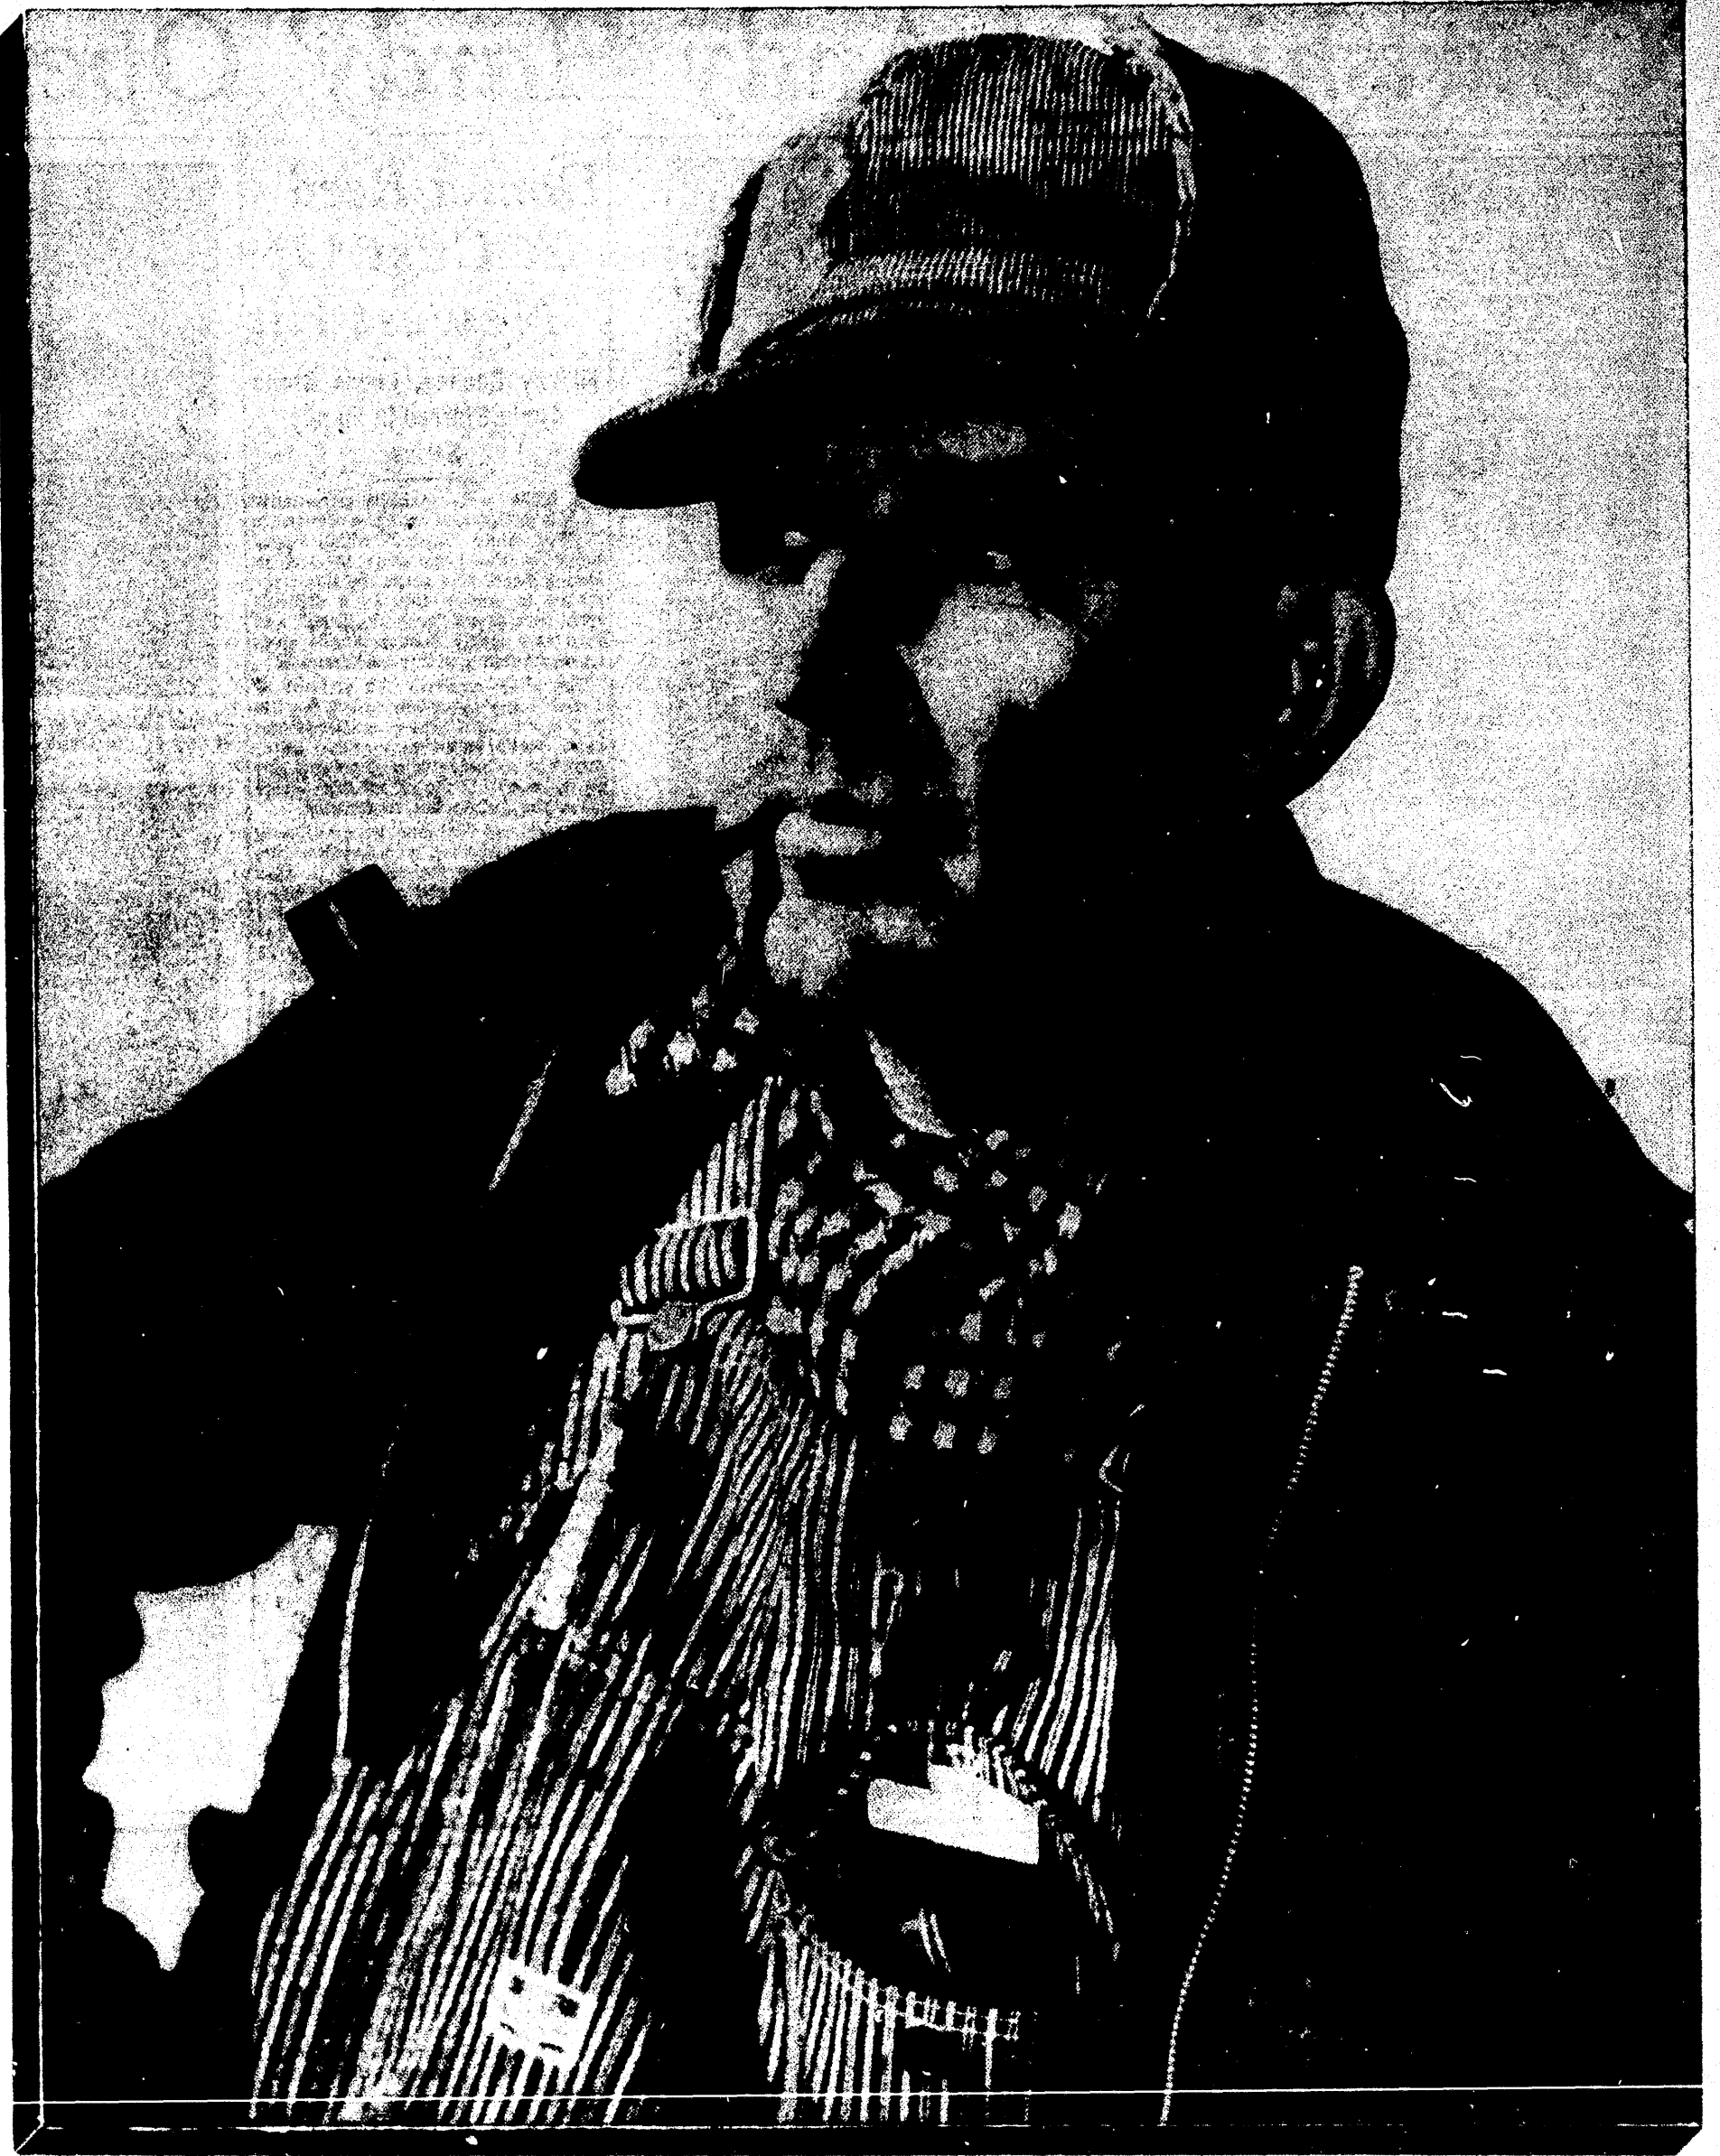

Some of them can, some of them are, going into our Army, and our Navy, and our Air Force. Some of them can, some of them are, building our guns, our tanks, our ships, our planes.

All of them can, all of them should, take their money out of pay checks and go without things even when it pinches, to buy War Bonds!

They can save their dimes into quarters . . . their quarters into dollars to give us still more guns and tanks and planes and ships so that we can all have a better place to live in, where no such danger as this shall come again; and so our children may know a far better world, a far happier time.

The guys who don't say much are buying a share in America!

THE guys
WHO DON'T SAY MUCH

You can see them in any American crowd, in any American town, in any American discussion.

The guys who don't say much.

But they're the salt of the earth.

They think and they feel and they know. They have an inner sense of what's right and what's wrong that no mountains can shake and no babbling can hide.

Reading their papers, listening to their radios, these past few years they've felt trouble, bad trouble, closing in on them. They sensed there was plenty wrong. Now they KNOW there is!

For the first time in 25 years, somebody is trying to push these quiet people around. Somebody is saying liberty is too good for the average man. And the terrible part of it is that these somebodies are bloodthirsty madmen.

They want to change things here as they've changed things in other decent countries. They don't like the confident air you can breathe in America . . . that you can see in the friendly wave of a hand to a neighbor . . . in the good-natured jostling crowd at a ball game . . . in the unsuspecting greeting you give to a stranger . . . in the clanging, sweaty, laughing, contemptuous way we build, tear down, and build again!

Change that, eh? That's America!

And the people who don't say much are beginning to think hard now. They're stirring—they're rising. And when they do converge into a torrent, they can overwhelm anything, on this earth, or in its waters, or in the air above it. But they'd better do it quickly for there's just no time to lose!

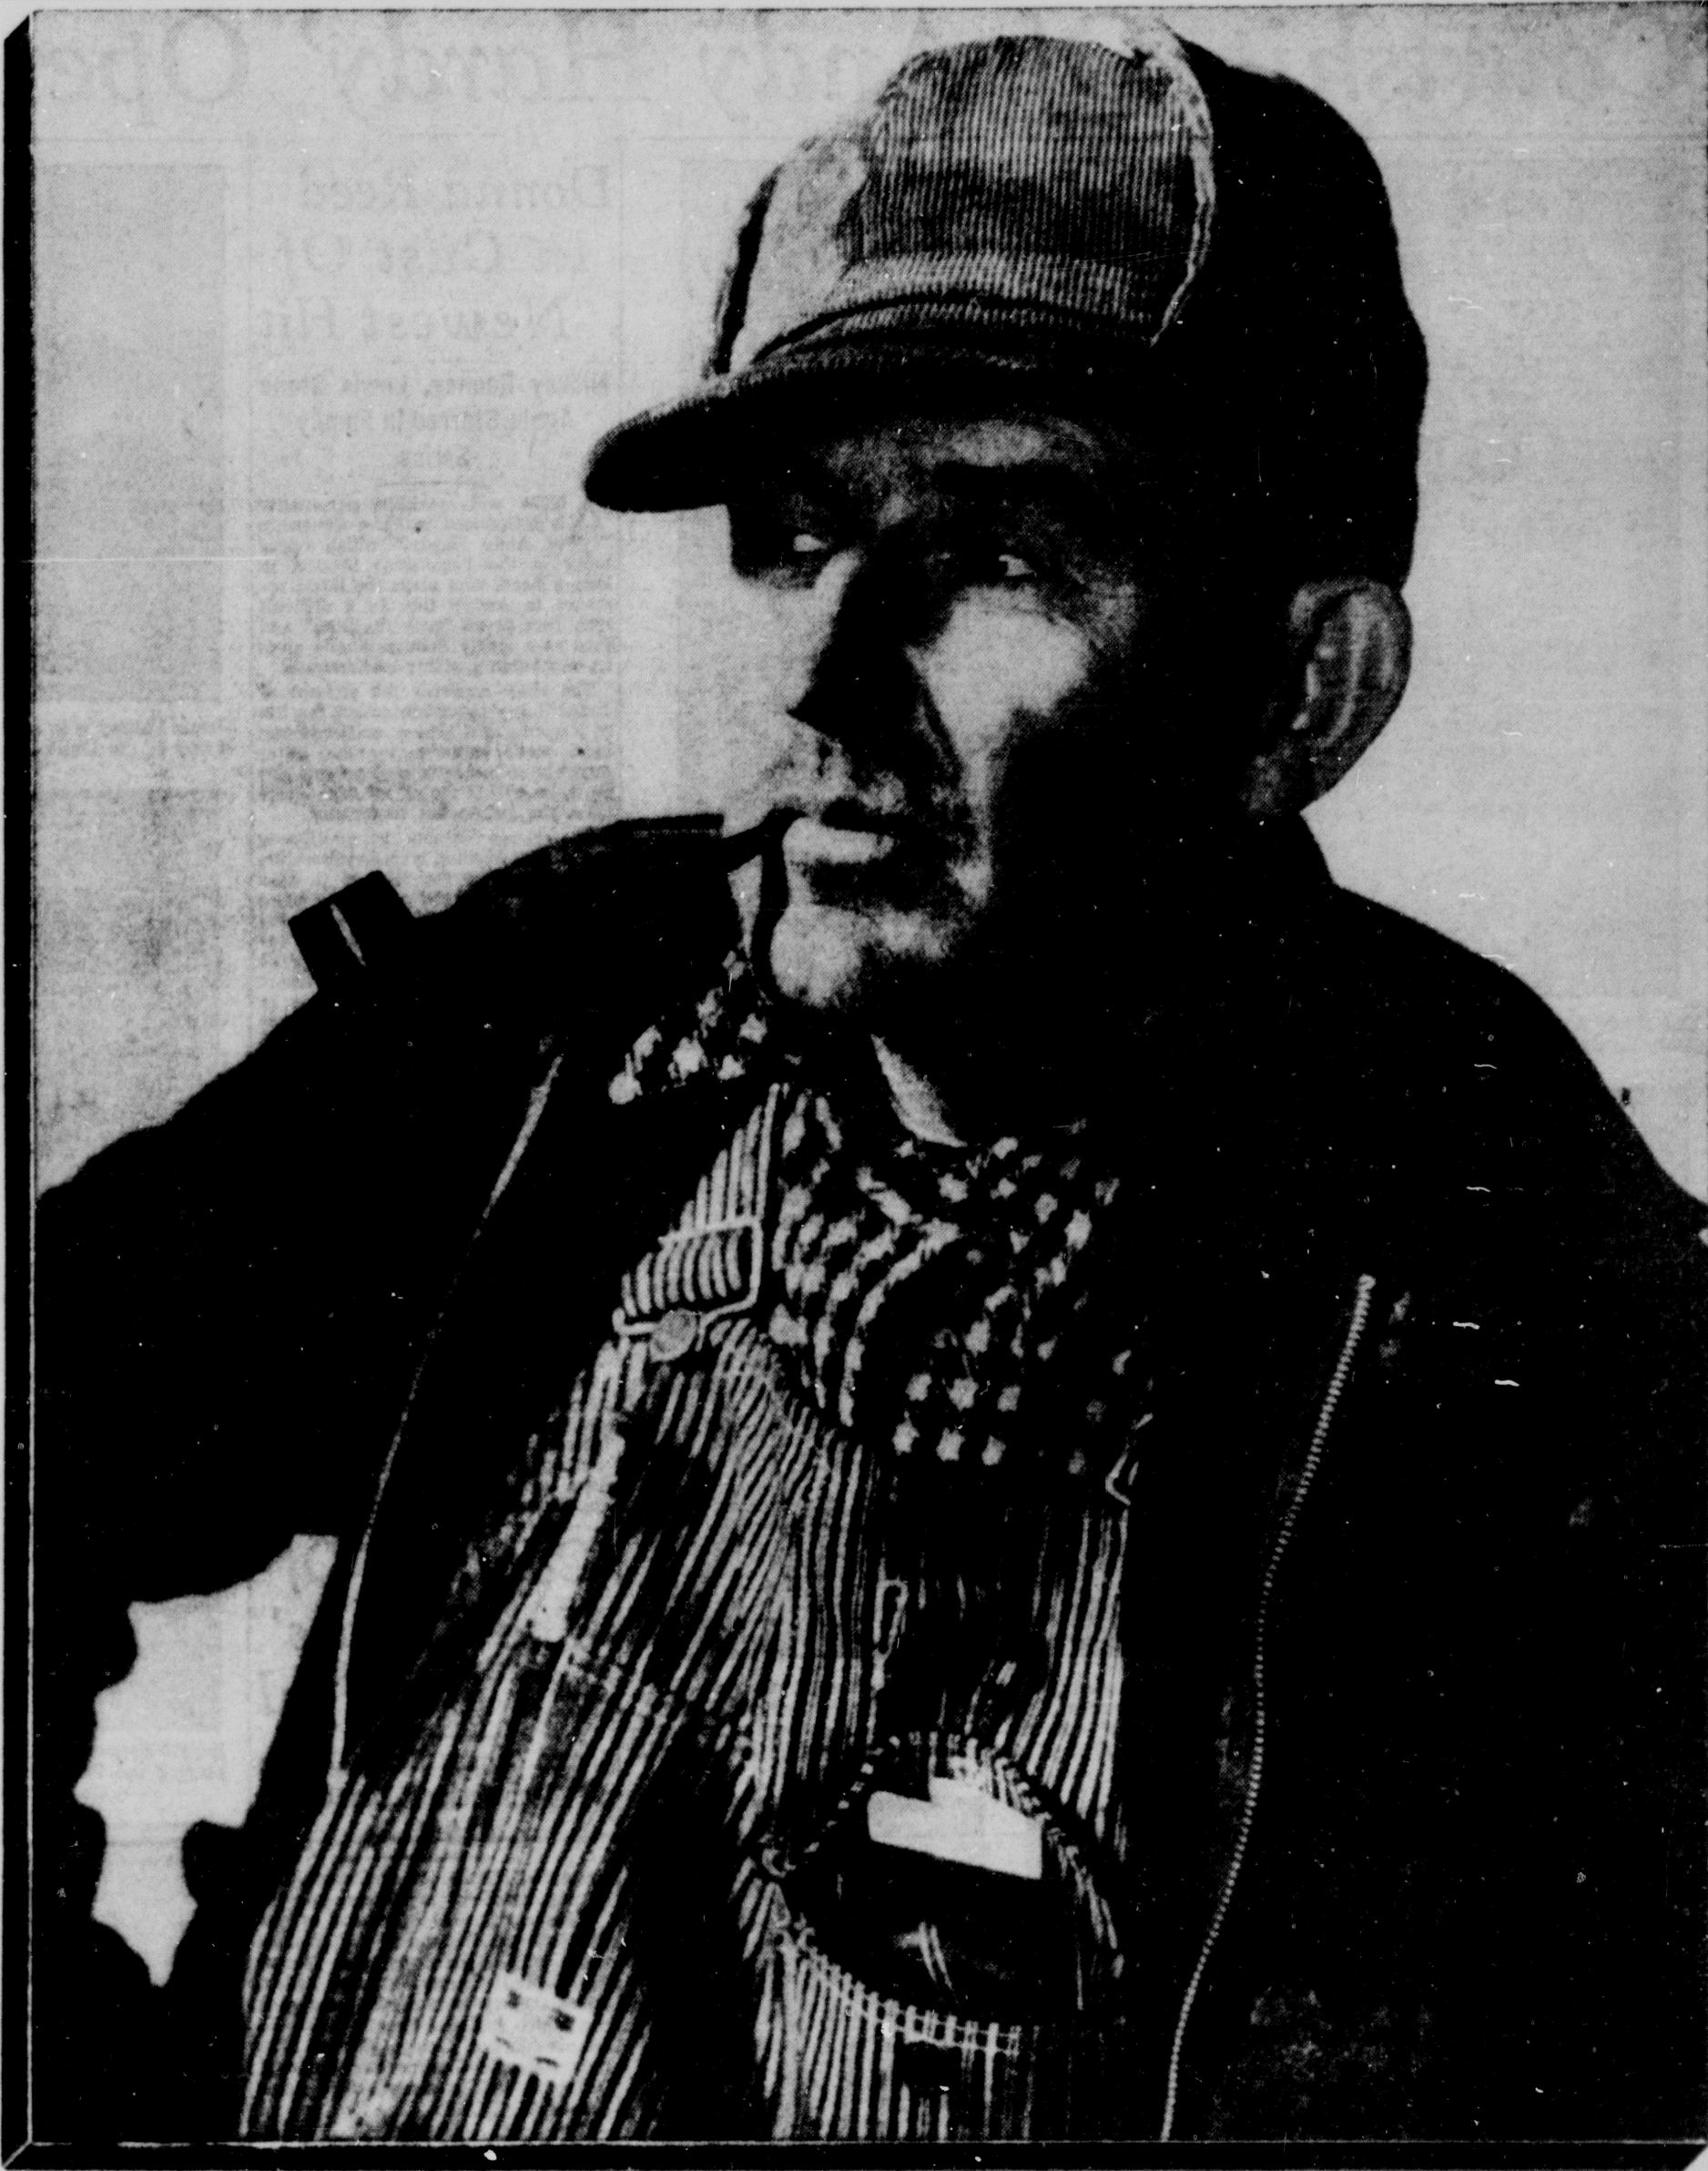

Some of them can, some of them are, going into our Army, and our Navy, and our Air Force. Some of them can, some of them are, building our guns, our tanks, our ships, our planes.

All of them can, all of them should, take their money out of pay checks and go without things even when it pinches, to buy War Bonds!

They can save their dimes into quarters . . . their quarters into dollars to give us still more guns and tanks and planes and ships so that we can all have a better place to live in, where no such danger as this shall come again; and so our children may know a far better world, a far happier time.

The guys who don't say much are buying a share in America!

Join them! Get War Stamps and Bonds today!

'Courtship Of Andy Hardy' Opens At Paramount Today

The Hardy family are having their ups and downs again. Mickey Rooney is in love, and "The Courtship of Andy Hardy," is the result. Playing today through Tuesday at the Paramount with Lewis Stone and Donna Reed, and including the "Hardy" clan.

The management of the Paramount has personally recommended four pictures during the past two years and this picture is the fifth. With Frank Morgan as Colonel Yancey, Kathryn Grayson, Spring Byington, Natalie Thompson and Douglas Newland, "The Vanishing Virginian," is for the entire family. An outstandingly beautiful picture with every element to make it a great picture. It plays on the Paramount screen Wednesday and Thursday.

George Murphy is "The Mayor of 4th Street" with Ann Shirley, at the Paramount theater Friday and Saturday. Fredrick Martin and his orchestra are featured along with William Gargan, Jon Merrill and Richard Barthelmess.

"Born To Sing" with Virginia Weidler, Ray McDonald, Leo Gorcey, "Rags" Ragland and Douglas McPhail, is a first run showing that is chuck-full of singing and dancing and fun as only the juvenile aristocrats of Hollywood can produce. Entertaining throughout, "Born To Sing" plays the Capitol screen Saturday.

Donna Reed In Cast Of Newest Hit

Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone Again Starred In Family Series

A NEW and sparkling personality is introduced in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy," which opens today at the Paramount theater, in Donna Reed, who plays the latest romance in Andy's life. In a difficult role, first as an "ugly duckling" and then as a lovely debutante, she gives an outstanding acting performance.

The story concerns the attempt of Judge Hardy to straighten out the life of a young girl whose existence has been made pathetic by the bitter quarrels of her separated parents. To do it, he enlists the aid of Andy, who takes the girl to her first dance.

She proves the expected wallflower and Andy's evening is made miserable. His courage in the face of it wins her worship, and she resolves to make herself attractive. This she does at the next dance, but Andy still doesn't return her feelings, a source of no little worry to himself as well as to her. John Alden style, he succeeds in turning her affections to another young man, and then escapes the clutches of Polly Benedict, who threatens a return into his "love life." In the hilarious course of events, he also manages to get in and out of a serious "scrape" with the police, rescues his sister from a dramatic situation and turn his ancient jalopy into a tow company.

Lewis Stone is as sympathetic as ever as the wise small-town judge, and his "man to man" talks with Andy prove highlights of the picture. Fay Holden, Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford and Sara Haden also score in their familiar characterizations.

William Lundigan and Steve Connell join as fine leading-man prospects following their debut in the series, while Harvey Stephens and Frieda Inescort are effective as Miss Reed's hating parents. Director George B. Seitz maintains the spirit of the simple, small-town American family.

'Captains Of The Clouds' At Capitol

James Cagney Heads Cast In Technicolor Story Of R. C. A. F.

CANADA'S heroes of the air, flying headlong to victory, are the heroes, too, of "Captains of the Clouds," the "Warner Bros." picture which will be the new screen fare at the Capitol theater, starting today. James Cagney stars at the head of a cast which includes Brenda Marshall, Dennis Morgan, George Tobias, Alan Hale, Reginald Gardner and Reginald Denny as well as many actual members of the RCAF.

Filmed in glorious Technicolor, "Captains of the Clouds" tells a heroic story of some high pilots from the ranks of northern Canada who enlist in the Royal Canadian Air Force after the "war" Churchill's "We Shall Overcome" speech. A three-cornered romance involving a vicarious but lovely French-Canadian girl and two of the pilots is the human interest background against which the story of the heroic flyers is played.

Central figure in the drama is the character portrayed by Cagney. A hard-flying, hard-fighting guy, he enlists in the service expecting to be sent out immediately to fight the Axis planes in the sky. Instead he is assigned to a teaching job on the ground. His attempts to prove that he is an able sky fighter only serve to get him dismissed from the service. He gets his chance, however, when he volunteers to ferry a bomber over to England, and through his heroism is able to save the rest of the squadron when they are attacked by a Messerschmitt. "Captains of the Clouds" was directed by Michael Curtiz.

The word billing comes from the type name for this craft, which was B-limp.

Ronald Reagan and Ann Sheridan are starred in "Yokel Boy," playing Friday at the Capitol, with America's ace funsters, Albert Dekker, Joan Davis, Eddie Foy, Jr., Alan Mowbray and Roscoe Karns. This is the picture which hits Hollywood in a delightful, gangsterish way.

LONGER LIFE FOR YOUR CAR IS AIM OF 'SHORTY'S' BODY WORKS

SHORTY'S BODY SHOP AND GARAGE NOW IN ITS 6TH YEAR

Above photo shows interior view of Shorty's Body Shop & Garage where owner L. O. (Shorty) Wilkinson has been serving well a growing list of customers for over five years.

Maintains Well-Equipped Shop--Gives Good Service

Seven years ago, in 1937, L. O. Wilkinson, better known to many friends as "Shorty," opened the doors of "Shorty's" Body Works and Garage, at 308 Washington, and inaugurated a business institution that is firmly entrenched in the life of the Twin Cities. Planned to be mainly a well-equipped shop for the repair and service of automobiles, Mr. Wilkinson later took over the Hudson automobile agency here, selling many cars prior to the termination of their manufacture when the war came.

Today Mr. Wilkinson is doing his bit for the conservation of automobiles by rendering the best possible service in their repair and reconditioning. A visit to his shop for a check-up and repair will certainly add miles to the usefulness of your car, the last one you will have until peace comes again.

A feature in "Shorty's" Body Shop for the conservation of your tires is the excellent wheel and frame alignment equipment. With the aid of this accurate equipment wheels are accurately balanced, the frame is checked and aligned, and the wear on your tires is reduced as much as 50 per cent or more. With no more tires available, this service is of major importance to all automobile owners.

Greater safety and less damage to your car and tires will be achieved through the splendid brake service offered by "Shorty's" body works. Mr. Wilkinson warns owners to keep their brakes in top condition and prevent disaster.

With rust and bad appearance decreasing the life and appearance of your car, Mr. Wilkinson operates a well-equipped paint department where your car is given a new-like appearance by experienced painters. Your refrigerator may also have its "face lifted" with a new coat of paint in this shop.

Mr. Wilkinson invites you to visit his shop and let him prove that his service is not only of the best, but his rate of charges are on a live-and-let-live basis.

SINCLAIR SERVICE IS HOLT STATION FEATURE

Better lubrication means longer life to your automobile, preaches X. Holt of Holt's Service station at 208 North Third street. By better lubrication, Mr. Holt means Sinclair lubrication, the type of lubrication, Mr. Holt points out, has stood the test of time.

For the past seven years Mr. Holt has been operating his station at his present location, and during that time he has made a careful study of car care and lubrication.

Since your present automobile must serve until happier days of peace come, the best care and most careful servicing is necessary. At Mr. Holt's station he gives your automobile a most minute check-up when you drive there for service. Your tires are checked, brakes inspected and many other little services that may seem inconsequential at the time but may prevent serious trouble later.

Mr. Holt and his trained staff of assistants will welcome an opportunity to show you how much more you get in the way of service when you visit their station.

A NEAT GARAGE DESIGN

Design No. 4 from the booklet, "Southern Pine Garages," published and distributed free upon request by the Southern Pine Association, New Orleans, Louisiana.

PINE ASS'N. OFFERS GARAGE PLANNING BOOK

The design of the roof is of great importance to the properly planned garage, for it generally makes, or mars, the relationship between the house and the garage.

Here is a good example of this statement. The above illustration shows the pitch of the roof to the front and rear, thus accentuating the horizontal architectural treatment. This particular design would look attractive with any number of different patterns of siding, and the doors may be either the overhead type or the conventional swinging kind.

As in several of the other designs shown in the book, "Southern Pine Garages," this one also provides ample space for laundry equipment, general storage, and lockers for general storage. The floor plan shows a door and window on the left side of the building where work bench or lockers may be located, but if more openings are desired on the opposite side, they may be easily provided.

The building measures 23 feet by 21 feet, and the bill of material needed to construct it is shown in the book where detail sectional drawings are also furnished.

TROY AND NICHOLS FAST GROWING INS. CONCERN

More than ever, in these war days, the property owner must consider protecting himself against possible losses through a sudden disaster to his assets. To the end of giving the best in protection, the firm of Troy and Nichols, insurance, in the Ouachita Bank building, has a steadily growing clientele. Excellent claim service, plus substantial savings to all policyholders in responsible for Troy and Nichols' growth, a growth that has resulted in this insurance firm becoming a leader in the Twin Cities.

Troy and Nichols specialize in a "preferred risk" type of business, saving extreme rates on their own writing. This effects substantial savings by reason of reduced losses and those savings are passed on to policyholders. According to Troy and Nichols, savings to policyholders run as high as 25 per cent.

This popular insurance firm will be glad to take over your insurance problem, to give you the maximum in insurance protection at a minimum of cost.

Your old mattress may be reliable, but it is certainly not as good as the new ones. During 1941 approximately 100,000 motorists either lost their keys or locked them inside the car and had to call for special assistance.

KEEP 'EM RUNNING,' SAYS MASSEY SERVICE

While they can't fill your need for tires, as pre-Pearl Harbor days when they would have quickly installed you a set of Goodrich tires, Massey Service offers you an excellent repair and service, easy-pay plan for your automobile, to help you keep it running.

As long as your rubber tires, you are entitled to 100 per cent efficiency from your car and the Massey Service repair and service men will help you obtain it, and on an easy pay plan, too.

Mr. Massey suggests that you drive in, let them check your car over, make an estimate on the costs, and then arrange a convenient pay plan over a long period.

Massey Service also has one of the city's best equipped and manned radio service departments. With no more radios being manufactured your present radio must be made to last the "duration." Let Massey Service handle your radio service work and you will be assured of better performance from your set.

Mr. Massey urges that you not neglect having either your car or radio properly serviced when the first symptoms of trouble are noted. "A stitch in time saves nine" and if attended to at once minor troubles may prevent more serious ones later.

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

CHAPTER XIX

Someone was standing in the corridor, someone's hand was on the knob of the door. Talcott was in a terrible spot then. If this were Halsey returning, he would spend the rest of his shipboard days in the brig. If it were the steward, wondering why he took so long, he would be a little better off. But he would have to show the envelope to prove good faith and the steward, when Halsey's search began, would remember. Why, he thought agonizingly, couldn't I have said a magazine?

The fumbling at the knob stopped and knuckles pounded against the polished wood panel. That wouldn't be Halsey. "Who's there?" Talcott called.

"Constantine," the professor's voice quavered. "Didn't get a chance to speak to you in the dining room— is your headache any better?"

"Blessed relief! Quite, thank you," trying to make his voice sound like Halsey's.

"May I come in?"

"Yes, I'm dressing."

"Disappointment. Then, I'll right see you on deck."

Talcott waited, counting to 20 by hundreds, and with the envelope tucked under his arm, stepped nonchalantly to the corridor. The professor was gone and the steward was nowhere in sight. A short distance after a couple blocked the passageway, discussing plans for the evening.

What to do with the envelope. Put it back? Halsey would immediately naturally assume that the true contents had been appropriated and blank paper substituted. No. Better to take the thing and leave it overboard. Unless— Could Struthers' report be written in invisible ink? Under ordinary circumstances such a thing would have smacked too much of fiction. Now, he wasn't so sure.

He couldn't help it in his cabin. Search and discovery would leave him without a trace of defense. No. Find a hiding place, and soon. There wasn't much time.

He found it. In, of all places, the fire hose locker right beside the door to Halsey's stateroom. Only a snap-catch held its glass-enclosed front and Talcott, swinging out the ribbon-catch hose, placed the envelope behind.

He was pacing the deck when he saw a lone figure leaning over the rail, watching the moon. It was June Paterson and at his approach she glanced up and then hastily away. "Hello," she said dispiritedly.

"Hello yourself," he replied with forced joviality. "Where are the rest of our playmates?"

"If you mean Martha Swenson, she's with the doctor. Looking at the moon. Maybe you'd like to join her."

He tucked her hand under his arm. "Let's find a couple of chairs and look at the moon ourselves. That is, if you can stand my company."

She didn't answer that, but she accompanied him. Which in itself was a answer of sorts. Forward they found two unoccupied chairs, a little apart from the others.

"You like to sit beside me?" asked June, as they sat watching the moon's path on the water.

"I do."

"Are you sure you trust me?"

"More than I trust myself."

She sighed. "I'm terribly glad. Really, I'm not a bad person, I just have the unhappy faculty of hurting most the people I want to hurt the least."

"I suppose you refer to your spying on MacDowell and me back on Abasco Island?"

Her head turned quickly. "Spying? Do you mean the time I walked into MacDowell's room? I wasn't spying. You were so wrapped up in your own little world that you didn't even hear me. And I was a little bit angry with you because you wouldn't take Leonard Halsey's suggestion."

"Halsey's?"

"Yes. It was he who told MacDowell to remind you of your rights of fighting—extradition if you so desired. Didn't MacDowell tell you that?"

So that was how it was, MacDowell still groggy from the blow on his head, had forgotten who gave him the idea. No wonder Halsey's attitude had changed. Halsey and the girl. Sighing he said, "I'm sorry June. I owe both you and Halsey an apology. I'm pretty much mixed up."

"I'm not surprised. I've kept silent because you acted so—so damned free and unassuming. It was your attitude that made me mad. But I couldn't help noticing what was happening to you. You're not a criminal. I don't know what's behind all this, or why. But I do know you."

Suddenly he understood Her petulance. Her seeming apologetics. Her swift changes of mood. She, an old acquaintance and cousin of his best friend had been expecting fun, or at least a welcome. And how had he acted?

She was talking again, low, as if it were painful. "You forget that I grew up with Lowell. He was my ideal. Anything that he admired I admired, and your virtues and accomplishments were standard bywords. It was I who worried you into our first blind date."

And he'd doubted her! She had fallen in love with him as a girl, that as a woman she had accepted him as a standard to be held above other men.

"You strong silent men! I shall be persistent. How much money are you supposed to have stolen?"

"I—I can't discuss it, June."

"Is it your pride? I shall further cast mine to the winds to tell you that I visited Saint Thomas with the sole purpose and intent of seeing you."

"Good heavens!"

"It's true. You can imagine my chagrin when I discovered how far Abasco was from Saint Thomas. I had the notion that it was right next door. Do I bore you?"

"No, no!" Against his will, it came out in a tumbling rush. Everything. The frameup, his suspicions, his fears. No smallest item did he leave out, even to discovering that the "report" in Halsey's envelope was nothing but sheets of blank paper.

At its end she was silent, so silent that he leaned over in annoyance, thinking she must have fallen asleep. But she was very much awake, and the flash in her eyes warned him to turn.

His room steward, the one he had asked about the grotesque bald-headed man, stood by his chair. "Mr. Talcott, sir? The gentleman, Mr. MacDowell, wishes to see you immediately. On the boat deck, sir. He said it was important."

The steward trotted away and Talcott climbed to his feet. June Paterson arose also, saying, "Now that we have completely bared our souls I'd like to enlist on your side. I'm really very clever."

He looked at her thoughtfully, and suddenly gathering her in his arms, kissed her hard on the mouth. Nor did she try to pull away. (To Be Continued)

NAVY STICKERS PROVING POPULAR

Recently, the United States navy department prepared a window sticker reading, "Here is a man from this family in the navy." The United States navy recruiting station, 304 postoffice building, here has a supply of these stickers, and the recruiters state that the demand from people in the vicinity has exceeded their expectations. This can only mean one thing, and that is that there are many men from Monroe and surrounding towns serving in the navy today, and their folks back home are proud of it.

Some of these men have made sacrifices to serve their country in the branch of service of their choice, and they are doing a good job of it, however, the navy, your navy, still needs thousands of men to help carry on the work that the navy is doing and must be done to terminate this fight for our freedom.

There is no question that every man is going to have to get into this fight sooner or later, so, men, why not see your navy recruiting officer and investigate the advantages of the navy. The navy is enlisting men today from 17 to 35, and there is a place for you. Don't delay—see your navy man at once. And folks, if you have a son, brother or husband in the navy, don't fail to come by the recruiting office and obtain one of the stickers. You will be proud to have it on your front door officers assure.

CADET EXAMINING BOARD IS REMOVED

Announcement was made by the Monroe district recruiting headquarters where it will be held in the Louisiana district recruiting headquarters. The Monroe board has been operating in this city for the past three months, and has been doing a heads up job in securing aviation cadet applicants.

The personnel of the board wishes to thank all the citizens of Monroe and vicinity for their hospitality and cooperation while it was stationed here, and urges all young men of this district to continue to strive to become aviation cadets. In order to make it easier for them to do so, the board has made arrangements for applicants to file applications and allied papers with the regular army recruiting officer, room 301 post office building, Monroe. When this office has a number of applicants on file, district headquarters will be notified of the fact, and a traveling board will be detailed to Monroe to complete examinations.

PLANT BY NIGHT

PIERRE, S. D.—(AP)—Grain farmers find the new-fangled tractors great stuff these days. They laughed at the headlights and built-in radios two years ago, but with the draft taking their sons, and a late planting season, they are working far into the night on their tractors to seed before the heavy rains. The headlights are useful and the night broadcasts are welcome.

If this were Halsey returning, he would spend the rest of his shipboard days in the brig. If it were the steward, wondering why he took so long, he would be a little better off. But he would have to show the envelope to prove good faith and the steward, when Halsey's search began, would remember. Why, he thought agonizedly, couldn't I have said a magazine? The fumbling at the knob stopped and knuckles pounded against the polished wood panel. That wouldn't be Halsey. "Who's there?" Talcott called.

'KEEP 'EM RUNNING,' SAYS MASSEY SERVICE
While they can't fill your need for tires, as pre-Pearl Harbor days when they would have quickly installed you a set of Goodrich tires, Massey Service offers you an excellent repair and service. As long as your rubber lasts, you are entitled to 100 per cent efficiency from your car and the Massey Service repair and service men will help you obtain it, and on an easy pay plan, too. Mr. Massey suggests that you drive in, let them check your car over, make an estimate on the costs, and then arrange a convenient pay plan over a long period. Massey Service also has one of the city's best equipped and manned radio service departments. With no more radios being manufactured your present radio must be made to last the "duration." Let Massey Service handle your radio service work and you will be assured of better performance from your set. Mr. Massey urges that you not neglect having either your car or radio properly serviced when the first signs of trouble are noted. "A stitch in time saves nine" and if attended to at once minor troubles may prevent more serious ones later.

"Constantine," the professor's voice quivered. "Didn't get a chance to speak to you in the dining room—Is your headache any better?" "Blessed relief! "Quite, thank you," trying to make his voice sound like Halsey's. "May I come in?" "Not just now, I'm dressing." "Oh." Disappointment. Then, "All right. See you on deck." Talcott waited, counting to 20 by hundreds, and with the envelope tucked under his arm, stepped nonchalantly to the corridor. The professor was gone and the steward was nowhere in sight. A short distance after a couple blocked the passageway, discussing plans for the evening. What to do with the envelope. Put it back? Halsey would immediately see the rip in the flap and would naturally assume that the true contents had been appropriated and blank paper substituted. No. Better to take the thing and leave it overboard. Unless— Could Struthers' report be written in invisible ink? Under ordinary circumstances such a thing would have smacked too much of fiction. Now, he wasn't so sure. He couldn't hide it in his cabin. Search and discovery would leave him without a straw of defense. No. Find a hiding place, and soon. There wasn't much time— He found it. In, of all places, the fire hose locker beside the door to Halsey's stateroom. Only a snapshot held its glass-enclosed front and Talcott, swinging out the ribbon-racked hose, placed the envelope behind.

He was pacing the deck when he saw a lone figure leaning over the rail, watching the moon. It was June Paterson and at his approach she glanced up and then hastily away. "Hello," she said dispiritedly. "Hello yourself," he replied with forced joviality. "Where are the rest of our playmates?" "If you mean Martha Swenson, she's with the doctor. Looking at the moon. Maybe you'd like to join her?" He tucked her hand under his arm. "Let's find a couple of chairs and look at the moon ourselves. That is, if you can stand my company." She didn't answer that, but she accompanied him. Which in itself was an answer of sorts. Forward they found two unoccupied chairs, a little apart from the others. "You like to sit beside me?" asked June, as they sat watching the moon. "Oh, on the water." "I do." "Are you sure you trust me?" "More than I trust myself." She sighed. "I'm terribly glad. Really, I'm not a bad person. I just have

Announcement was made by the Monroe aviation cadet examining board of its transfer to New Orleans where it will be held in the Louisiana district recruiting headquarters. The Monroe board has been operating in this city for the past three months, and has been doing a heads up job in securing aviation cadet applicants. The personnel of the board wishes to thank all the citizens of Monroe and vicinity for their hospitality and cooperation while it was stationed here, and urges all young men of this district to continue to strive to become aviation cadets. In order to make it easier for them to do so, the board has made arrangements for applicants to file applications and allied papers with the regular army recruiting officer, room 301 post office building, Monroe. When this office has a number of applicants on file, district headquarters will be notified of the fact, and a traveling board will be detailed to Monroe to complete examinations.

PIANT BY NIGHT
PIERRE, S. D.—(AP)—Grain farmers find the new-fangled tractors great stuff these days. They laughed at the headlights and built-in radios two years ago, but with the draft taking their sons, and a late planting season, they are working far into the night on their tractors to seed before the heavy rains. The headlights are useful and the night broadcasts are welcome.

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, MAY 31, 1942

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Synopsis: PRINCE VALIANT AND SIR GAWAIN ACT AS SECONDS TO TWO AGED WARRIORS WHO WERE QUARRELING LUSTILY IN A FOREST GLADE. IT WAS A TERRIBLE BATTLE, OR, SHOULD WE SAY, AS A BATTLE IT WAS TERRIBLE! THE COMEDY ENDED WITH BOTH KNIGHTS LOSING THEIR WEAPONS AND COLLAPSING FROM WEARINESS. A SHRILL TUMULT IS HEARD APPROACHING.

"MY WIFE!" WHEEZES THE ONE KNOWN AS SID AVOIDDUDIOS. "AND MINE!" PANTS SIR MALNUTRITION.

TWO FLUSTERED MATRONS APPEAR AND RUSH TO THEIR RESPECTIVE HUSBANDS, SEARCHING ANXIOUSLY, BUT IN VAIN, FOR FATAL WOUNDS.

THEN EACH, BEING REASSURED THAT HER HUSBAND IS UNHURT, TURNS UPON HIS ADVERSARY AND FOR THE FIRST TIME THAT DAY DANGER REALLY THREATENS!

SID GAWAIN THROWS BACK HIS GLOSSY CURLS, SHOWS HIS WHITE TEETH IN HIS BEST SMILE AND PURRS, "WHAT A CHARMING PICTURE YOU GIRLS DO MAKE! ANGER HAS MADE YOUR EYES SPARKLE AND BROUGHT THE ROSES TO YOUR CHEEKS. HOW LOVELY!"

THEN VAL PUTS HIS OAR IN. "THIS DAY WE HAVE BEEN PRIVILEGED TO SEE AN EPIC STRUGGLE; NEVER HAVE WARRIORS STRUCK MORE TERRIBLY, NOR STOOD MORE VALIANTLY TO THE ATTACK...THE VERY FORESTS SHOOK!"

"HE IS RIGHT, DEAR NEIGHBOR, BUT HEREAFTER LET US RESOLVE TO QUELL THE ARDOR OF OUR FLAMING TEMPER, FOR SOMEONE BE KILLED!"

"AND NOW LET US CELEBRATE WITH A BANQUET OUR GOOD FORTUNE IN EMERGING FROM THIS BATTLE UNHURT. I AM HUNGRY!"

"WE CERTAINLY DOURED THE OIL OF FLATTERY UPON THE TROUBLED WATERS TO GOOD EFFECT," GRINS VAL, WELL PLEASED WITH HIMSELF. "I HOPE THE PROMISED BANQUET IS WORTH THE AMOUNT OF OIL WE SPREAD," REJOINS THE PRACTICAL GAWAIN.

THEY GO GAILY UP THE PATH TO THEIR CELEBRATION, WHILE FROM THE OTHER DIRECTION RIDES A LADY WITH FEAR-HAUNTED EYES, SEEKING HELP.

NEXT WEEK - The Missing Thane.

JUNGLE JIM

RAYMOND

JIM AND HIS GUERRILLAS HAVE FILTERED THROUGH THE ENEMY LINES AND STARTED THEIR ATTACK ON A GREAT AMMUNITION DEPOT---

JAP OUTPOSTS LEAP TO THEIR GUNS--BUT TOO LATE--THEY HAVE ALREADY BEEN SURROUNDED AND JIM'S JUNGLE FIGHTERS QUICKLY SILENCE THEM.

Copyright 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

MEANWHILE, THE MAIN BODY OF JIM'S TROOPS POUR INTO THE ENEMY CAMP FROM ALL DIRECTIONS. HALF-CLAD JAP SOLDIERS TUMBLE FROM THEIR BEDS AND FIGHT BRAVELY, BUT INEFFECTUALLY.

THE EARTH ROCKS AND TREMBLES, AS VAST STORES OF AMMUNITION AND EXPLOSIVES ARE TOUCHED OFF!

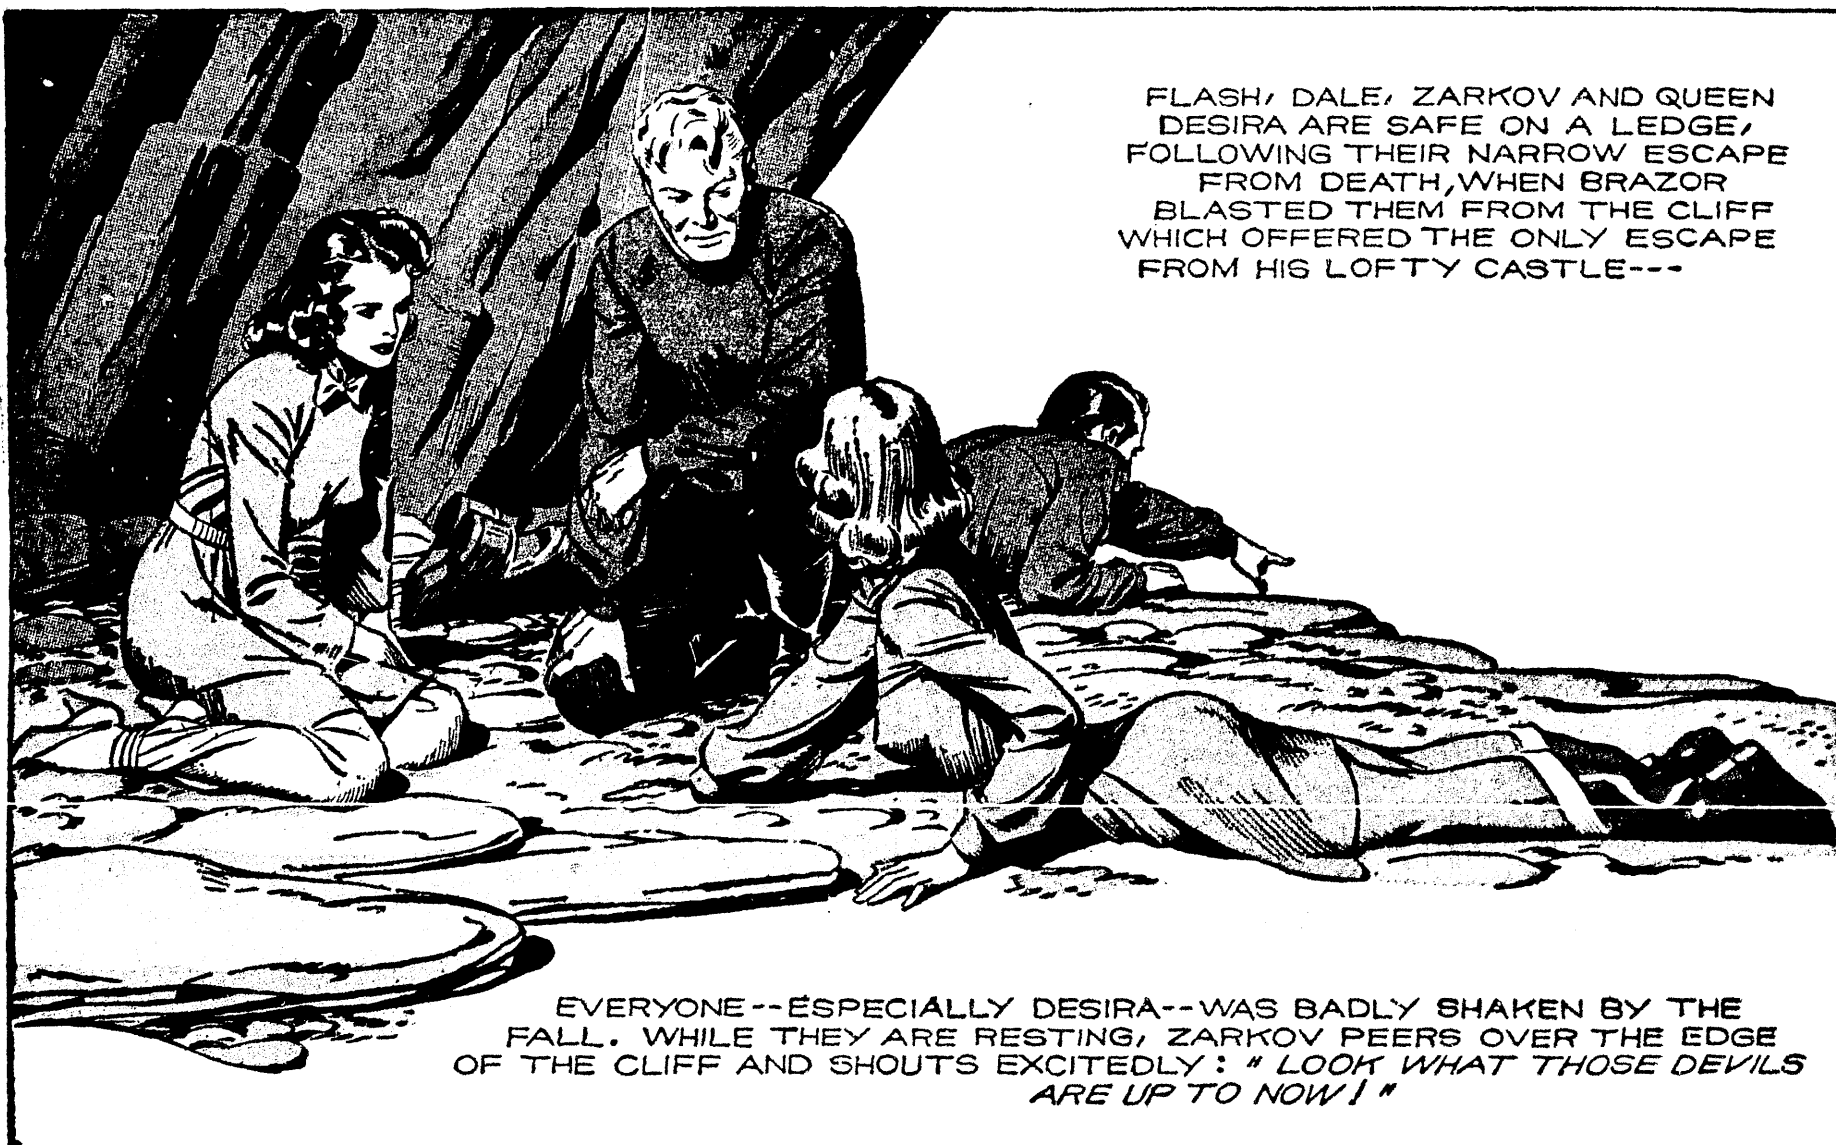

A NEARBY CONCUSSION HURLS CAPTAIN JIM TO THE GROUND, HALF STUNNING HIM. AS HE STRUGGLES TO REGAIN HIS FEET, A JAPANESE OFFICER RUSHES AT HIM TO DELIVER THE DEATH STROKE!

5-31-42.

Flash Gordon

Registered U. S. Patent Office

FLASH, DALE, ZARKOV AND QUEEN DESIRA ARE SAFE ON A LEDGE, FOLLOWING THEIR NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH, WHEN BRAZOR BLASTED THEM FROM THE CLIFF WHICH OFFERED THE ONLY ESCAPE FROM HIS LOFTY CASTLE---

EVERYONE--ESPECIALLY DESIRA--WAS BADLY SHAKEN BY THE FALL. WHILE THEY ARE RESTING, ZARKOV PEERS OVER THE EDGE OF THE CLIFF AND SHOUTS EXCITEDLY: "LOOK WHAT THOSE DEVILS ARE UP TO NOW!"

THE WORDS ARE BARELY OUT OF ZARKOV'S MOUTH WHEN A RAY-CANNON OPENS FIRE FROM BELOW AND A BOLT STRIKES JUST BENEATH THE FUGITIVES' LEDGE---

THE TRAPPED FUGITIVES HUDDLE IN THE REAR OF THE CAVE, AS THE NEXT RAY-BURST HITS THE OUTER EDGE: "THEY'LL KNOCK THE ROOF DOWN AND BURY US!" MUTTERS ZARKOV.

Copyright 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

BUT THE FORCE OF THE EXPLOSIONS OPENS A NARROW CRACK IN THE REAR WALL OF THE CAVE. FLASH PUSHES HIS FRIENDS THROUGH IT AND FOLLOWS THEM INTO A WIDE FISSURE---

5-31-42.

AS THEY PUSH DEEPER INTO THE MOUNTAIN, THE PASSAGEWAY NARROWS CONSIDERABLY-- BUT THE EXPLOSIONS GROW MORE DISTANT, WHICH ALLOWS ALL TO BREATHE EASIER AGAIN.

FATEFUL FOUNTAIN

AFTER HE HAD FLED INTO THE FOREST THE KOLOSAN SET TARZAN DOWN AND POINTED BACK.

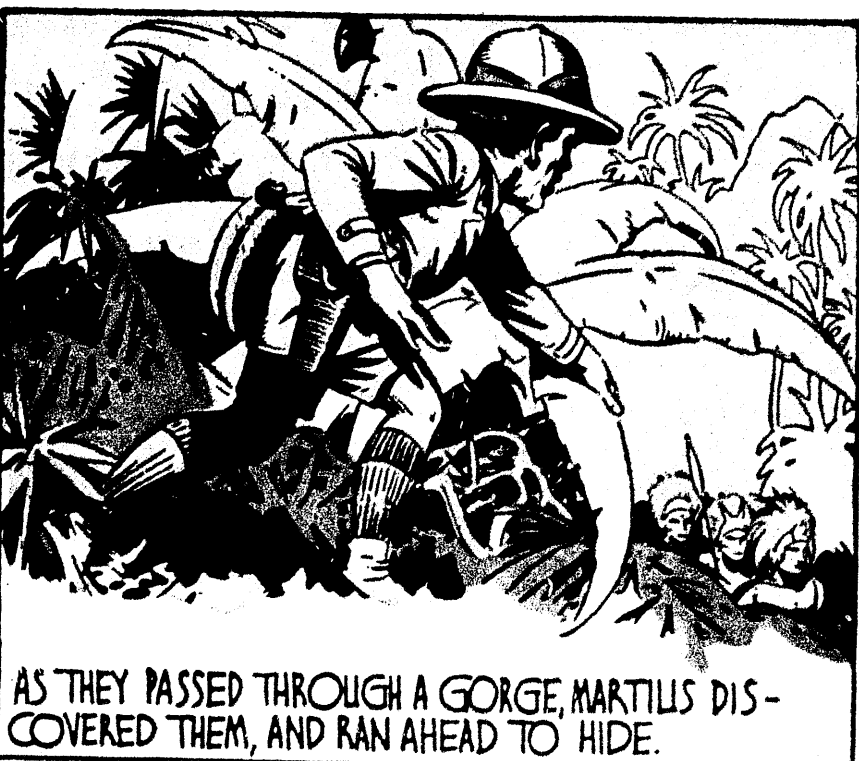

"YOU MUST NEVER GO NEAR THE CASTLE," HE SAID GRAVELY; "KALBAN MARTIUS DWELLS THERE. HE'LL KILL YOU!"

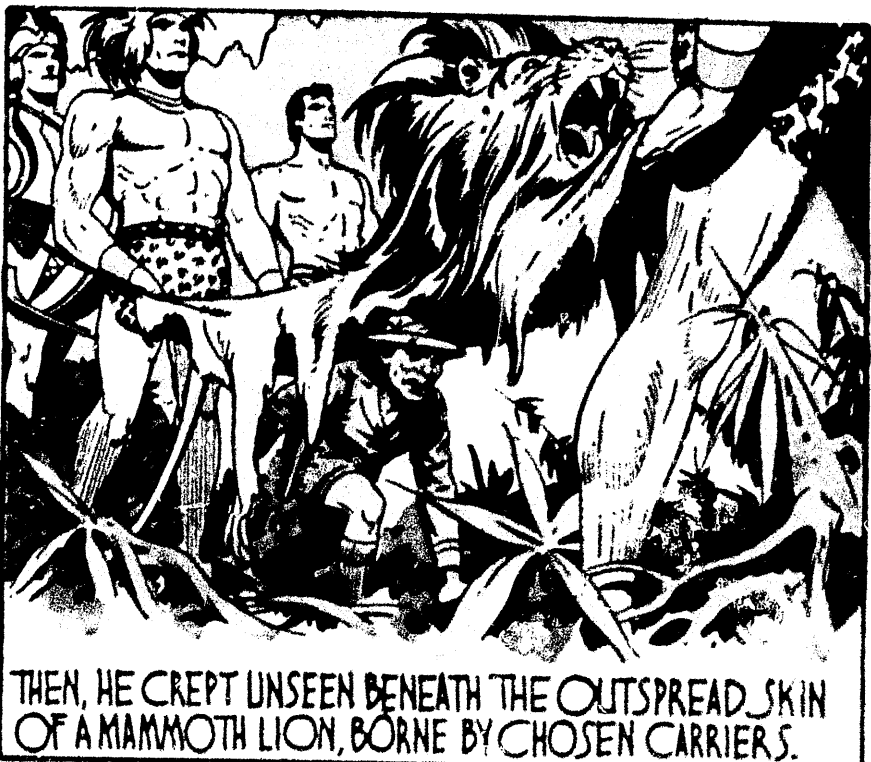

THEN THE GIANT ADDED: "OUR ELDERS BEG YOU TO GO WITH THEM TO THE SECRET CAVERN OF THE FORBIDDEN FOUNTAIN."

SO TARZAN, EVER CURIOUS, JOINED THE SOLEMN PILGRIMAGE OF THE WISE MEN.

AS THEY PASSED THROUGH A GORGE, MARTIUS DISCOVERED THEM, AND RAN AHEAD TO HIDE.

THEN, HE CROPT UNSEEN BENEATH THE OUTSPREAD SKIN OF A MAMMOTH LION, BORNE BY CHOSEN CARRIERS.

PRESENTLY THE PROCESSION REACHED THE PORTALS OF A CAVERN, WHICH WERE SWUNG OPEN.

A KOLOSAN WHISPERED TO TARZAN: ONE SIP OF THOSE WATERS DOUBLES THE SIZE OF ANY LIVING THING."

"THE CHIEF STOKED: 'O MIGHTY ONE RETAIN THY FORBIDDEN WATERS WITHIN THIS CAVE, THAT THEY MAY NEVER FLOW INTO OUR BELOVED VALLEY.'"

THE DWARF LISTENED IN AMAZEMENT. THIS WAS THE MYSTERIOUS ELEMENT OF GROWTH FOR WHICH HE HAD BEEN SEARCHING.

HIDDEN BY THE LION SKIN, HE CROPT TOWARD THE FATEFUL FOUNTAIN.
